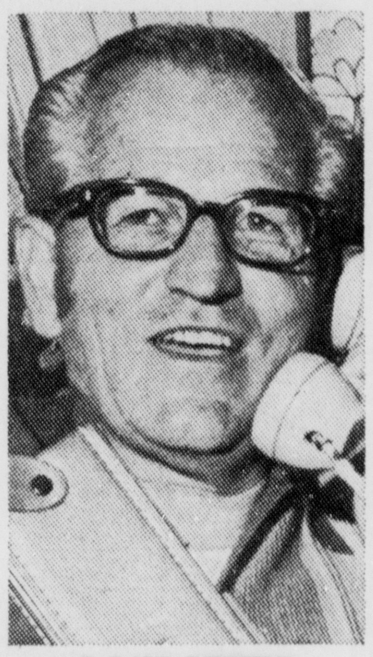
Incumbents Get San Rafael Vote

Only One Charter Change



C. PAUL BETTINI
A four-year term

FRED JENSEN
Veteran reelected

JOHN A. MISKIMEN
Leads Council slate

San Rafael voters held fast to the status quo yesterday. They reelected Mayor C. Paul Bettini by a runaway margin, also reelected incumbent councilmen John A. Miskimen and Fred Jensen, and turned down three of four charter amendments on the ballot.

Only the measure to consider persons living in annexed areas to be the same as city voters in terms of residency was passed, 5,074 to 1,741.

The only incumbent seeking reelection to the San Rafael Board of Education led the pack of nine candidates for the three open seats. Trustee Herman L. Childress received 5,021 votes. Newcomers elected to the board were Marilyn Bolger with 3,906 and Francis X. Kelly with 3,401 votes.

Unsuccessful board of education candidates were Charles B. Peek, 3,361; Richard E. West, 3,037; Donald R. Wellington, 2,254; John L. Semorile, 2,235; Philip E. Maley, 1,230; Jim Lamantia, 1,187.

Unopposed incumbent city officials elected were Clerk Marion A. Grady, 5,867; Treasurer Angela J. Soldavini, 5,876, and City Attorney Fred C. Robbins Jr., 5,651.

Turnout at the polls was 47.7 per cent, or 7,544 of the city's 15,812 registered voters, according to the county elections office which tallied the results last night. Turnout at the last city election in 1969 was 50 per cent.

Raznikov, on the ballot for the first time, garnered more votes than Bettini's previous competition, ex-Councilman Charles W. Aby. Aby received 1,150 votes while Bettini polled 5,603 votes in the 1969 city elections.

Bettini's election to a fourth term as mayor will give him his first four-year stint. Each of the previous terms was for two years. Voters in 1969 amended the city charter to make the mayoralty a four-year post, beginning this year.

In the council race, one-term veteran Miskimen topped the six-candidate field with 3,527 votes, while Jensen received 3,515. A close runner-up was longtime planning commission member Thomas R. O'Toole who received 3,341. Candidate George S. Burton drew 1,918 votes and Don J. Urquhart 593

All 27 School Member Veterans Are Reelected

Marin County voters returned every one of the 27 incumbents seeking reelection to their school district seats in yesterday's election to fill 50 seats on 18 boards.

HAROLD A. DRADY
Winner by one vote

Elections also were held for San Rafael city offices and on formation of two districts in unincorporated areas of Marin County. (See stories elsewhere on page 1.)

The only school district office-holder ousted was Reed School District board chairman Gordon C. Wright. He was the target of a successful recall campaign which saw Wright replaced by Dr. John J. Osborn.

Easily the closest race in Marin County was the Nicasio School District election to choose a trustee to fill the unexpired two-year term created by the resignation of trustee John L. Shepherd. The nod went to California Highway Patrol Officer Harold A. Drady, by a one-vote margin. He polled 35 votes to the 34 received by Duane T. Irving. Irving said he would not seek a recount.

Despite the recall issue, only 55.2 per cent of the eligible 5,907 voters in the Reed District visited the polls. The highest percentage turnout in Marin County was achieved by Bolinas-Stinson School District voters, with 75.8 per cent of the 904 registered voters balloting.

A nonschool election, involving proposed formation of a community services district for Sleepy Hollow, attracted 72.5 per cent of the 1,129 eligible voters, according to the records of the county elections department.

Countywide, slightly less than 35 per cent of the 85,108 eligible voters cast ballots on the various school district, city and special elections.

Heavy fields of candidates for school board seats in Dixie, Novato and the Marin Junior College District failed to draw even 45 per cent of the registered voters in any case.

Wright Ousted In Reed Recall Ballot

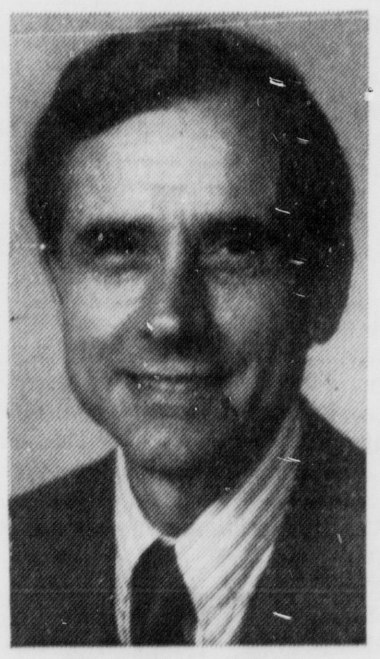
In Wright's place, the district's voters elected Dr. John J. Osborn, a heart specialist who had never before ventured into political combat.



DR. JOHN J. OSBORN
Takes Wright's seat

Newcomer Margaret E. Jones with 1,886 votes and incumbent Leo Souza with 1,794 votes topped the field of five candidates for the two regular openings on the board. Losers were Mark Noble, 1,017; Clayton D. Calender, 658; Marie L. McLeod, 575.

Despite the recall controversy and the five-way race for two other seats open on the district board, only 55.2 per cent of the registered voters cast ballots.

Wright was recalled by a vote of 1,967 to 1,235. Osborn received 2,025 votes as the only candidate to replace the ousted chairman.

Although Wright said, "I stand ready as always to support this community in whichever way I can be most effective," he added that he doubted he would run again for the school board.

Osborne today said, "This election was won because a great many cared deeply about the schools . . . It is not a matter of one group seizing control from another. It is a chance for the school board to operate as a body which is truly representative of all the diverse elements in the community.

"Mr. Wright worked hard for the Reed School system as he saw its problems. He and the people he represents, like other segments of opinion, must continue to be heard in the formation of (district) policy."

The first tally made by the computer in the Marin County Civic Center showed the absentee vote running 93 to 46 in favor of recall, and Wright's fate was never in doubt from that point.

Special Fire District Is Defeated

A proposal that there be a special fire district to serve unincorporated areas of Marin County was defeated in yesterday's election. It took only about 17 per cent of the registered voters to kill it.

Only 2,999 of the 9,223 rural area voters balloted on Measure E, which would have set up a special district and relieved city taxpayers of part of the county tax load that now finances the Marin County Fire Department.

The vote against formation to serve areas not already in a fire district was 1,551 to 1,163, according to the computer tally at the elections center in the Marin Civic Center.

The decision came despite an announcement in March that fire insurance firms no longer would give preferential treatment on homeowners outside of but near existing fire districts.

Judge In Angela Case Not 'Bias'

By MARY LEYDECKER

An outside judge today ruled that "no showing had been made" that Judge Alan A. Lindsay "entertains prejudice or bias" against Angela Y. Davis or Ruchell Magee.

Justice Winslow Christian made his decision not to disqualify Lindsay after a two-hour hearing today at the Hall of Justice in a half-empty courtroom.

Attorneys for Miss Davis refused to give oral arguments on their motion to disqualify Judge Lindsay, whom they had accused of being a racist, saying that they had not been given enough time to prepare.

Margaret Burnham, one of Miss Davis's lawyers, objected that only 24-hour notice had been given of the hearing, and claimed that this indicated that Justice Christian also had "racist and biased attitudes."

She had asked that the hearing be continued for two days.

Justice Christian, a District Court of Appeal judge, had been assigned to hear the disqualification motion after attorneys for the 27-year-old black

Sonoma Voters End ABAG Pact

Sonoma County voters yesterday elected to withdraw from the Association of Bay Area Governments and to lift the moratorium on mobile home parks.

In the county-wide proposition to leave ABAG for a new alliance of North Bay counties, the vote in favor was 29,512 with 10,576 against.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors called for the special withdrawal vote, with some saying they feared ABAG would become a powerful regional government. The new alliance, which has not yet been approved by the state Legislature, would include Sonoma, Napa, Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties.

The proposition to continue the moratorium on mobile home parks failed with 26,280 against and 14,601 in favor in the unofficial tabulation.

Supervisors had supported the moratorium, saying it was necessary until tax inequities could be solved. Opposition groups maintained that mobile homes are an answer to low cost housing and do, indeed, pay their way in taxes.

Controversial Park Plan Wins Adoption

By PAT ANGLE

A controversial long range, three-stage plan to turn the center of Sausalito's downtown into a series of parks, malls and walkways was adopted last night by the Sausalito City Council. (Another Sausalito council story, page 8)

The council voted 3-2 to approve William Spangle's park plaza plan, but said development should be undertaken only when the council is convinced it is financially feasible. Councilmen Robin Sweeny and Earl F. Dunphy refused to endorse the proposal and most of the overflow crowd of about 80 persons who attended the hearing seemed to agree with the dissenting council members.

Mrs. Sweeny questioned whether Sausalito could support what she said would amount to a "regional park" since persons from all over would use it. She could not approve the plan, she said, without more information on how it could be financed and its effects on the city.

The first stage of the plan calls for conversion of El Portal into a partial pedestrian mall, the closure of Park Street and expansion of Vina Del Mar Park into a parking lot. About 47 parking spaces would be removed in the first stage of development.

AF Officers To March In Peace Event

By FRANK FARRARA

The peace movement has spread into the ranks at Hamilton Air Force Base where antiwar sentiment has broken out into the open.

Two pilots, backing immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, announced yesterday that a chapter of the Concerned Officers Movement has been started at the base.

"We're not out to convert people, to change any minds, but to organize and mobilize the very large sector of anti-war opinion in the military . . . and provide a vehicle for that opinion," said Lt. Mark Renshaw, 26, one of the founders.

The group started about three weeks ago, has about 12 to 15 members and its immediate goal is to get support for the peace march in San Francisco Saturday, Renshaw said.

They say they are not pacifists, but are opposed to the war in Vietnam and elsewhere in Indochina.

"Essentially we all believe there is no justification in killing more Cambodians, Laotians and Vietnamese to save face and that seems to be the policy we have been following," Renshaw said.

The war in Southeast Asia "is the most socially destructive thing that has happened to us in decades; brutalizing the population, radicalizing the moderates and developing a schism in this country," he asserted.

Sleepy Hollow Votes Down Community Services District

Sleepy Hollow voters declared nearly three-to-one yesterday that they wanted their homeowners' association to continue wrestling with neighborhood problems rather than form a new taxing agency — a community services district.

Of the proposed district's 1,129 voters, 578 voted against formation and 202 for it. The turnout was 72.5 per cent.

A parallel measure to establish a tax rate of $1.15 per $100 assessed valuation to finance the proposed district and take over operation of the present Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District, which has a tax rate of $1.09, resulted in a 547 to 196 vote against the increase.

In casting ballots for the five men who would have become directors of the community services district had it been formed, the voters showed consistency. The five top vote getters were all leaders of the opposition to district formation.

The contenders in order of running for the directorships that never materialized were J. G. Ingels, 471; Alfred Nannizzi, 422; Richard B. Kreuzer, 373; Edward Simpkins, 369; Ralph B. Rogers, 307; Robert L. Flanders, 293; Frank J. Berto, 255; Medora-Vaux Toneff, 243; Gerald D. Patten, 212; Robert N. Foehr, 205; George W. Pasha III, 155.

Alfred A. Nannizi, credited with spearheading neighborhood action against a new district, said last night, "I feel the homeowners' association has done a good job of getting the things we needed in the past — and can do better in the future — without the aid of a legal taxing body."

J. G. Ingels, also an opponent of the district idea and leading vote-getter of the 11 on the ballot, whooped, "Oh, brother! That's fine," when informed of the results. "I'm sure the efforts of both sides will now be channeled through the homeowners' association," he added.

Merritt A. Robinson, president of the homeowners' association, was not on the ballot. A leading proponent of forming the special district, he took the defeat philosophically. "We'll have to work all the harder to achieve what we need. It was a hard battle . . . but it made it much clearer where we should go," he said.

The contenders in order of running for the directorships that never materialized were J. G. Ingels, 471; Alfred Nannizzi, 422; Richard B. Kreuzer, 373; Edward Simpkins, 369; Ralph B. Rogers, 307; Robert L. Flanders, 293; Frank J. Berto, 255; Medora-Vaux Toneff, 243; Gerald D. Patten, 212; Robert N. Foehr, 205; George W. Pasha III, 155.

Alfred A. Nannizi, credited with spearheading neighborhood action against a new district, said last night, "I feel the homeowners' association has done a good job of getting the things we needed in the past — and can do better in the future — without the aid of a legal taxing body."

J. G. Ingels, also an opponent of the district idea and leading vote-getter of the 11 on the ballot, whooped, "Oh, brother! That's fine," when informed of the results. "I'm sure the efforts of both sides will now be channeled through the homeowners' association," he added.

Merritt A. Robinson, president of the homeowners' association, was not on the ballot. A leading proponent of forming the special district, he took the defeat philosophically. "We'll have to work all the harder to achieve what we need. It was a hard battle . . . but it made it much clearer where we should go," he said.

Pope's Attacker

MANILA (UPI) — Bolivian painter Benjamin Mendoza y Amor was found guilty today of the attempted assassination of Pope Paul VI —the first case of its kind in modern history.

Mendoza, 34, showed no emotion as he stood at attention listening to the decision of Filipino Judge Pedro Bautista sentencing him to from two years, four months and one day to four years and two months in prison.

The hawk-nosed painter, his once crewcut hair now long and sporting a wispy goatee, was found guilty of attacking Pope Paul with a 13-inch dagger Nov. 27 when the pontiff arrived in Manila on a visit. The Pope was scratched by the dagger.

Egypt Alarmed

By United Press International

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today Egypt has requested an "official and urgent" clarification from the United States on reports it is planning to supply Israel with more Phantom jets.

The newspaper said "any boost of Israel's military capability would only lead to an escalation of the scale of the inevitable battle." There have been reports the United States was planning to provide Israel 12 Phantom fighter-bombers in addition to the 50 already promised.

In Jerusalem, military officials said a mine explosion under an army command car on a dirt track in Israeli territory near the pre-war border line with Jordan killed three officers and wounded four soldiers. The incident 40 miles southwest of Jerusalem caused the heaviest casualties in such an incident since the cease-fire started Aug. 8.

'Fragging' Report

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon says "incidents" involving explosives killed 68 Americans in Vietnam during 1969-70 and that most of them probably involved "fragging" in which GIs with grudges attacked their leaders.

Defense Department spokesmen issued the statistic Tuesday in response to a Senate speech by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield in which Mansfield deplored the death of a young army lieutenant from his home state of Montana.

There were 209 such "fragging" incidents in Vietnam last year, Mansfield said. His face pinched and his voice drawn, the majority leader said it was "a grim statistic of this war, and I shall not lose sight of it."

The Pentagon said 209 "incidents" involving explosives killed 34 men in Vietnam in 1970. It said another 37 died in 96 incidents in 1969. Most of the incidents probably were cases of fragging, but a few could have been accidental explosions, a spokesman said.

Queen's Birthday

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth turned 45 today, quietly observing the occasion with her family amidst preparations for a nine-day Canadian visit scheduled to start may 3.

The nation officially marks the queen's birthday in June with traditional pomp and ceremony. The date was chosen because the weather is better for outdoor ceremonies than in April.

One public observance today was a 41-gun royal salute fired by the Royal Horse Artillery.

CBS Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A House subcommittee has given the Columbia Broadcasting System 10 days to comply with a subpoena to give it the materials used to produce the controversial documentary, "The Selling of the Pentagon."

CBS asked for more time to consider the request Tuesday at a meeting between lawyers for the network and the special subcommittee on investigations of the House Commerce Committee, chaired by Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va.

The network told the subcommittee the demands for film, recordings, outtakes (unused film), transcripts, identifications of individuals in the film and other material raised "fundamental constitutional issues as to whether journalistic news judgments can be subjected to legislative surveillance."

Meanwhile, representatives of the National Broadcasting Co. appearing at the closed session of the subcommittee complied with a separate subpoena and provided a film copy and transcripts of another documentary, "Say Goodbye," a program dealing with endangered wildlife, produced by Wolper Productions.

Union Merger

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—I. W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers Union (USW), triumphantly announced Tuesday the union's executive board had approved a merger with District 50, Allied and Technical workers.

"We're still a young union and we're contemplating other mergers" said Abel.

The 1.2 million member USW, by adding District 50's 200,000 members, would replace the 1.3 million member United Auto Workers as the nation's second largest union. The Teamsters Union has 2 million members.

The merger must be approved by the executive committee of District 50 in Washington this weekend and by delegates at the union's convention in August.

Pakistan Denial

NEW DELHI (UPI)- Pakistan Radio denied today Indian press reports that East Pakistani rebel forces had reoccupied their provisional capital of Chuadanga and seized the airfield at the northeastern town of Sylhet.

The broadcast said the reports were "wishful thinking of Indian interventionists" and that Pakistan International Airways was still operating regular flights out of Sylhet.

The Pakistan broadcast also said Pakistan troops had firmly secured borders from infiltration from neighboring India.

Medicare Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Ways and Means Committee has approved a $1.5 billion package of improved Social Security benefits but cut back on free hospitalization for Medicare patients from 59 to 29 days.

The panel also rejected a Nixon administration proposal to have the federal government pay the full monthly premiums that 20 million people over 65 now pay for doctors' insurance. That premium, now $5.30, will go to $5.60.

The panel did limit future increases in the monthly premium to no more than percentage increases in Social Security benefits. Thus, a 10 per cent benefits boost would mean no more than a 56-cent increase in the monthly premium.

The committee Tuesday took action that would improve monthly cash benefits for widows, provide Medicare coverage to the seriously disabled under 65, raise the outside earnings ceiling for Social Security retirees, and add a cost-of-living escalator for future benefit increases.

Field Troops Probe A Shau Valley Under Air Protection

SAIGON (UPI) — Battalion-sized American reconnaissance teams and smaller South Vietnamese units probed the A Shau Valley beneath an umbrella of fighter-bombers today in preparation for a forthcoming Allied campaign in the Laotian border area.

Heavy North Vietnamese resistance was reported for the first time since the Allied scouting missions began in the valley more than a week ago.

As the Allied units carried out extensive reconnaissance missions preparatory to the drive in the 35-mile-long valley, Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, deputy commander of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, said the A Shau was "not an exclusive target."

"In this operation, we will go anywhere from the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) on down to the A Shau," he said. The area Giai mentioned takes in a 75-mile strip along the Laotian border.

Giai said the idea of the operation was to force elements of three North Vietnamese divisions and four independent regiments out of South Vietnam's northern provinces, Quang Tri and Thua Thien.

"The operation is designed to clear out everything from the DMZ to Hai Van Pass," Giai said. Hai Van is a coastal mountain pass eight miles north of Da Nang.

An Allied air observer reported seeing a battalion-sized U.S. unit (at least 800 man) in the valley, a Communist stronghold for more than 20 years. Military sources said more than one battalion-sized American unit was operating in the "reconnaissance in force" mission in the valley.

Giai said South Vietnamese forces in the valley were limited to company-size units and announced from his La Vang headquarters near Quang Tri that South Vietnamese Marines have reopened the old U.S. Marine fire support base Holcomb, 25 miles north of the A Shau Valley.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman in Saigon said there were "several regiments" of ARVN troops involved in preparation for the A Shau campaign which Giai said was "still in a reconnaissance stage."

Youth Confab Refuses To Ask Nixon To Quit

ESTES PARK, Colo. (UPI)—The White House Conference on Youth, beset by controversy from the start and by dissension among its delegates, rejected a proposal calling for President Nixon's resignation but passed one supporting the People's Peace Treaty.

The 1,500 youths and adults attending the conference faced its busiest session today with discussion scheduled on recommendations from 10 task forces which studied issues ranging from poverty and employment to the draft and foreign affairs.

Delegates, wearing Army parkas which were rushed in after a surprise spring storm dumped a foot of snow on the mountain area, learned Tuesday that a majority of them had voted against a proposal demanding the resignations of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Voting on that issue and 18 others was held Monday, but the results were not released until Tuesday. Fewer than half the conference participants took part in the voting.

While refusing to call for Nixon's resignation, the delegates who voted did reject a proposal that in effect would have supported the President's Vietnamization program. The youth delegates also supported the People's Peace Treaty, recently circulated by American and North and South Vietnamese students.

Delegates also voted in favor of a proposal urging the United States to establish a better relationship with Red China.

The conference, controversial since Nixon moved the site from Washington to Colorado, became more so during Tuesday sessions. Opponents earlier argued Nixon was shifting the conference out of Washington because of possible criticism that might be aimed his way during the meeting.

One delegate, Kendall Cooper, 24, a resident nurse from Kansas City, Kan., said Tuesday the conference failed to represent either moderate or conservative viewpoints.

"The all-American youth has not been represented," she said. Miss Cooper, who said she currently was working in the Panama Canal Zone, described herself as "neither a radical nor a reactionary."

Another delegate, Ann Schuster, 17, a high school coed from Lincoln, Neb., said she felt not much would come out of the conference because "we don't have the right people here."

Miss Schuster, repeating what some other delegates have said, indicated she thought more professionals in such fields as health, welfare and economics should be on hand.

Another delegate, Sterling Tucker, a black member of the Washington, D.C., city council, said his poverty task force felt "youth is an important natural resource, but our task force feels young people are not treated that way."

Elmer Winter, president of Manpower, Inc., a temporary employment agency with 625 offices throughout the nation, told members of the economy and employment task force that students "desperately need summer employment."

Winter, himself a delegate to the conference, said it was time to begin preparing for such employment.

Lisa Parker, 16, a student from Anchorage, Alaska, and a delegate to the poverty task force, said a health care division of her group had drawn up 11 recommendations based on the belief that "health care is a basic right—not something which should be subject to an individual's ability to pay."

Cambodian Crisis: New Cabinet Asked

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian chief of state Cheng Heng accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Lon Nol today but immediately asked him to form a new government, Radio Cambodia announced.

The brief broadcast also said the national assembly met this morning and unanimously approved the promotion of Lon Nol to the rank of marshal of the Cambodian armies and gave him the title of national hero.

"Considering the grave situation in which our country presently finds itself and in compliance with the wide spectrum of public opinion, the chief of state after consulting the chairman of the National Assembly and the council of the republic, decided today to request General Lon Nol to form a new cabinet according to the demands of the situation," the broadcast said.

The developments in the Cambodian political situation appeared to confirm statements made Tuesday by Lon Nol's brother, Col. Lon Non, who said the resignation was little more than a formality.

Lon Nol, who with Cheng Heng led the bloodless coup that overthrew neutralist Prince Norodom Sihanouk March 18, 1970, suffered a stroke Feb. 8. He spent some time in an American military hospital in Hawaii, but has not fully recovered.

In the meantime, Deputy Premier Sisowath Sirik Matak has run the government.

The prime minister's brother said Tuesday the resignations were required under the constitution because Lon Nol had decided to fire a majority of his cabinet. Lon Non gave corruption in the government as the major reason for Lon Nol's decision.

The country also has been beset with a number of other problems, including inflation. Since Sihanouk was overthrown, fighting has been going on and almost all resources have been used in battling the Communists.

Sewer Bond Issue Sold To B Of A

The San Rafael City Council, meeting in special session late yesterday, authorized the sale of $1,105,000 in sewer bonds to the Bank of America.

The bonds will finance sewer construction in the lower areas of the city where manholes spew sewage during storms.

Bank of America was the lowest of seven bidders, offering to purchase the bonds at 4.4746 per cent average annual interest. Other bidders and the per centages they bid were: United California Bank, 4.5159; Bank of California, 4.5294; Crocker Citizens Bank, 4.5561; Bateman, Eichler, Hill and Richards, 4.6014; Wells Fargo, 4.6847; and Security Pacific National, 4.6909.

VOTE

while Benjamin F. Walton trailed with 433.

"I'm very pleased with the results," Bettini said. "I never speculate on margins or total votes, but I felt that I would win."

He said Raznikov put up a spirited campaign but was defeated because "the people thought he didn't have the experience to be mayor. You can't expect to start right up at the top."

Raznikov was not available for comment, but his mother, Mrs. I. Raznikov of 12 Chateau Place, said that despite the outcome, she was delighted that he had made the race.

Bettini started with eight years on the San Rafael Board of Education and was chairman of the board from 1959-61, before running for mayor.

He defeated Aby in 1965 and 1969 and ran unopposed in 1967.

On the charter amendment measures, the city voters refused to give up their right of electing the city attorney, vetoing a proposal to make the post appointive by a vote of 4,002 to 3,002. A measure to do away with the requirement of three years' residency to hold city office lost by a vote of 3,976 to 3,062. Another proposal to kill the charter limitation of $1,000 a year to promote civic celebrations lost $3,780 to 3,038.

Youth Suffers Cuts In Wreck

A 19-year-old Petaluma youth suffered multiple cuts yesterday in a three-car collision on southbound Highway 101 near the Marin-Sonoma county line, according to the California Highway Patrol.

David M. Peters, of 1 El Rose Drive, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma after the 10:35 a.m. accident.

Officers said his car clipped the rear of an auto driven by La Rita C. Harrington, 38, of 4485 D Street, Petaluma and then smashed into a crane-trailer rig driven by Stephen C. Jones, 38, of Lincoln Village, San Joaquin County.

20 Days' Jail On Pot Violation

Chester Nicholas Krawczuk, 21, of no known address, was sentenced to 20 days in Marin County Jail yesterday for his conviction of possessing marijuana.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court gave Krawczuk credit for time already spent in jail.

He was arrested in January after two Sausalito policemen, dressed in civilian clothes, picked him up while he was hitchhiking on Bridgeway. Police said Krawczuk told the officers he had some marijuana to share. A search revealed the pot in a plastic bag in his pocket.

Pot Case To Superior Court

Phillip David Harrison, 20, of Sleepy Hollow, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of possessing marijuana.

He is to be arraigned in superior court May 10.

Harrison was arrested March 27 when drug agents said they saw him with a plastic bag of suspected pot in Sausalito.

PLAN

uled for completion after the year 2000, would turn the remainder of the parking lot into an open space park and develop a cove and pedestrian walkway along the shoreline.

Councilman Dunphy did not favor removing any parking in the city's largest lot "until there are no resident-serving commercial enterprises from city hall to Princess Street." He also thought any funds available for park purposes should be spent to develop the city's newly-acquired waterfront property near Litho Street, proposed site of a new city hall and library.

The presidents of the Sausalito Citizens Council, Chamber of Commerce and the Sausalito Businessmen's Association opposed the plan.

Opposition to the proposal was based generally on four issues; 1) The city does not know the cost of developing and maintaing the park area. 2) No alternate source of revenue has been found to replace the $100,000 the city would lose annually if the parking lot were closed; 3) Elimination of downtown parking would create hardships for downtown businesses and the residents who patronize them and 4) The residents who would pay for the development would be crowded out of the park area by visitors.

Councilman Wyman Hicks and Stephen A. Fraser and Mayor Alexander R. Imlay joined about two dozen persons in the audience and favored the park development.

"This is a wonderful direction in which to go," said Hicks who noted he has been working for public access to the waterfront for 25 years. "The waterfront should be made available to the people in larger and larger pieces," he continued, "not be given away to people who want to come here to buy things."

Fraser said he felt the development should be accomplished "as soon as possible" and said he would work for implementation of the first stage this year. But he added he believes the city should always maintain some resident space in the parking lot.

He agreed with businessmen that shopping centers do need cars to survive. Unless there is "another means of access to them" and pointed to the Golden Gate Bridge District's ferry which is to be located permanently at the foot of El Portal. "How many shopping centers have a ferry boat?" he asked.

Imlay said he was not frightened by the plan which he called "a logical extension of the city's general plan," but said he was not ready to put it in the budget "until I am sure it won't jeopardize our businessmen downtown."

One man in the audience drew the most enthusiastic applause of the evening when he suggested the park plaza plan be submitted to the voters before being adopted as city policy.

Restaurant Bid Wins Approval

Preliminary plans for enlarging Pat and Joe's Restaurant in Mill Valley won approval last night from the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee.

Zoning Administrator Howard R. McGill said the 75-seat restaurant at 71 Throckmorton Avenue will be remodeled and a second floor added to increase seating to 135.

The committee told the restaurant's owners to return with a plan for landscaping and exterior lighting before completing the job. The restaurant last week won a variance from off-street parking requirements from the city planning commission.

Bicyclist Has Leg Fractured

Eric Stenwick, of 407 Marin Drive, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital.

The California Highway Patrol said the youth rode his bicycle from a driveway at 406 Marin Drive into the path of a car driven by David L. Keith, 42, of 815 Spring Drive, Tamalpais Valley.

Discussion Set On Proposed Tax Plan

The proposed state-wide property tax for education and its effect upon the Marin Junior College District will be discussed tonight by the district board.

Meeting at 7 p.m. at the College of Marin testing office, the board also will continue discussion of its fiscal 1971-72 budget.

Youth Panel Will Ask Revisions

Marin County Youth Commission decided last night that a reorganization of the commission will be one of the topics discussed at a joint meeting with the Marin County Board of Supervisors next Tuesday at 9 a.m.

The youth commissioners want more youth representation on the commission and also want to change the method of appointment. At present, seven commissioners are youth and four are adults.

The Marin County Youth Commission also:

SELF-HELP — Endorsed the Bay Area Youth Self Help Incentive program, outlined by James Hasik of Novato, aimed at helping youth who are in trouble with the law.

YOUTH COLUMN — Issued a plea for more editorials and articles to be used in the youth column that is published weekly in the Independent-Journal.

RETREAT — Decided to hold a one-day retreat where youth commissioners can discuss goals and priorities for the coming fiscal year. The date and place of the retreat will be set later.

NEXT MEETING — Announced that the next regular meeting will be at 8 p.m. May 4 at the Civic Center.

Communist had challenged Judge Lindsay.

Lindsay came into the case April 1, after an earlier judge withdrew when challenged by San Quentin convict Magee.

He had been prepared to hear motions by Miss Davis's lawyers, asking that she be freed on bail and that charges against her be dismissed.

Miss Davis and Magee are charged with murder, conspiracy and kidnapping, stemming from the August shoot-out at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three other persons were killed.

Christian refused repeated requests today from Magee's court-appointed attorneys to discuss whether they should continue to represent him.

Finally, one of the lawyers, Robert Y. Bell, read a statement prepared by Magee which accused both Lindsay and Christian of being prejudiced against him.

Christian readily agreed that he had participated in an earlier phase of the case and had ruled then that Magee was not qualified to represent himself.

He was partly swayed in that decision, he said, by the fact that Magee wanted to use his one peremptory challenge against a judge in the early stages of the case. The justice called this a "tactical error" which would not be made by an attorney.

Magee, in the statement read by Bell, said that Christian had relied on "racist IQ tests" in making the decision that the convict needed an attorney.

The justice said that Magee's challenge of Lindsay did not meet legal requirements for a challenge for cause like the one made by Miss Davis. He then gave the attorneys a chance to confer with Magee to see if the convict wanted to use his peremptory challenge at this time.

After a recess, Bell said he wasn't authorized to speak for Magee. The justice wouldn't allow Magee to speak and ruled that the challenge would not be recognized.

Magee also renewed his repeated motions today that his case be transferred to federal court and claimed again through Bell that the state court has no jurisdiction.

At the end of the hearing Miss Burnham said that she felt Christian's handling of the case showed a "desire to give us form but not substance" and she said that she thought Miss Davis and Magee had "diminished prospects for a fair trial."

Christian responded, "I'm sincerely sorry that you feel that way."

No date was set today for the next court appearance

PEACE

ment is not antimilitary and felt that servicemen have the right as citizens to speak out against the war.

"We are under oath to help to defend the constitution and we feel it's our patriotic duty to speak up and say what we think," Lawson said.

Participation by servicemen he felt would "lend a little bit of respectibility to the peace movement," he said.

Renshaw felt it was his patriotic duty to state his attitude about the war and "indicate a desire for an abrupt change of policy where abrupt change is needed."

The pair, who serve with the Detachment 21, said they have kept Col. Lee A. Sarter Jr.; base commander, informed of their activities.

Capt. Joseph W. Corfield, public information officer, said that Colonel Sarter met with the pair and told them of "the limits of free speech under the military code of justice," and that he couldn't object to their participation in the peace rally as long as they acted within the limits of the code.

Renshaw described the anti-war group as "moderate" and said it was "working within the organization," and observing the military code.

"We can't recruit on base, can't be part of a demonstration which might end up in violence and can't wear uniforms in peace parades," he said.

Renshaw, half way through a five-year hitch, said: "There comes a time when you have to decide whether it's more worthwhile to grin and bear it, swallow it, or speak up."

Lawson, who served a year in Vietnam, said the experience was disillusioning. At first, he said, he was offended by the "bureaucracy, waste and inefficiency." Then, he was "just appalled at the relationship between U.S. troops and the Vietnamese people." The troops don't see the average Vietnamese people, but the prostitutes, money changers and the enemy and a large number say "they hate gooks," he commented. "We aren't helping these people at all."

Lawson said there were soldiers in Vietnam with fairly long hair, bands around their heads and wearing peace medals who were "toting guns" and "doing a hell of a job."

Renshaw said the concerned Officers Movement, which is open to both officers and enlisted men, is nationwide and the base chapter has "a rough alliance" with other chapters in the Bay Area.

The military's attitude toward the movement is "they either hope it will go away, or fail to acknowledge it exists," he said.

Chapter members and other military men will march at the head of the peace parade in San Francisco Saturday.

Renshaw said after the parade the chapter will be planning a "counter display" to be held on Armed Forces Day which will emphasize the peace theme.

Details haven't been worked out, but "it won't be on the base," he said.

The group also will be speaking out for the rights of free speech,"which on some occasions have been violated," Renshaw said.

Roland Anthony Ledtke, 36, of 130 El Capitan Drive, San Rafael, arrested Jan. 5, 1970, on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for two years and fined $250.

Two Suspects Booked On Pot

Two 19-year-old Mill Valley youths were booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of possessing marijuana, narcotics paraphernalia and being in a place where the drug is used after a routine traffic stop by Mill Valley police.

Timothy John Lojko, of 250 Edgewood Avenue, and Kevin Scott Ancic, of 465 East Blithedale Avenue were arrested about 2:55 a.m. after officers stopped their auto on East Blithedale, because it had a loud exhaust, and discovered a water pipe in the back seat.

A search of the vehicle revealed a small quantity of suspected hashish in the glove compartment and police said they found a quantity of suspected marijuana in Ancic's pocket.

Each youth was being held in lieu of $625 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Bound Over On Forgery Charge

Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of credit card forgery.

He is to be arraigned in superior court May 10.

Carrino was arrested March 13 after security agents at Disco department store in San Rafael discovered him attempting to use an allegedly stolen credit card.

Printing Ink Spill Cleaned Up

Approximately 800 gallons of ink was accidentally spilled about 11 a.m. yesterday onto the sidewalk and curb of Fifth Avenue, east of B Street.

The ink was forced out of the delivery pipe when a pump inside the Independent-Journal plant caused a reverse pressure on the ink, forcing it back up through the delivery pipe.

Crews from the Independent-Journal immediately cleaned the ink from the sidewalk and gutter, but not before some of it had been tracked around the sidewalk and street.

Innocent Pleas To Grand Theft

Daniel Patrick Smith, 22, and Donald Gilbert Kennedy, 27, both of Marin City, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of grand theft.

Jury trial was set for May 3.

The two were earlier charged with a felony count of grand theft in connection with the alleged theft of a camera from a San Franciscan's car April 4.

Addition Approved

The Petaluma Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday approved plans of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. for a 40-by-80 foot addition to its building at 125 Liberty Street.

Sewer Bond Issue Sold To B Of A

The San Rafael City Council, meeting in special session late yesterday, authorized the sale of $1,105,000 in sewer bonds to the Bank of America.

The bonds will finance sewer construction in the lower areas of the city where manholes spew sewage during storms.

Bank of America was the lowest of seven bidders, offering to purchase the bonds at 4.4746 per cent average annual interest. Other bidders and the per centages they bid were: United California Bank, 4.5159; Bank of California, 4.5294; Crocker Citizens Bank, 4.5561; Bateman, Eichler, Hill and Richards, 4.6014; Wells Fargo, 4.6847; and Security Pacific National, 4.6909.

VOTE

while Benjamin F. Walton trailed with 433.

"I'm very pleased with the results," Bettini said. "I never speculate on margins or total votes, but I felt that I would win."

He said Raznikov put up a spirited campaign but was defeated because "the people thought he didn't have the experience to be mayor. You can't expect to start right up at the top."

Raznikov was not available for comment, but his mother, Mrs. I. Raznikov of 12 Chateau Place, said that despite the outcome, she was delighted that he had made the race.

Bettini started with eight years on the San Rafael Board of Education and was chairman of the board from 1959-61, before running for mayor.

He defeated Aby in 1965 and 1969 and ran unopposed in 1967.

On the charter amendment measures, the city voters refused to give up their right of electing the city attorney, vetoing a proposal to make the post appointive by a vote of 4,002 to 3,002. A measure to do away with the requirement of three years' residency to hold city office lost by a vote of 3,976 to 3,062. Another proposal to kill the charter limitation of $1,000 a year to promote civic celebrations lost $3,780 to 3,038.

Youth Suffers Cuts In Wreck

A 19-year-old Petaluma youth suffered multiple cuts yesterday in a three-car collision on southbound Highway 101 near the Marin-Sonoma county line, according to the California Highway Patrol.

David M. Peters, of 1 El Rose Drive, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma after the 10:35 a.m. accident.

Officers said his car clipped the rear of an auto driven by La Rita C. Harrington, 38, of 4485 D Street, Petaluma and then smashed into a crane-trailer rig driven by Stephen C. Jones, 38, of Lincoln Village, San Joaquin County.

20 Days' Jail On Pot Violation

Chester Nicholas Krawczuk, 21, of no known address, was sentenced to 20 days in Marin County Jail yesterday for his conviction of possessing marijuana.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court gave Krawczuk credit for time already spent in jail.

He was arrested in January after two Sausalito policemen, dressed in civilian clothes, picked him up while he was hitchhiking on Bridgeway. Police said Krawczuk told the officers he had some marijuana to share. A search revealed the pot in a plastic bag in his pocket.

Pot Case To Superior Court

Phillip David Harrison, 20, of Sleepy Hollow, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of possessing marijuana.

He is to be arraigned in superior court May 10.

Harrison was arrested March 27 when drug agents said they saw him with a plastic bag of suspected pot in Sausalito.

uled for completion after the year 2000, would turn the remainder of the parking lot into an open space park and develop a cove and pedestrian walkway along the shoreline.

Councilman Dunphy did not favor removing any parking in the city's largest lot "until there are no resident-serving commercial enterprises from city hall to Princess Street." He also thought any funds available for park purposes should be spent to develop the city's newly-acquired waterfront property near Litho Street, proposed site of a new city hall and library.

The presidents of the Sausalito Citizens Council, Chamber of Commerce and the Sausalito Businessmen's Association opposed the plan.

Opposition to the proposal was based generally on four issues; 1) The city does not know the cost of developing and maintaing the park area. 2) No alternate source of revenue has been found to replace the $100,000 the city would lose annually if the parking lot were closed; 3) Elimination of downtown parking would create hardships for downtown businesses and the residents who patronize them and 4) The residents who would pay for the development would be crowded out of the park area by visitors.

Councilman Wyman Hicks and Stephen A. Fraser and Mayor Alexander R. Imlay joined about two dozen persons in the audience and favored the park development.

"This is a wonderful direction in which to go," said Hicks who noted he has been working for public access to the waterfront for 25 years. "The waterfront should be made available to the people in larger and larger pieces," he continued, "not be given away to people who want to come here to buy things."

Fraser said he felt the development should be accomplished "as soon as possible" and said he would work for implementation of the first stage this year. But he added he believes the city should always maintain some resident space in the parking lot.

He agreed with businessmen that shopping centers do need cars to survive. Unless there is "another means of access to them" and pointed to the Golden Gate Bridge District's ferry which is to be located permanently at the foot of El Portal. "How many shopping centers have a ferry boat?" he asked.

Imlay said he was not frightened by the plan which he called "a logical extension of the city's general plan," but said he was not ready to put it in the budget "until I am sure it won't jeopardize our businessmen downtown."

One man in the audience drew the most enthusiastic applause of the evening when he suggested the park plaza plan be submitted to the voters before being adopted as city policy.

Restaurant Bid Wins Approval

Preliminary plans for enlarging Pat and Joe's Restaurant in Mill Valley won approval last night from the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee.

Zoning Administrator Howard R. McGill said the 75-seat restaurant at 71 Throckmorton Avenue will be remodeled and a second floor added to increase seating to 135.

The committee told the restaurant's owners to return with a plan for landscaping and exterior lighting before completing the job. The restaurant last week won a variance from off-street parking requirements from the city planning commission.

Bicyclist Has Leg Fractured

Eric Stenwick, of 407 Marin Drive, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital.

The California Highway Patrol said the youth rode his bicycle from a driveway at 406 Marin Drive into the path of a car driven by David L. Keith, 42, of 815 Spring Drive, Tamalpais Valley.

Discussion Set On Proposed Tax Plan

The proposed state-wide property tax for education and its effect upon the Marin Junior College District will be discussed tonight by the district board.

Meeting at 7 p.m. at the College of Marin testing office, the board also will continue discussion of its fiscal 1971-72 budget.

Youth Panel Will Ask Revisions

Marin County Youth Commission decided last night that a reorganization of the commission will be one of the topics discussed at a joint meeting with the Marin County Board of Supervisors next Tuesday at 9 a.m.

The youth commissioners want more youth representation on the commission and also want to change the method of appointment. At present, seven commissioners are youth and four are adults.

The Marin County Youth Commission also:

SELF-HELP — Endorsed the Bay Area Youth Self Help Incentive program, outlined by James Hasik of Novato, aimed at helping youth who are in trouble with the law.

YOUTH COLUMN — Issued a plea for more editorials and articles to be used in the youth column that is published weekly in the Independent-Journal.

RETREAT — Decided to hold a one-day retreat where youth commissioners can discuss goals and priorities for the coming fiscal year. The date and place of the retreat will be set later.

NEXT MEETING — Announced that the next regular meeting will be at 8 p.m. May 4 at the Civic Center.

Communist had challenged Judge Lindsay.

Lindsay came into the case April 1, after an earlier judge withdrew when challenged by San Quentin convict Magee.

He had been prepared to hear motions by Miss Davis's lawyers, asking that she be freed on bail and that charges against her be dismissed.

Miss Davis and Magee are charged with murder, conspiracy and kidnapping, stemming from the August shoot-out at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three other persons were killed.

Christian refused repeated requests today from Magee's court-appointed attorneys to discuss whether they should continue to represent him.

Finally, one of the lawyers, Robert Y. Bell, read a statement prepared by Magee which accused both Lindsay and Christian of being prejudiced against him.

Christian readily agreed that he had participated in an earlier phase of the case and had ruled then that Magee was not qualified to represent himself.

He was partly swayed in that decision, he said, by the fact that Magee wanted to use his one peremptory challenge against a judge in the early stages of the case. The justice called this a "tactical error" which would not be made by an attorney.

Magee, in the statement read by Bell, said that Christian had relied on "racist IQ tests" in making the decision that the convict needed an attorney.

The justice said that Magee's challenge of Lindsay did not meet legal requirements for a challenge for cause like the one made by Miss Davis. He then gave the attorneys a chance to confer with Magee to see if the convict wanted to use his peremptory challenge at this time.

After a recess, Bell said he wasn't authorized to speak for Magee. The justice wouldn't allow Magee to speak and ruled that the challenge would not be recognized.

Magee also renewed his repeated motions today that his case be transferred to federal court and claimed again through Bell that the state court has no jurisdiction.

At the end of the hearing Miss Burnham said that she felt Christian's handling of the case showed a "desire to give us form but not substance" and she said that she thought Miss Davis and Magee had "diminished prospects for a fair trial."

Christian responded, "I'm sincerely sorry that you feel that way."

No date was set today for the next court appearance

PEACE

ment is not antimilitary and felt that servicemen have the right as citizens to speak out against the war.

"We are under oath to help to defend the constitution and we feel it's our patriotic duty to speak up and say what we think," Lawson said.

Participation by servicemen he felt would "lend a little bit of respectibility to the peace movement," he said.

Renshaw felt it was his patriotic duty to state his attitude about the war and "indicate a desire for an abrupt change of policy where abrupt change is needed."

The pair, who serve with the Detachment 21, said they have kept Col. Lee A. Sarter Jr.; base commander, informed of their activities.

Capt. Joseph W. Corfield, public information officer, said that Colonel Sarter met with the pair and told them of "the limits of free speech under the military code of justice," and that he couldn't object to their participation in the peace rally as long as they acted within the limits of the code.

Renshaw described the antiwar group as "moderate" and said it was "working within the organization," and observing the military code.

"We can't recruit on base, can't be part of a demonstration which might end up in violence and can't wear uniforms in peace parades," he said.

Renshaw, half way through a five-year hitch, said: "There comes a time when you have to decide whether it's more worthwhile to grin and bear it, swallow it, or speak up."

Lawson, who served a year in Vietnam, said the experience was disillusioning. At first, he said, he was offended by the "bureaucracy, waste and inefficiency." Then, he was "just appalled at the relationship between U.S. troops and the Vietnamese people." The troops don't see the average Vietnamese people, but the prostitutes, money changers and the enemy and a large number say "they hate gooks," he commented. "We aren't helping these people at all."

Lawson said there were soldiers in Vietnam with fairly long hair, bands around their heads and wearing peace medals who were "toting guns" and "doing a hell of a job."

Renshaw said the concerned Officers Movement, which is open to both officers and enlisted men, is nationwide and the base chapter has "a rough alliance" with other chapters in the Bay Area.

The military's attitude toward the movement is "they either hope it will go away, or fail to acknowledge it exists," he said.

Chapter members and other military men will march at the head of the peace parade in San Francisco Saturday.

Renshaw said after the parade the chapter will be planning a "counter display" to be held on Armed Forces Day which will emphasize the peace theme.

Details haven't been worked out, but "it won't be on the base," he said.

The group also will be speaking out for the rights of free speech,"which on some occasions have been violated," Renshaw said.

Two Suspects Booked On Pot

Two 19-year-old Mill Valley youths were booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of possessing marijuana, narcotics paraphernalia and being in a place where the drug is used after a routine traffic stop by Mill Valley police.

Timothy John Lojko, of 250 Edgewood Avenue, and Kevin Scott Ancic, of 465 East Blithedale Avenue were arrested about 2:55 a.m. after officers stopped their auto on East Blithedale, because it had a loud exhaust, and discovered a water pipe in the back seat.

A search of the vehicle revealed a small quantity of suspected hashish in the glove compartment and police said they found a quantity of suspected marijuana in Ancic's pocket.

Each youth was being held in lieu of $625 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of credit card forgery.

He is to be arraigned in superior court May 10.

Printing Ink Spill Cleaned Up

Approximately 800 gallons of ink was accidentally spilled about 11 a.m. yesterday onto the sidewalk and curb of Fifth Avenue, east of B Street.

The ink was forced out of the delivery pipe when a pump inside the Independent-Journal plant caused a reverse pressure on the ink, forcing it back up through the delivery pipe.

Crews from the Independent-Journal immediately cleaned the ink from the sidewalk and gutter, but not before some of it had been tracked around the sidewalk and street.

Patrolman Shot; His Gunman Dies

SANTA MARIA (UPI) —A California Highway Patrolman was shot and critically wounded Tuesday by a young man who scribbled a note saying "dope doesn't pay" before killing himself 20 minutes later, authorities said.

Officer Loren D. Scruggs, 35, a nine-year patrol veteran, had stopped two girls on a county highway near here when a youth parked in the opposite lane and casually walked over.

Authorities said the suspect asked directions to Santa Barbara and, as the two girls in the stopped vehicle looked on, pulled a small pistol and shot Scruggs in the temple.

Scruggs, married and the father of four, was taken to Sierra Vista Hospital where he underwent surgery to remove a bullet from his brain.

The two girls ran to the patrol car after the suspect fled and radioed to the dispatcher a description of the assailant and what type of auto he was driving.

Officers located the auto overturned about 10 miles from the shooting scene and found the body of Mark D. Steward, 22, in a nearby field. Authorities said Steward had shot himself in the head.

Sheriff's deputies said Steward, son of Selma City Treasurer Douglas Steward, scribbled a 16-line note on a brown paper shopping bag before he committed suicide.

The note read in part:

"Listen people. Dope doesn't help. Splitting doesn't help. Don't walk away from love. Care for people. ... I have no direction. No where to run. No where to hide. Later ..."

Broken Arm, Cuts When Car Overturns

A Los Ranchitos man suffered a fractured right arm and face cuts yesterday at 8:50 p.m. when his car, pulling a horse trailer, ran off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard on White's Hill and overturned.

The California Highway Patrol quoted Richard C. Bauman, 46, of 67 Ranchitos Road, as saying he swerved to avoid a car in his lane. He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Automatic Zoning Set In Petaluma

Plans for a zoning hearing on recently annexed lands were dropped last night when the Petaluma Planning Commission decided automatic zoning, setting 10,000 square foot lots, would be appropriate.

Assistant Planner Richard D. A. Anderson said the recently annexed land bounded by Casa Grande Road, Lakeville Highway and Old Lakeville Road would automatically be zoned for the large residential lots unless the commission took other action.

He said property owners could file for rezoning after the current moratorium on rezoning is lifted when planning studies for the area are complete.

The commission also approved the final map requested by Boise Cascade from Sonoma Vista Subdivision No. Four and granted a time extension on the tentative map of Foothill Manor Subdivision No. Four.

Earth Day Speaker Cut On Birth Control Issue

What a high school student in Novato hears about overpopulation during Earth Days, tomorrow and Friday, depends upon which school he attends.

Novato High School Principal Stanley V. Onderdonk has blocked the Rev. Charles Bates Gompertz, president of Planned Parenthood of Marin, from speaking at that school.

While at San Marin High School, on the other side of the city, Thomas A. Knight, executive director of Planned Parenthood of Marin, will speak to students Friday.

Gompertz said he had been invited to talk by the Ecology Action Club, but was told Monday by Onderdonk that he couldn't appear.

"I wasn't going to talk about birth control, but overpopulation," Gompertz said. However, when asked by Onderdonk if he would answer questions, Gompertz said he would.

Onderdonk said he was concerned that such questions would get into the area of birth control, and under the state education code such information can be presented to students only with parental consent.

Onderdonk said he learned Monday that students planned to invite speakers to individual rooms to ask questions.

There wasn't time to get parental consent, and so there was no choice but to cancel Gompertz's appearance, he said.

There are classes in family life education at the school and students attend with parental consent, he said.

Gompertz said the problem arose "on the matter of questions. I said I'd answer them and he said you can't do that."

Gompertz said he was "really bothered" because the students had been encouraged to set up their own Earth Days program and then discouraged.

"People wonder why kids get angry at the educational system and this is a classic example," said Gompertz. The combination of being encouraged and then discouraged bring frustration, he said.

Earth Days at Novato High School will include speakers at assemblies tomorrow and Friday, noon displays and closing comments by State Sen. Peter H. Behr (R-San Rafael).

Dennis Baldwin, Judy Nichol and Roger Bockrath of Survival Inc. will talk about recycling at 9:20 a.m. tomorrow.

Novato Planning Commissioner Beverly Ehreth will talk about hillsides and slides, and fellow Commissioner Gail Wilhelm will talk about creek and river pollution at 9:20 a.m. Friday.

Senator Behr will talkabout regional and state problems at 3 p.m. Friday. All talks will be in the boys gymnasium.

At noon each day there will be displays of a survival structure, camping equipment, bicycle information and biodegradable soaps. There will be a tree planting in the patio area at noon Thursday.

Minor Injuries In 2-Car Collision

Two persons received minor injures yesterday at 2:36 p.m. north of Point Reyes Station in a two-car collision, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Ellarene J.Young, 42, of 1041 Third Street, Novato, suffered face cuts while Joanne R. McDowell, 31, of Box 104, Tomales, complained of pain in the right arm and left knee. Both said they would see their own doctors.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred four miles north of Point Reyes Station when a southbound car driven by Mrs. McDowell collided with a northbound vehicle driven by Charles B. Young, 44, of the Novato address.

Laird: Red ICBM Threat Growing

NEW YORK (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today the Soviet Union had started building a new, extensive ICBM system which "must be of major concern" to the United States.

In view of this, he said, the United States might be forced to take "additional offsetting actions" if the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) in Vienna fail to produce an agreement.

In a prepared speech to the 85th annual convention of the American Newspapers Publishers Association (ANPA), Laird recalled that one year ago he told another meeting of editors that he feared the United States might find itself in a second rate strategic position by the mid-1970s.

"I regret to report today that nothing has happened in the intervening 12 months to lessen that concern," he said. "Quite the opposite is true."

Laird said that in December and January it appeared the Soviet Union was slowing its rapid deployment of intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) after installing about 400 more than the 1,054 land based ICBMs that the United States has.

He added that in February and March, a new type of missile silo had been detected in Russia that raised fears of a new ICBM program.

"More recent evidence confirms the sobering fact that the Soviet Union is involved in a new —and apparently extensive —ICBM construction program," Laird said.

"This new ICBM construction effort coupled with additional momentum in the strategic defensive area —all clearly planned months ago —must be of major concern."

Laird said the Russians also were "rapidly closing the gap" in submarine based missiles, an area where today the United States has had a clear advantage.

"We sincerely hope for convincing progress in SALT," Laird said. "But failing such progress I must tell you today that the renewed Soviet strategic weapons momentum may confront us with the need for additional offsetting U.S. actions."

Laird said he believed the American public might settle for nuclear parity with Russia. "But under no circumstances, in my view, would the American people be willing to settle for inferiority," he declared.

And he told the publishers he hopes for "trust and confidence of members of the press but that he intends to pursue programs he believes essential to U.S. survival "no matter the criticism it may evoke." "It is through the press that we must seek the understanding and support of the American people," Laird said. "Without that support and full understanding, the goal of lasting peace —so elusive to so many generations before us —will have no chance of success."

During a panel discussion on the third day of their meeting, publishers heard pointed criticism that their papers were concentrating on reporting surface events rather than digging for developing trends of which the events were symptomatic.

20 Kilo Grass Case Bound Over

Four of five persons accused in the sale of 20 kilos of marijuana to narcotics agents last summer have been bound over to Marin Superior Court.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Municipal Court took the case of the fifth person, Gerald Keith Smith, 22, of San Anselmo, under submission. The judge said he will decide within a few days if Smith, who is charged with selling marijuana, is to be bound over.

The five were arrested July 31 after narcotics agents arranged to purchase marijuana at a Tamalpais Valley store. The agents were then taken by one of the accused to a San Anselmo residence to complete the deal.

Ordered to appear in Superior Court May 10 were: Eric De St. Aubin, 36, of no known address, and Peter Lasoff, 25, of Mill Valley, both charged with sale of marijuana; Virginia Jane Lucas, 27, of San Anselmo, and John Albert Lucas, 28, of Sausalito, both charged with possession of marijuana and cocaine.

Explosives, Body Found In Hideaway

SANTA CRUZ UPI — A Black Panther captain was slain and buried in a remote mountain retreat used as a revolutionary bomb factory, authorities disclosed yesterday.

Besides finding a large quantity of explosives, investigators uncovered human remains which are believed to be those of Fred Bennett, a Black Panther captain who was last seen publicly in November.

Santa Cruz County District Attorney Peter Cheng said the case was being investigated by local, state and federal agents.

Bennet, 25, was lured to the remote hideout and shot through the head. His body was buried and bones crushed into the ground with a shovel.

The motive for the execution of Bennett, a Stanford University graduate student and frequent Panther rally speaker, allegedly was a disapproved romance with a woman Panther.

He was murdered about Jan. 6 police said.

The body was found several weeks later at the mountain retreat, which was surrounded by wire. It was unoccupied when raided by police.

Two other Black Panther members were being sought for questioning.

One was identified as a teaching assistant at the University of California at Santa Cruz who has a record of frequent arrests.

Another Panther sought for questioning is a former chemical engineering student at Stanford who was reportedly expert with electronics and explosives. He disappeared while awaiting trial on charges of assaulting police.

Guilty Verdict In Larkspur Case

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday found Paul Waldmar Brust, 25, of San Francisco, guilty of burglarizing Eubanks' Florist in Larkspur Dec. 30.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated five hours before returning its verdict on the fifth day of the trial.

Judge Henry J. Broderick ordered Brust to return to court May 26 for sentencing.

Hub Trustees Set Tax Vote

Despite reservations by some trustees, the San Anselmo School District last night agreed to hold an election in July on an 80-cent override tax.

The increase, if approved by voters July 13, would increase the operational tax rate from this year's maximum of $2.25 to $3.05 per $100 assessed valuation. A total tax rate of $3.44 was levied this year of which $2.06 was operational tax.

Last night's 4-0 vote, with trustee Eugene E. Jacks abstaining, culminated about four months of discussion by the board.

(Jacks, who won in his reelection bid to the board yesterday has opposed the election in the past.)

Trustee Mary Helen Olive, who two weeks ago also voted against going to election, last night switched her position to close ranks with other trustees.

"I still think it's a bad time for the election," she said today, "but if people want the opportunity to vote they should be given that opportunity."

According to Supt. W. Kenneth Lowry, the board following its vote set a special meeting for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Red Hill School to discuss election preparations and for further budget review.

"Both as a superintendent and as a private individual, I have to congratulate the board on their position," Lowry said. "It was reached after a great deal of soul searching."

He said the meeting was attended by about 50 persons, none of whom spoke in opposition to the election. There was applause after the board's vote, he said.

Lowry, in January, told the board the tax rate must be increased to cover deficit spending which has been eating budget reserves at the rate of $100,000 per year.

Should the tax increase election fail, he said, certain education and building programs will have to be reduced to balance next year's budget. Reserves now stand at $50,000.

The July election represents the first request since 1963 by the district for an override. If approved it will bring the operational tax in line with that of neighboring Fairfax School District, Lowry said.

Mrs. Olive said an important part of her switch in position stems for assurances the tax rate increase will suffice for another two to four years.

"It wouldn't make much sense to hold an election this year and then again next," she said.

"I felt the superintendent has worked hard to establish a new direction for the district and it is fitting that the district (voters) have the opportunity to communicate to him their support of his management and programs," she said.

Lowry said .50 cents of the override is needed just to keep existing staff and programs and the remaining .30 cents will be used only at the direction of the board. It could be kept in reserve or used for expanding or creating needed programs, he said.

Help Asked In Programs At Schools

The Fairfax School District board last night asked the staff to suggest programs to improve the schools in the district.

At its April 6 meeting, the board decided against grade changes at Central and Deer Park schools, making one for kindergarten through third grade and the other fourth through sixth grades, said Supt. H. Reginald Hammond.

The board wants to keep each school kindergarten through sixth grade, but asked for ideas on improving the program, Hammond said. These plans are to be submitted May 4.

The Fairfax School District board also:

AUDIT — Approved firm of Sleezer and Eckhoff conducting the annual audit at $750.

CALENDAR — Tentatively approved the 1971-72 school calendar of 177 days starting Sept. 13 and closing June 13. It will be given final approval if the Tamalpais High School District adopts the same calendar, Hammond said.

CLOSED MEETING — Held a closed meeting for 20 minutes to discuss charges against an employee, but took no action after the meeting.

Mill Valley Write-In Votes Out

An attempt to register a protest against the Mill Valley School District board through write-in of two opposition candidates foundered on the state Elections Code yesterday.

An informal organization of parents sought to promote write-in of Robert House and William Broderick in the election, in which incumbents Joseph E. Bodovitz and John Robinson were unopposed.

They learned to their dismay, however, that the votes would not be counted.

Peter C. Meyer, county elections officer, cited section 18603 of the Elections Code, passed by the legislature in 1968, which says:"No name written in on a ballot shall be counted unless a declaration of candidacy has been filed." He said House and Broderick could have qualified as write-in candidates by registering their names. Such registration may be made anytime until eight days before the election.

Mrs. Marjorie Mahl, one of the promoters of the write-in, said its intent had been to register a protest against the incumbent board members, with no expectation of electing the write-in candidates.

There was only a 17 per cent turnout of voters in Mill Valley.

Red Hill Plan Wins Approval

Preliminary plans for a five-unit apartment building on Tiburon's Red Hill were approved last night by the city's design review board.

Planning Aide Jeanne MacLean said the board asked applicants Peter Gonzales and Robert Hadley to submit more detailed plans covering parking, access, exterior lighting and landscaping, when they become available.

She said the owner of an adjacent apartment building asked the board to make sure a private driveway leading to his property would not be torn up by construction activities.

The new apartments will be built at 1212 Mariner Way, she said.

Three Change Pleas In Marijuana Case

Three of four men facing narcotics charges stemming from a 1969 raid in Inverness changed their pleas to guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

John Brad McCall, 23, of Mill Valley, and James Willard Clapp, 22, of La Habre, Orange County, both pleaded guilty to the sale of marijuana. Charges of possessing marijuana for sale and conspiring to sell marijuana were then dismissed.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered the pair to return to court June 1 for sentencing.

Craig R. Westling, 23, of Inverness, pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana for sale. Charges of selling and conspiring to sell the drug were dismissed.

The three were arrested in May 1969 when agents raided an Inverness house and seized what they thought was $100,000 worth of hashish. Tests later showed that the brick-like substance confiscated was marijuana mixed with something like molasses.

Agents said, however, that the men were selling the substance as hashish.

A bench warrant was issued last week for John Lipinsky. 23. formerly of Inverness, the fourth man facing charges stemming from the raid.

Westling yesterday also pleaded guilty to a separate charge of possessing marijuana when he was arrested at his home March 23, 1970.

Judge Henry J. Broderick set sentencing of Westling for June 16.

Sentencing In Reduced Charge

Lawrence Tracey Williams, 46, of Novato, has been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court to 20 days in jail for his conviction of misdemeanor drunken driving.

Judge Peter Allen Smith also placed him on probation for two years.

Williams was arrested Dec. 17 on Highway 101 after a high speed chase which ended when he rammed another car near Hamilton Air Force Base, according to the California Highway Patrol.

He was originally charged with felony drunken driving, but pleaded guilty to the reduced misdemeanor charge in February.

Laird: Red ICBM Threat Growing

NEW YORK (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today the Soviet Union had started building a new, extensive ICBM system which "must be of major concern" to the United States.

In view of this, he said, the United States might be forced to take "additional offsetting actions" if the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) in Vienna fail to produce an agreement.

20 Kilo Grass Case Bound Over

Four of five persons accused in the sale of 20 kilos of marijuana to narcotics agents last summer have been bound over to Marin Superior Court.

Guilty Verdict In Larkspur Case

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday found Paul Waldmar Brust, 25, of San Francisco, guilty of burglarizing Eubanks' Florist in Larkspur Dec. 30.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated five hours before returning its verdict on the fifth day of the trial.

Judge Henry J. Broderick ordered Brust to return to court May 26 for sentencing.

Hub Trustees Set Tax Vote

Despite reservations by some trustees, the San Anselmo School District last night agreed to hold an election in July on an 80-cent override tax.

The increase, if approved by voters July 13, would increase the operational tax rate from this year's maximum of $2.25 to $3.05 per $100 assessed valuation. A total tax rate of $3.44 was levied this year of which $2.06 was operational tax.

Last night's 4-0 vote, with trustee Eugene E. Jacks abstaining, culminated about four months of discussion by the board.

Help Asked In Programs At Schools

The Fairfax School District board last night asked the staff to suggest programs to improve the schcols in the district.

At its April 6 meeting, the board decided against grade changes at Central and Deer Park schools, making one for kindergarten through third grade and the other fourth through sixth grades, said Supt. H. Reginald Hammond.

The board wants to keep each school kindergarten through sixth grade, but asked for ideas on improving the program, Hammond said. These plans are to be submitted May 4.

The Fairfax School District board also:

The new apartments will be built at 1212 Mariner Way, she said.

Three Change Pleas In Marijuana Case

Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered the pair to return to court June 1 for sentencing.

Action On Ross Budget Is Delayed

Ross School District board has delayed action on a revised budget proposal of $569,672 for next school year, a 7.9 per cent increase over this year's budget, according to Supt. Thomas A. Anderson.

The new proposal represents an increase of $45,031 over this year's budget of $526,641 with a tax rate of $3.28 per $100 assessed valuation.

According to Anderson, most of the meeting Monday night was taken up by general discussion of the second budget draft. The first proposal of $523,896 did not include salary increases, he said.

Action on the budget is expected to be taken at the adjourned meeting at 7:45 p.m. Monday at the Ross School Library, Anderson said.

Other items postponed to the Monday night meeting are the individual salary and fringe benefit recommendations for classified personnel and adoption of the proposed school calendar year.

Adoption was delayed following a request by the Ross School District Certificated Employees Council for time to study the proposal and make recommendations, Anderson said.

The board also voted to request the County Superintendent of Schools contract Sleezer & Eckhoff for the annual audit of district books.

Unruh Hired By Land Developer For Ecology Aid

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Jess Unruh, who unsuccessfully campaigned for governor as a conservationist, has been hired as a consultant by a major land developer of rural recreational subdivisions.

N. K. Mendlesohn, president of North American Towns, Inc., and former developer of controversial California City in the Mojave Desert, said Tuesday Unruh would work as a part-time economic and environmental consultant. He did not disclose the salary arrangement.

Unruh, Democratic speaker of the Assembly for seven years, was defeated last November in his bid to unseat Gov. Ronald Reagan. His campaign was partly based on protecting the natural environment.

Mendelsohn, who plans to develop 25,000 acres of land in southern Shasta County, said Unruh will work on "problems of the environment and economic feasibility."

Takes 10 Lashes As Punishment For Child Abuse

NORTH LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Ethridge Eugene Thomas, 23, took ten lashes on the steps of City Hall Tuesday rather than serve 20 days in jail.

Thomas admitted beating Patricia Smith, 4, with a belt March 6 at the home of the girl's mother. Authorities said Patricia suffered only bruises. Thomas said he punished Patricia because she did not clean up her room while he was visiting her mother, his girl friend.

Municipal Judge Ray Daines handed down the sentence and fined Thomas $200. The judge told him he could either spend 20 days in jail or take 10 lashes.

Strong Quake Felt Near Aleutian Chain

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—A strong earthquake centered near the Aleutians registered about 5 3-4 on the Richter scale of the University of California seismograph.

A spokesman said it struck at 1:48 a.m. EST today and was centered about 2,500 miles northwest of Berkeley.

COMPUTER CENTER FOR LUCAS GREEN — Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies proposes to construct this 123,000-square foot facility west of Highway 101 at Lucas Valley Road. The center would have three stories facing Highway 101 and two stories on the side fronting Los Gamos Drive. Completion is tentatively scheduled for 1973.

Marin May Get Computer Plant

A three-story, 123,000-square foot computer center employing 500 persons will be built by Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies on its recently purchased Lucas Green property north of San Rafael.

Plans were unveiled last night by Fireman's Fund executives at a dinner hosted by the Marin Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau at which a group of Marin County officials and businessmen was told that the computer facility is being tentatively scheduled for completion in 1973.

Fireman's Fund president Louis W. Niggeman, a Kentfield resident, said original plans to request annexation of the 38 acres at Highway 101 and Lucas Valley Road to the City of San Rafael were being deferred "in order to review the possibility of remaining within the county and determine which course would be in the best interest of the community and the company."

The decision whether to ask for annexation is expected next month, following meetings with representatives of Marinwood and Terra Linda community services districts and other organizations opposing or favoring the annexation. In either case the company would request rezoning of the property, which is not now zoned for administrative and professional use.

Construction on the computer center is expected to begin after the company's decision on requesting annexation. The building would be located at the west side of the property, with three stories facing Highway 101 and two stories on the side fronting Los Gamos Drive. Architects for the project are Page, Clowdsley and Baleix.

It will be constructed of textured pre-cast concrete, with bronze-tinted windows and will have extensive landscaping in a park-like setting. Usage of the remainder of the 38 acres has not yet been determined, but Niggeman said land studies are being made and it is expected that some of the land will be needed for future expansion.

He said Fireman's Fund decided about a year ago to move part of the facilities from headquarters in San Francisco to somewhere else in the Bay Area and since many of the employees live in Marin this seemed to be the logical place to look for a site.

Executive vice president Stuart D. Menist, also a resident of Kentfield, said two separate surveys showed that many Marin residents now working outside the county would prefer to work in Marin.

The commercial fish catch in Peru is more than 7 million tons a year.

Strawberry Delay Asked

The Strawberry Recreation District Board has asked for a delay in a hearing on a 330-unit apartment project in Strawberry until it can evaluate the development's impact on the district.

Clerk Jeanne Heick said the board last night told its attorney, Stephen H. Kaufmann, to request the Marin County Planning Commission to delay the hearing which had been set for Monday.

The development, proposed by Sea-Port Development Co. of Sausalito, would cover 24 acres east of Highway 101 between Belvedere and West Strawberry drives.

Mrs. Heick said a representative of the firm was to have discussed the development with directors last night but did not attend the adjourned meeting.

In other business, the board told Kaufmann to prepare a five-year lease with the Strawberry Swim Club at a sixfold increase in rent.

The new lease, which will run until Nov. 30, 1976, will be for $3,000 per year. The club currently rents the district's swimming pool for $500 a year.

Mrs. Heick said the new lease allows the club to increase monthly dues from $7.50 to $8.50 to cover the higher rent.

The board also hired Maureen Callon, of 178 Glen Park Drive, San Rafael, as the summer swimming program director. She will be paid $500 for the season, Mrs. Heick said.

Routine Procedure For Manson At San Quentin

Convicted murderer Charles Manson will be processed routinely when he arrives at San Quentin Prison, a prison official said today.

Associate Warden James W. L. Park said no special arrangement is being made for Manson, sentenced to die for the Tate and Labianca murders in 1969.

"We're making no special precautions," he said. "We're prepared to process him in a routine manner. We have no reason to anticipate any particular problems."

Manson, who is now on trial in Los Angeles in another murder case, must be moved to the prison before April 29 — within 10 days of the pronouncement of his death sentence, Park said. Only a court order can change that procedure.

Park said Manson probably will be brought to the prison by the Los Angeles sheriff's office, check in and then return to stand trial.

Park, who said he has not been notified when the hippie cult leader will arrive, said he did not know whether the Los Angeles sheriff was planning any special transfer arrangements.

Group Alarmed By Development Plans

A group of Sausalito residents who want to halt development of a heavily wooded area in the city's hills were told by the city council last night to discuss their ideas with the city manager and the developer. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 6)

Dr. Stephen L. Davis presented the council with a petition signed by about 230 residents calling for preservation of an area known as "The Glen' at 61 Cazneau Avenue. "This is the last stretch of undeveloped live creek in Sausalito,' he told the council. "And this land is about to be massively developed as a housing tract, with most of its trees cut down and its beauty lost.' '

The petitioners asked the city to acquire the land as a park, either through a bond issue or a city-wide assessment district and also want development and tree cutting halted until the issue is studied.

Developer Fred De Cook, who plans to build five houses in the glen, agreed last night to cease work in the area for30 days, to give residents time to see what can be accomplished. He declined to name the purchase price for the property.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said he had learned an assessment district could be set up within a few weeks to finance the project and agreed to meet with DeCook and Davis to discuss the matter.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

CLUSTER HOUSING — Passed an ordinance permitting planned unit development (housing clustered on a parcel, with resultant open space around the units) in single-family residential areas.

PARKING FINES — Passed a resolution raising fines for violation of city parking ordinances: expired meter, overtime parking, improper parking and parking in a red zone will be raised from $2 to $5; meter violations with overtime parking, from $4 to $6 and parking in a red zone from $2 to $7.

BUS PLAN — Approved — in principle — a proposal by Marin Transit Systems to operate a tour bus service from downtown Sausalito to other scenic areas of Marin County, such as Muir Woods and Stinson Beach.

USE PERMIT — Granted a 30-day extension on a conditional use permit to the Mobile Oil Co. to allow the firm more time to submit final plans for reconstruction of a service station at Second and Main streets.

CITY SHARE — Indicated the city would be willing to pay abut $2,000 of a $4,800 cost to improve an unpaved portion of Cazneau Avenue, if residents will come up with the remainder of the funds needed.

MEETING — Set a special meeting to consider agenda items not completed last night for next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in city hall. A budget study session will follow the special meeting.

Assault Reports By Petalumans

Two Petaluma residents were assaulted yesterday, according to police.

Pat Melahcea, 437 Garfield Drive, said she heard noises in her garage at 11:20 p.m. and saw two teen-age boys there when she investigated. She said one of the youths struck her left eye with his fist before they fled into a nearby field.

Mel Giambastiani, 1325 Glenwood Drive, said he had an argument with a man in a bar and that the man followed him home last night. After several minutes of arguing, he said the man drew a hatchet from behind his back and threatened him. Giambastiani said he and his wife, Irene, managed to take the hatchet from him as he fled.

Zoning Hearing

The Sausalito Planning Commission will continue public hearings on proposed amendments to regulations in zones which will be included in the central waterfront area at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The hearings will focus on regulations in resident-commercial zones.

Ferry Limit Asked For Bridge District System

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Harbor Carriers, operator of the Tiburon commuter ferry and of bay sightseeing cruises, yesterday urged the Legislature to bar the Golden Gate Bridge District from operating ferries midday on weekdays and on weekends.

Even with the lucrative weekend tourist business, the bridge district expects an annual loss of $1.3 million on its planned ferry system.

The plea by the president of Harbor Carriers, Albert D. Elledge, however, apparently was a tactical error. His proposed bar to district ferry operations went much further than one suggested by a member of the special subcommittee hearing the district's transit plan.

The milder prohibition was suggested by Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Salinas. He moved that the transportation subcommittee go on record opposing any excursion and sightseeing operations by the bridge district, but subcommittee chairman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, ruled his motion out of order until testimony was completed.

Wood did not offer his motion again, and told newsmen that Harbor Carriers had "lost points" by urging a broader ban on district ferry operations. He said he would not support the ban urged by Elledge.

(Bridge officials assured the subcommittee last week that their ferry plans were only for point-to-point transportation, and included no excursion or sightseeing operations.)

Claude Greerty, lobbyist for Elledge's company, testified that "we only want to remain in business — that's all." Questioned by Foran, Greerty conceded that weekend ferries would relieve bridge traffic, but insisted that ferries still were"basically for sightseeing."

Elledge added that if there had been a demand for more ferry service, he would have met it. "I don't think ferryboats are the answer," he said.

Harbor Carriers' objections came in a three-hour hearing on the district's transit plan for the next decade. The plan calls for spending $331 million for an interim ferry and conventional bus system and phased development of a bus rapid transit transit system using tunnels in downtown San Francisco and a second deck on the bridge.

Criticism of the plan also came from the Greater San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, whose spokesman said the district should be replaced with an agency representing Marin, San Francisco and "possibly Sonoma" counties. This would remove Napa, Mendocino and Del Norte counties.

Donald M. Van Dyke of Novato, a member of the chamber, criticized as "unfortunate" the fact thet Rep. Foran's law partner, Stephan C. Leonoudakis, was a director of the bridge district. Foran, reddening, twice asked Van Dyke if he thought "that has anything to do with anything?" but Van Dyke refused to answer.

A third chamber spokesman, Vincent J. Roggeveen, who earlier this year proposed a scaled-down commuter bus system for the district, gave a dissertation on how the district could be reorganized. Roggeveen, an associate professor of transportation planning at Stanford University, suggested that the bridge board be directly elected.

He also suggested that maintenance costs of the bridge come from state gas taxes, but Foran noted this was "another major political problem." Gas taxes already maintain state bridges, but Southern California politicians strongly object because most of the bridges are in Northern California, he said.

Roggeveen's testimony was scored by Margaret Azevedo, Marin County planning commissioner and chairman of the citizens panel that advised the district on its plan. "We're interested in what works, not what looks good on paper in a textbook," she said. The district was "very politically responsible," she said.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, said the committee should insist that the district continue to support Marin County Transit Systems, the Marin City-based bus corporation. He said the company "should be given every possible opportunity to grow into a profitable enterprise."

Testifying in favor of the bridge district's plan, mostly in arguments made in previous hearings were Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum and spokesmen for the Marin Council for Civic Affairs, the transportation committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin and the League of Women Voters of Central Marin.

William L. McCracken, general counsel of Greyhound Lines-West, in a statement prepared for delivery to the subcommittee, also supported the plan, "particularly the implementation of its interim bus program which is intended to replace Greyhound in Marin."

Foran said that a third hearing would be held on the plan at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Capitol.

Business And Education Session

Industrial and Educational leaders from throughout Marin County will meet tomorrow at the College of Marin to exchange ideas on closer cooperation between business and education.

The workshop, to be held at 3:45 p.m. at Olney Hall, is sponsored by the Marin Industry Education Council and is aimed at determining what contribution industry and the schools can make to each other.

Among items to be discussed is a listing of speakers from industry available to discuss their professions with students.

Psychological Look At The My Lai Tragedy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — My Lai massacres of women and children occur because soldiers feel they have the collective permission of their own people, the Western Psychological Association convention was told today.

"The conscience of the individual is stilled by a process of sanctioning, by an implicit agreement as to who the bad people are," said Nevitt Sanford, director of the Wright Institution.

"General miitary policy legitimatized the killing of Vietnamese," he said. "Our attitude toward Asians has never been favorable, and if the Asians seek to be Communists, then we see the devil."

Sanford was discussing social destructiveness, meaning actions by groups of people who murder, torture and enslave.

"Uusually it's because they believe that it's right," he said.

Bagley Introduces Bill To Pay For Beach Sewage System

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to help pay for treating sewage from Stinson Beach State Park has been introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The Stinson Beach County Water District is about to build a joint sewage system with the Bolinas Community Public Utility District at a cost of over $2 million.

Bagley's measure, citing the "undue burden" upon the small community of paying for state park sewage, would authorize the Parks and Recreation Department to share the cost. Amount of the state subsidy was blank in the bill as introduced, but Bagley's office said it would be about $200,000.

A similar measure was carried two years ago by former Sen. John F. McCarthy, but it lost because of opposition from the department. Bagley's bill, unlike McCarthy's, would finance the department's cost from the general fund, not from department funds.

Assemblyman Bagley also introduced the following bills:

STUDENTS — Appropriates $6.2 million to the Educational Opportunity Program at the University of California for low-income students who do not meet grade requirements but show promise. It was asked by the Associated Students of the University of California.

PROBATE — Simplifies uncontested probate proceedings by providing for filings with court clerks instead of with judges. Pending amendments will provide for administrative handling of probate proceedings, eliminating the need for hiring an attorney, and will require probate of a will within three years of death.

CREDIT — Authorizes the state to issue revenue anticipation notes when the state runs out of cash next fall.

WELFARE — Makes new welfare regulations effective in 30 days instead of immediately to allow time for court appeal of new regulations before they are implemented.

Tamalpais High Plan Due On 'Sounding Board'

The proposal to test the Tamalpais High School District reorganization plan at one high school instead of all three, will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

David D. Ring, president of the Tamalpais High School District board of trustees, Frank L. Miller and Robert W. Corlett, both trustees, and Dr. Surjit Singh, chairman of a committee which studied the plan, will be on the panel.

Supt. Wilbert D. Hawkins and Philip H. Pease, president of the district teachers' association, accepted the invitation to be on the program, then decided not to appear, said Moderator Kitty Oppenheimer.

Questions phoned in, will be answered on the broadcast tomorrow. The program will be repeated by tape-recording at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Youth Conference

John W. Brewer, Marin County probation officer, is a delegate to the 1971 White House Conference on Youth at Estes Park, Colo. The conference, which ends Friday, is aimed at better communications between young people and adults in both government and non-governmental positions.

Sex Film Club Sues Police For 'Harassment'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Owners of a nightclub featuring sex films and nude dancers filed a $4 million lawsuit against a dozen San Francisco police officers Tuesday charging them with harassment and attempts to drive them out of business.

Attorney Michael Kennedy, representing owners of the Outer Limits nightclub, charged police with making 23 "harassing raids" on the spot in the last year. He charged "unlawful, illegal, fascistic tactics by certain policemen who decide to take the law into their own hands."

Kennedy said the club has paid out more than $70,000 in "exorbitant" bail charges since the raids began last April 28.

He accused the officers of conspiracy to bring high-bail felony charges against the owners and operators—all of which have since been tossed out of court.

Ferry Limit Asked For Bridge District System

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Harbor Carriers, operator of the Tiburon commuter ferry and of bay sightseeing cruises, yesterday urged the Legislature to bar the Golden Gate Bridge District from operating ferries midday on weekdays and on weekends.

Even with the lucrative weekend tourist business, the bridge district expects an annual loss of $1.3 million on its planned ferry system.

The plea by the president of Harbor Carriers, Albert D. Elledge, however, apparently was a tactical error. His proposed bar to district ferry operations went much further than one suggested by a member of the special subcommittee hearing the district's transit plan.

The milder prohibition was suggested by Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Salinas. He moved that the transportation subcommittee go on record opposing any excursion and sightseeing operations by the bridge district, but subcommittee chairman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, ruled his motion out of order until testimony was completed.

Wood did not offer his motion again, and told newsmen that Harbor Carriers had "lost points" by urging a broader ban on district ferry operations. He said he would not support the ban urged by Elledge.

(Bridge officials assured the subcommittee last week that their ferry plans were only for point-to-point transportation, and included no excursion or sightseeing operations.)

Claude Greerty, lobbyist for Elledge's company, testified that "we only want to remain in business — that's all." Questioned by Foran, Greerty conceded that weekend ferries would relieve bridge traffic, but insisted that ferries still were "basically for sightseeing."

Elledge added that if there had been a demand for more ferry service, he would have met it. "I don't think ferryboats are the answer," he said.

Harbor Carriers' objections came in a three-hour hearing on the district's transit plan for the next decade. The plan calls for spending $331 million for an interim ferry and conventional bus system and phased development of a bus rapid transit transit system using tunnels in downtown San Francisco and a second deck on the bridge.

Criticism of the plan - also came from the Greater San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, whose spokesman said the district should be replaced with an agency representing Marin, San Francisco and "possibly Sonoma" counties. This would remove Napa, Mendocino and Del Norte counties.

Donald M. Van Dyke of Novato, a member of the chamber, criticized as "unfortunate" the fact thet Rep. Foran's law partner, Stephan C. Leonoudakis, was a director of the bridge district. Foran, reddening, twice asked Van Dyke if he thought "that has anything to do with anything?" but Van Dyke refused to answer.

A third chamber spokesman, Vincent J. Roggeveen, who earlier this year proposed a scaled-down commuter bus system for the district, gave a dissertation on how the district could be reorganized. Roggeveen, an associate professor of transportation planning at Stanford University, suggested that the bridge board be directly elected.

He also suggested that maintenance costs of the bridge come from state gas taxes, but Foran noted this was "another major political problem." Gas taxes already maintain state bridges, but Southern California politicians strongly object because most of the bridges are in Northern California, he said.

Roggeveen's testimony was scored by Margaret Azevedo, Marin County planning commissioner and chairman of the citizens panel that advised the district on its plan. "We're interested in what works, not what looks good on paper in a textbook," she said. The district was "very politically responsible," she said.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, said the committee should insist that the district continue to support Marin County Transit Systems, the Marin City-based bus corporation. He said the company "should be given every possible opportunity to grow into a profitable enterprise."

Testifying in favor of the bridge district's plan, mostly in arguments made in previous hearings were Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum and spokesmen for the Marin Council for Civic Affairs, the transportation committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin and the League of Women Voters of Central Marin.

William L. McCracken, general counsel of Greyhound Lines-West, in a statement prepared for delivery to the subcommittee, also supported the plan, "particularly the implementation of its interim bus program which is intended to replace Greyhound in Marin."

Foran said that a third hearing would be held on the plan at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Capitol.

Business And Education Session

Industrial and Educational leaders from throughout Marin County will meet tomorrow at the College of Marin to exchange ideas on closer cooperation between business and education.

The workshop, to be held at 3:45 p.m. at Olney Hall, is sponsored by the Marin Industry Education Council and is aimed at determining what contribution industry and the schools can make to each other.

Among items to be discussed is a listing of speakers from industry available to discuss their professions with students.

Sex Film Club Sues Police For 'Harassment'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Owners of a nightclub featuring sex films and nude dancers filed a $4 million lawsuit against a dozen San Francisco police officers Tuesday charging them with harassment and attempts to drive them out of business.

Attorney Michael Kennedy, representing owners of the Outer Limits nightclub, charged police with making 23 "harassing raids" on the spot in the last year. He charged "unlawful, illegal, fascistic tactics by certain policemen who decide to take the law into their own hands."

Kennedy said the club has paid out more than $70,000 in "exorbitant" bail charges since the raids began last April 28.

Harmony Among GOP Governors

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —Republican governors have come out of a five-month cooling off period with a restored feeling of unity with the Nixon administration.

The open grumbling and even hostility towards the role of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew during the 1970 election campaign, which cost the GOP a net loss of 11 governors, has vanished.

But there were new rumbles of discontent from the liberal wing of the party toward Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, new national GOP chairman who has supplanted Agnew as the bare knuckle fighter ready to square off against any Democratic critic of the administration. Dole's speeches and literature from his party headquarters are causing uneasiness among Republicans in some of the liberal eastern states.

The final official product of the spring meeting of the Republican Governors Association was a statement drafted at a private luncheon Tuesday which welcomed the visits of both Nixon and Agnew and their support of revenue sharing and welfare reform.

"An examination of the last 70 years of American history bears witness to the fact that Richard M. Nixon stands above all his 20th century predecessors in dedication to effective federalism," the statement said.

Cyclists Will Perform Noise Test In Pastoral West Marin

A dozen motorcycle riders will cavort over the Anita Gambonini Ranch in West Marin Saturday morning to show county supervisors how much racket the motorcycles create.

On the basis of this field test, supervisors will decide whether or not the Marin Motorcycle Association should be allowed to use the Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road for riding.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Arnold M. Baptiste, and possibly Michael Wornum, will meet the cyclists at the ranch at 10 a.m. Saturday. Chairman Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis said they had other commitments.

Arrigoni and Baptiste will report their findings to the board of supervisors at 1:45 p.m. next Tuesday.

The decision to visit the scene came late yesterday after a lengthy debate between motorcycle enthusiasts and owners of an adjoining ranch who plan a subdivision of secluded homes.

Attorney Thomas Elke of San Anselmo, representing the adjacent landowners, said his clients had invested $980,000 on the property, creating a dam and a mile-long lake. Benjamin P. Bonelli and the Pacific Bridge Co., headed by William Swiegert, bought the property more than six years ago. They declared that the hills on their ranch make sound reverberate, and motorcycle riding on the neighboring Gambonini Ranch would kill their development.

Motorcycle enthusiasts, headed by Gerald M. Diaz and Merle Greenblat of the Marin Motorcycle Association, replied that the closest riding trail on the Gambonini Ranch would be a half-mile or more from the closest home on the neighboring ranch.

They said mufflers and other strict controls imposed by the association members make motorcycle riding quite compatible with horses, cows and people.

Russell Sanford, legislative advocate for the Motorcycle Associations of California, reported that Marin has more than 16,000 motorcycles and more than 20,000 cycle enthusiasts.

Motorcycle spokesmen asked for a legal place to ride, pointing out that they have as much right to pursue their hobbies as golfers, swimmers and horsemen.

Another Bombing At Fresno's Induction Center

FRESNO (UPI) —A bomb exploded in the front door of the Fresno armed forces examining and induction center Tuesday night marking the second time the center has been hit by a bomb within the past six months.

The blast occurred about 11:20 p.m. and police said the device used was unknown. There were no injuries.

Last Nov. 1 a bomb ripped through the front of the induction center and minutes later another explosion rocked the front of the Fresno Guide newspaper, located across the street.

Legal Aid Space Plea Is Rejected

The Legal Aid Society of Marin County, which is looking for an old building in a low-rent area for use as headquarters, made an unsuccessful pitch yesterday to the county board of supervisors for space in the Old Courthouse Building in downtown San Rafael.

David C. Phillips, chairman of the society board, told the supervisors its lease on a small building at 612 D Street in San Rafael expires May 23 and the rent will be raised from $300 to $400 a month.

Supervisors decided that the old courthouse cannot be used because utilities are in bad shape and maintenance is a big problem.

Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — Reappointed Richard Harding to another four-year term on the Marin Redevelopment Agency; and named Kevin Dearth of Novato to the Ad Hoc Motorcycle Committee, a 10-man group which will investigate areas and rules for cycle riding.

STATE CUTBACKS — Protested against bills introduced in Sacramento which would cut state reimbursements to counties. One is state aid for legal defense of indigents, and another is the $15,000 annual state aid for the county veterans service office.

FAIRS — Protested Gov. Ronald Reagan's budget for 1971-72 which calls for a 10 per cent cut in operating funds for county fairs and a 65 per cent cut in capital outlay funds which are used by counties to improve their fair sites.

FLOOD PLAIN — Asked the county counsel to draw up an interim ordinance that would designate Novato Creek and its tributaries as a "flood plain area" and regulate developments in that area. A public hearing on that interim ordinance will be held on May 18.

PARK GRANTS — Authorized the parks and recreation director to apply for federal grants for park acquisition and development for the coming fiscal year.

BELLO BEACH — Transferred a surplus 1951 county fire truck to the Bello Beach Volunteer Fire Company, a newly formed group at Muir Beach.

STATE COMPENSATION — Received a $72,000 refund from the State Compensation Insurance Fund because of the county's fine safety record for the past three years.

Supervisors Will Take Budget Woes To Capital

Marin County supervisors will head for Sacramento, probably next week, to seek some relief from the biggest budget headache in the history of the county.

The county's basic tax rate, which is at a record $2.575 per $100 assessed valuation, is due for another meteoric rise this year, largely because of costs beyond county control.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell yesterday listed these major increases in costs that can be expected for the 1971-72 fiscal year:

1. Security will cost more at the Civic Center with about 30 men added to the security force at $500,000 more next year plus another $200,000 for overtime.

2. The trial for Angela Y. Davis and Ruchell Magee, estimated conservatively to take 100 days, will cost the county about $980,000.

3. Based on a number of bills proposed in Sacramento, including the Governor's tax shift program, Marin County could face up to $2,000,000 per year in increased county welfare costs. Mitchell said that under the Governor's tax shift program, the state would pay for old age security and aid for the blind, but more of the responsibility for Aid to Families with Dependent Children will be shifted to counties.

4. Higher wages, even if held to 5 per cent would mean $1,663,000 in added cost.

The county supervisors have control of the last item, but the first three, involving more than $3.5 million in extra cost, are beyond the control of the county, Mitchell pointed out.

"We should go talk to the people in Sacramento before we go into this year's budget," said Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

Chairman Louis H. Baar suggested that the supervisors have a long chat with Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr, both R-San Rafael, to see if the county cannot get some state aid.

Marin County has been unsuccessful so far in convincing the state that the cost of the Davis-Magee trial and the increased security at the Civic Center and Hall of Justice should be borne, at least in part, by the state. If all the cost is shifted to the Marin taxpayers, they are likely to revolt, said Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste.

"The whole problem is that your board is being boxed in," warned Mitchell. "You are going into a budget session with very little control over the budget unless your legislators can overturn the present trend."

(UPI Telephoto)

Harmony Among GOP Governors

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —Republican governors have come out of a five-month cooling off period with a restored feeling of unity with the Nixon administration.

The open grumbling and even hostility towards the role of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew during the 1970 election campaign, which cost the GOP a net loss of 11 governors, has vanished.

But there were new rumbles of discontent from the liberal wing of the party toward Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, new national GOP chairman who has supplanted Agnew as the bare knuckle fighter ready to square off against any Democratic critic of the administration. Dole's speeches and literature from his party headquarters are causing uneasiness among Republicans in some of the liberal eastern states.

The final official product of the spring meeting of the Republican Governors Association was a statement drafted at a private luncheon Tuesday which welcomed the visits of both Nixon and Agnew and their support of revenue sharing and welfare reform.

"An examination of the last 70 years of American history bears witness to the fact that Richard M. Nixon stands above all his 20th century predecessors in dedication to effective federalism," the statement said.

Cyclists Will Perform Noise Test In Pastoral West Marin

A dozen motorcycle riders will cavort over the Anita Gambonini Ranch in West Marin Saturday morning to show county supervisors how much racket the motorcycles create.

On the basis of this field test, supervisors will decide whether or not the Marin Motorcycle Association should be allowed to use the Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road for riding.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Arnold M. Baptiste, and possibly Michael Wornum, will meet the cyclists at the ranch at 10 a.m. Saturday. Chairman Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis said they had other commitments.

Arrigoni and Baptiste will report their findings to the board of supervisors at 1:45 p.m. next Tuesday.

The decision to visit the scene came late yesterday after a lengthy debate between motorcycle enthusiasts and owners of an adjoining ranch who plan a subdivision of secluded homes.

Attorney Thomas Elke of San Anselmo, representing the adjacent landowners, said his clients had invested $980,000 on the property, creating a dam and a mile-long lake. Benjamin P. Bonelli and the Pacific Bridge Co., headed by William Swiegert, bought the property more than six years ago. They declared that the hills on their ranch make sound reverberate, and motorcycle riding on the neighboring Gambonini Ranch would kill their development.

Motorcycle enthusiasts, headed by Gerald M. Diaz and Merle Greenblat of the Marin Motorcycle Association, replied that the closest riding trail on the Gambonini Ranch would be a half-mile or more from the closest home on the neighboring ranch.

They said mufflers and other strict controls imposed by the association members make motorcycle riding quite compatible with horses, cows and people.

Russell Sanford, legislative advocate for the Motorcycle Associations of California, reported that Marin has more than 16,000 motorcycles and more than 20,000 cycle enthusiasts.

Motorcycle spokesmen asked for a legal place to ride, pointing out that they have as much right to pursue their hobbies as golfers, swimmers and horsemen.

Another Bombing At Fresno's Induction Center

FRESNO (UPI) —A bomb exploded in the front door of the Fresno armed forces examining and induction center Tuesday night marking the second time the center has been hit by a bomb within the past six months.

The blast occurred about 11:20 p.m. and police said the device used was unknown. There were no injuries.

Last Nov. 1 a bomb ripped through the front of the induction center and minutes later another explosion rocked the front of the Fresno Guide newspaper, located across the street.

Legal Aid Space Plea Is Rejected

The Legal Aid Society of Marin County, which is looking for an old building in a low-rent area for use as headquarters, made an unsuccessful pitch yesterday to the county board of supervisors for space in the Old Courthouse Building in downtown San Rafael.

David C. Phillips, chairman of the society board, told the supervisors its lease on a small building at 612 D Street in San Rafael expires May 23 and the rent will be raised from $300 to $400 a month.

Supervisors decided that the old courthouse cannot be used because utilities are in bad shape and maintenance is a big problem.

Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — Reappointed Richard Harding to another four-year term on the Marin Redevelopment Agency; and named Kevin Dearth of Novato to the Ad Hoc Motorcycle Committee, a 10-man group which will investigate areas and rules for cycle riding.

STATE CUTBACKS — Protested against bills introduced in Sacramento which would cut state reimbursements to counties. One is state aid for legal defense of indigents, and another is the $15,000 annual state aid for the county veterans service office.

FAIRS — Protested Gov. Ronald Reagan's budget for 1971-72 which calls for a 10 per cent cut in operating funds for county fairs and a 65 per cent cut in capital outlay funds which are used by counties to improve their fair sites.

FLOOD PLAIN — Asked the county counsel to draw up an interim ordinance that would designate Novato Creek and its tributaries as a "flood plain area" and regulate developments in that area. A public hearing on that interim ordinance will be held on May 18.

PARK GRANTS — Authorized the parks and recreation director to apply for federal grants for park acquisition and development for the coming fiscal year.

BELLO BEACH — Transferred a surplus 1951 county fire truck to the Bello Beach Volunteer Fire Company, a newly formed group at Muir Beach.

STATE COMPENSATION — Received a $72,000 refund from the State Compensation Insurance Fund because of the county's fine safety record for the past three years.

Supervisors Will Take Budget Woes To Capital

Marin County supervisors will head for Sacramento, probably next week, to seek some relief from the biggest budget headache in the history of the county.

The county's basic tax rate, which is at a record $2.575 per $100 assessed valuation, is due for another meteoric rise this year, largely because of costs beyond county control.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell yesterday listed these major increases in costs that can be expected for the 1971-72 fiscal year:

1. Security will cost more at the Civic Center with about 30 men added to the security force at $500,000 more next year plus another $200,000 for overtime.

2. The trial for Angela Y. Davis and Ruchell Magee, estimated conservatively to take 100 days, will cost the county about $980,000.

3. Based on a number of bills proposed in Sacramento, including the Governor's tax shift program, Marin County could face up to $2,000,000 per year in increased county welfare costs. Mitchell said that under the Governor's tax shift program, the state would pay for old age security and aid for the blind, but more of the responsibility for Aid to Families with Dependent Children will be shifted to counties.

4. Higher wages, even if held to 5 per cent would mean $1,663,000 in added cost.

The county supervisors have control of the last item, but the first three, involving more than $3.5 million in extra cost, are beyond the control of the county, Mitchell pointed out.

"We should go talk to the people in Sacramento before we go into this year's budget," said Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

Chairman Louis H. Baar suggested that the supervisors have a long chat with Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr, both R-San Rafael, to see if the county cannot get some state aid.

Marin County has been unsuccessful so far in convincing the state that the cost of the Davis-Magee trial and the increased security at the Civic Center and Hall of Justice should be borne, at least in part, by the state. If all the cost is shifted to the Marin taxpayers, they are likely to revolt, said Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste.

"The whole problem is that your board is being boxed in," warned Mitchell. "You are going into a budget session with very little control over the budget unless your legislators can overturn the present trend."

Jobs For Welfare Recipients On Tap

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A program proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to place welfare recipients in jobs with private industry will begin operation this summer as a series of "demonstration projects," a state official said Tuesday.

Gilbert L. Sheffield, director of human resources, told a Town Hall luncheon that the administration "hopes to launch demonstration projects using this concept by the middle of this year."

He said the projects would begin in three counties, but he did not name them.

The employment program, part of Reagan's welfare reform package, involves contracts between local governments and the state.

Social workers would shift the emphasis of their casework "from social services to employment services," Sheffield said, and would be under the jurisdiction of local state employment office managers.

"The guts of the program is to use the existing resources, going into broad and sometimes disconnected social services which do not have a precise goal, and transform them into employment services aimed directly and specifically at getting recipients jobs," Sheffield said.

Various approaches to the problem of getting welfare recipients jobs would be tested in the pilot projects and those that work best would be applied statewide, he said.

Sheffield said able-bodied welfare recipients who cannot finds jobs in private industry would work on public projects "of transitory nature." The goal would be to "move them from these public service jobs into self-sufficient, salaried jobs as rapidly as possible."

Persons long conditioned to welfare who were placed in public jobs, however, would learn to "develop work habits, job discipline and an ability or skill that would enable them to more readily achieve employment in the private sector," Sheffield said.

"Such a public work service program would involve female welfare recipients and a series of day care centers would be set up to take care of their children," he said.

Shortage Of Dentists Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Financial problems may cause a shortage of dentists in the future, the president of the American Dental Association said yesterday.

Dr. John M. Deines, of Seattle, speaking at the dental group's annual convention, said the country "should be building new dental schools." However, instead of that, he said, many existing schools "are in serious financial difficulty."

"There can be no doubt that the current financial crisis in dental education will severely retard efforts to meet growing dental manpower needs," Deines said.

He said the ratio of dentists to the population is expected to be maintained during the 1970s, but he said the number of patient visits is increasing.

He called on the federal government to help dental students pay for their education.

"Unless adequate federal funds are appropriated for dental student loans and scholarships, the already critical situation of many dental students will worsen," he said. "Many of those aspiring to enter dental school will have to give up that ambition."

Pit River Indians Win Court Round

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —U.S. District Court Judge Philip Wilkins has agreed to appoint additional attorneys to defend 35 Pit River Indians charged with trespassing on a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. campground in Shasta County.

Aubrey Grossman, a San Francisco attorney representing the Indians, said another three or four attorneys probably will be appointed. Grossman had waged a lengthy battle in both federal and state courts to have more attorneys named. He has been the Indians' sole attorney.

Wilkins also said he would announce a trial date next Monday.

A group of Indians set up camp on the PG&E property at Four Corners claiming it was part of Northern California land illegally taken from their tribe during the Gold Rush days. Law officers made the arrests as they forcibly removed the Indians from the property.

Mystery Sinking Of Indians' Boat Off Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Alcatraz Indians' 35-foot supply boat, the Clearwater, sank at its mooring on the island Monday night, the Coast Guard reported today.

The vessel had been used to ferry Indians and their supplies to and from the mainland.

The Coast Guard said it sent a helicopter and other search craft to the area this morning after debris was reported in the water to look for survivors.

Indians said no one was injured in the sinking, but gave no explanation for it, the Coast Guard said.

Jobs For Welfare Recipients On Tap

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A program proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to place welfare recipients in jobs with private industry will begin operation this summer as a series of "demonstration projects," a state official said Tuesday.

Gilbert L. Sheffield, director of human resources, told a Town Hall luncheon that the administration "hopes to launch demonstration projects using this concept by the middle of this year."

He said the projects would begin in three counties, but he did not name them.

The employment program, part of Reagan's welfare reform package, involves contracts between local governments and the state.

Social workers would shift the emphasis of their casework "from social services to employment services," Sheffield said, and would be under the jurisdiction of local state employment office managers.

"The guts of the program is to use the existing resources, going into broad and sometimes disconnected social services which do not have a precise goal, and transform them into employment services aimed directly and specifically at getting recipients jobs," Sheffield said.

Various approaches to the problem of getting welfare recipients jobs would be tested in the pilot projects and those that work best would be applied statewide, he said.

Sheffield said able-bodied welfare recipients who cannot finds jobs in private industry would work on public projects "of transitory nature." The goal would be to "move them from these public service jobs into self-sufficient, salaried jobs as rapidly as possible."

Persons long conditioned to welfare who were placed in public jobs, however, would learn to "develop work habits, job discipline and an ability or skill that would enable them to more readily achieve employment in the private sector," Sheffield said.

"Such a public work service program would involve female welfare recipients and a series of day care centers would be set up to take care of their children," he said.

Shortage Of Dentists Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Financial problems may cause a shortage of dentists in the future, the president of the American Dental Association said yesterday.

Dr. John M. Deines, of Seattle, speaking at the dental group's annual convention, said the country "should be building new dental schools." However, instead of that, he said, many existing schools "are in serious financial difficulty."

"There can be no doubt that the current financial crisis in dental education will severely retard efforts to meet growing dental manpower needs," Deines said.

He said the ratio of dentists to the population is expected to be maintained during the 1970s, but he said the number of patient visits is increasing.

He called on the federal government to help dental students pay for their education.

"Unless adequate federal funds are appropriated for dental student loans and scholarships, the already critical situation of many dental students will worsen," he said. "Many of those aspiring to enter dental school will have to give up that ambition."

Pit River Indians Win Court Round

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —U.S. District Court Judge Philip Wilkins has agreed to appoint additional attorneys to defend 35 Pit River Indians charged with trespassing on a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. campground in Shasta County.

Aubrey Grossman, a San Francisco attorney representing the Indians, said another three or four attorneys probably will be appointed. Grossman had waged a lengthy battle in both federal and state courts to have more attorneys named. He has been the Indians' sole attorney.

Wilkins also said he would announce a trial date next Monday.

A group of Indians set up camp on the PG&E property at Four Corners claiming it was part of Northern California land illegally taken from their tribe during the Gold Rush days. Law officers made the arrests as they forcibly removed the Indians from the property.

Mystery Sinking Of Indians' Boat Off Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Alcatraz Indians' 35-foot supply boat, the Clearwater, sank at its mooring on the island Monday night, the Coast Guard reported today.

The vessel had been used to ferry Indians and their supplies to and from the mainland.

The Coast Guard said it sent a helicopter and other search craft to the area this morning after debris was reported in the water to look for survivors.

Indians said no one was injured in the sinking, but gave no explanation for it, the Coast Guard said.

Monster of Vietnam Is 17 Years Old Today

Today is an anniversary — not one that we exactly want to celebrate, but one that should be noted.

It was 17 years ago today — April 21, 1954 — that the United States began flying French troops from Paris to reinforce the French defense of Dienbienphu against an attacking force of Ho Chi Minh's Vietnamese liberation army.

That was the beginning of our involvement.

IT WAS A DEPARTURE from the United States' previous policy of keeping hands off Southeast Asia. It was a departure from the anti-colonialist stand taken during World War II, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt declared that Vietnam must never be returned to France.

It was not returned to the French. After losing at Dienbienphu they pulled out, first negotiating a supposedly temporary partition of Vietnam along the 17th parallel, with Bao Dai, their puppet emperor of Annam, as chief of the new state of South Vietnam. A little over a year later, all French influence vanished when Bao Dai was deposed by overwhelming vote in a national referendum and Ngo Dinh Diem, his prime minister, was made chief of state.

BUT THE UNITED States, which had begun its involvement on behalf of the French by flying their troops to Dienbienphy, remained involved on behalf of the government of Bao Dai — and after him, of Ngo Dinh Diem.

WHEN Diem was overthrown by a palace revolt, the U.S. continued its presence in behalf of a series of successors, down to the present government of Nguyen Van Thieu and Nguyen Cao Ky.

And the involvement grew. From merely furnishing arms and money during President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration, it grew to sending 16,000 "military advisers" during the incumbency of President John F. Kennedy. And while Lyndon B. Johnson was in the White House, it grew to a full-scale American war, with more than half a million American troops fighting in the jungles of Vietnam.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER refused to send troops despite pressures within his own administration. His secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, propounded the "domino theory" that South Vietnam must not be allowed to fall to the communist lest all the other Southeast Asian countries tumble in succession like a row of dominoes. And his vice president, Richard M. Nixon, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors only a few weeks before that U.S. airlift of French troops began:

"If in order to avoid further Communist expansion in Asia and particularly in Indochina, if in order to avoid it we must take the risk of putting American boys in, I believe that the executive branch of the government has to take the politically unpopular position of facing up to it and doing it, and I personally would support such a decision."

The then-vice president may therefore be said to have been sort of midwife at the birth of U.S. involvement in Vietnam 17 years ago today. As President, he has reduced the involvement from 550,000 troops to 284,000, and says he will withdraw another 100,000 by the end of this year.

The monster that grew from the airlift has started shrinking a little. But it is still a frightful monster as it reaches its 17th birthday.

CAPITOL REPORT

Democrats' Package Proposes Major Reshuffling Of Taxes

By ARTHUR YOUNGBERG
California News Alliance

Ah, the tax burden we all carry; if only the load could be lightened a little! One man's relief, though, is often another's millstone.

The state Legislature will soon have to face up to big decisions on tax increases. In the offing is a major upheaval in the way Californians pay taxes.

CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING provisions in bills now before the Legislature:

— Substantial income tax credits for renters.

— Higher individual income taxes.

— Payroll withholding.

— One per cent increase in the state sales tax.

— Increased bank, insurance and corporation taxes.

— Elimination of the oil depletion allowance.

— Higher taxes on capital gains.

— Higher inheritance taxes.

— Higher license fees for all motor vehicles.

— Reduced business inventory taxes.

And . . . a new, statewide property tax for schools.

ALL OF THESE except the statewide property tax for schools are part of the Democratic tax package sent to the Legislature last month by Assemblyman Joe A. Gonsalves of La Mirada, head of the powerful Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee. It is an ambitious and costly plan — totaling $2 billion more in taxes each year after 1971.

Home owners would be the biggest beneficiaries from Gonsalves' tax-shift program, receiving $1.1 billion in property tax relief starting this fall when the first county tax payment is due.

Homes occupied by their owners would be totally exempted from property taxes, but the land they are built on would stay on the assessment rolls. The portion of a duplex, condominium or cooperative housing occupied by the owner would also be exempted from taxation except for the land.

Renters would get tax relief totaling $290 million in 1971-72 through special state income tax deductions. Apartment buildings would not be exempted from property taxes.

Elderly home owners with low incomes would also get a property tax break. The state would reimburse seniors 62 and older for their entire property tax bill if their income was under $2,300 a year. Elderly home owners with incomes from $2,500 to $5,000 would be reimbursed for a percentage of their property taxes.

The Democrats' plan would raise $1.4 billion in new tax reveneus in 1971-72, of which $242 million would go to the state Department of Education to help ease the financial plight of local school districts.

The state would take over the administration of the four major welfare programs — Aid to the Aged, Blind, Disabled and Families with Dependent Children. County costs would be limited to 50 cents on the tax rate.

WHERE WOULD ALL the money come from? The $1.4 billion total for 1971-72 adds up this way:

— $808 million from personal state income tax increases including payroll withholding starting Jan. 1, 1972, and a reduction in the capital gains exemption from 50 to 15 per cent.

— $69 million from higher taxes on insurance company premiums.

— $88 million for higher vehicle license fees.

— $97 million from higher taxes on bank and corporation profits; elimination of the oil depletion allowance.

— $13 million from higher inheritance taxes.

Athlete Backs Two Coaches Who Quit

I am backing Coach Stan Tobiason and Coach Don Zile in their recent resignation from our track team. I myself feel that it would be most difficult to run a track team with someone else telling me whom I may or must run in any given meet.

Mr. Don Kreps said he didn't want to hurt the team in any way, but he did want Steve Levintow to be reinstated and entered into competition against Terra Linda on April 15.

He did hurt the team, in morale. There is a lot of mixed emotions and anger boiling up inside some of us. And worst of all we have lost two good and very qualified coaches, Coach Tobiason has been with me in both cross-country and track for all my four years at Redwood, and though I may have not always agreed with him (as most athletes don't always agree with their coaches) I feel I learned a great deal from him and I respected him. Coach Zile I've only known for this season. He's well qualified and informed about track, he can tell you what you do wrong and help you correct it in any event pertaining to track.

Replacing them with Mr. Paul Bosque, assistant principle (sic), isn't my idea of a good decision on Mr. Kreps' part; we need a good coach, not a fine administrator.

I hope Mr. Kreps will take a look at the situation our team is in and see what he can do to bring back to the team coaches Tobiason and Zile.

Must Officers Abide By Emily Post?

The police and narcotic agents in Marin County are doing an excellent job in apprehending the increasing number of dope pushers and with the help of most of our courts they are putting these characters in jail.

"A case in point." In the I-J of April 14, there was an item which stated that the charges in which four men were arrested in a drug raid at a motel had been dismissed, even though they had a large amount of narcotics in their possession at that time.

This took place in the court of Judge Joseph G. Wilson and his reason for dismissing these pushers, of all things, was that the narcotic agents had not knocked on their door and identified themselves.) Could be that Judge Wilson had the law on his side, which protects the civil rights of these characters. But if that was his reasoning, then I say it is about time that this law should be re-written so that this interpretation cannot be taken again.

Going from the sublime to the ridiculous: If some of our courts appear to function according to rules and dictates of Emily Post in order to safeguard the civil rights of these law breakers, the courts should insist that the narcotic agents send a letter to the suspects, stating date, day and time they will knock on the door, so that the pushers can flush the drugs down the toilet and have their guns ready for the agents.

Grand Jury Should Probe Water District

How low will the Marin Water District sink? At one time, I had considerable respect for them, probably out of naive innocence. But the times they are a changing. From what the I-J reports, the general manager of the district has apparently lied on two occasions (to the I-J and to a young ecologist) about Phoenix Lake pollution problems. The district was found granting special favors of taxpayers land and thus money to a few influential business men (golf club and hunting club affair). Then, the district attempted to renege on a promise made six months ago to seek voter approval for any further financing of the Sonoma-Marin Aqued uct. When that effort was thwarted by Assemblyman Bagley's refusal to submit the bill, the district appeared to recant and agree to go before the voters for funds. However, that wasn't the end of the funding problem. Assemblyman Belotti, R-Eureka, introduced the water district's bill for them, reportedly at the urging of lobbyist Robert Beckus.

My reactions to all this is — Who pays lobbyist Beckus's salary? Can the district directors be subject to a recall election? Is the grand jury taking a long, hard look into the legality and ethics of the water district operation? I only hope that the rest of Marin County citizens are as outraged as I am at this sham on representative government.

Track Team Member Blames Principal

I am a sophomore member of the Redwood High Trakk team. I would like to express my opinions on the recent resignation of our track coaches (Stanley) Tobiason and (Donald) Zile.

I and the majority of the team members feel we have lost a fine coach, promoted by the actions of Steve Levintow and Mr. (Donald) Kreps. I feel the team will suffer from the loss of our two coaches . . .

I personally feel that Steve Levintow is not dedicated to track, and would only like to stir up last year's hasslement of the coaching staff, and use it as a means of joining the team. I also do not see why Mr. Kreps must feel so inclined to help this undedicated person and attempt to run the coaching staff as a means of supporting his position. Mr. Kreps said that his concern is the welfare of the team. If it is, why is he killing it?

It was a month before our first meet that we started practice. I hear it wasn't until a month later that Steve Levintow attempted to come out for track . . .

I come to practice daily so as to be entered by the coach in the upcoming meet. Only once did I see Levintow out practicing. Steve Levintow, in his moments of weakness, went selfishly crying to Mr. Kreps, and Mr. Kreps being the good man that he is, stuck up for poor helpless Steve, and in the process overthrew the coaching power, and forced the coaches to quit . . .

New Relations With China Full Of Potential For Good

WASHINGTON — It is hardly possible to overstate the potential for good which can flow from the new move to improve U.S.-Chinese relations.

It may well lead to the most significant salutary single event of the decade of the Seventies — a new balance of war-restraining power among all of the principal nations in the Western Pacific — mainland China, the United States, Russia, and Japan.

What is happening is that Premier Chou En-lai and President Nixon are acting to escalate peace in Asia.

That's the potential of the steps which are now being taken by both sides — nothing less.

They're coming at the right time, in the right way, in the best climate.

THESE STEPS are meaningful because they serve the enlightened national interests of both countries and are coming into being at a moment when both sides need each other.

This is why minor incidents are of major importance. The presence of the United States table tennis team in Peking, the invitation to the Chinese tennis players to compete at Forest Hills are signs of larger contacts to come.

And they are coming rapidly because the time is propitious. These are the reasons:

The United States needs Peking's help to end the Vietnam war under the best possible circumstances.

Communist China needs to feel that in the United States it has at least a neutral friend because it fears Russian military power on its far-flung western borders.

PRESIDENT NIXON and President Johnson before him concluded that the prospects of peace would be enhanced whenever China was ready to become an open participant in the world community. The American people are ready for mutual diplomatic recognition.

With the end of the violent phase of the Cultural Revolution, the government of Mao Tze-tung is more stable and the mainland economy is improving. This means that Peking can come out of its self-imposed cocoon and apparently it is ready to do so.

These are the main reasons why hope for improved relations, which Mr. Nixon expressed two years ago when he unsuccessfully sought to resume the ambassadorial talks in Warsaw, are now beginning to be realized with a rush. Both sides have been getting ready to make happen what is now happening. This explains why, when the American players arrived in Peking, Premier Chou En-lai did not say, "isn't table tennis a great sport?" He said: "This opens a new page in the elations between the Chinese and American people."

WHAT, THEN, is the potential of what has now begun so auspiciously?

It will enhance the prospects of peace in the whole Pacific.

It will improve the often tense and uncertain relations between Red China and Japan.

It may induce North Vietnam to seek a new negotiated settlement of the Vietnamese war as Hanoi sees Peking and Washington working together.

It will promote a two-way trade in non-strategic goods which will benefit both countries.

And, contrary to the judgment of some, improved relations between China and the United States may not alarm the Soviet Union. Mr. Nixon has gone out of his way to affirm to Moscow that he seeks no anti-Soviet alliance with Peking and that the whole thrust of U.S. influence will be against armed conflict between China and Russia.

There is a possibility that Moscow and Peking will be competing for American friendship.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Everybody's Against Babies At Washington Conference

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — It was a great week for the Pill. The Commission on Population Growth and the American Future held two days of hearings in the capital without attracting a single witness who would admit he was for population growth.

A survey by the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago found that only 27 per cent of active Catholic priests in this country believe all artifical contraception is morally wrong.

And there came in the mail a book entitled "The Baby Trap," by a long-haired blonde non-mother who makes the traditionally bewailed state of childless marriage out to be one long and fun-filled trip to Europe on money that otherwise would have been banked for diapers and braces.

More than any government-sponsored inquiry so far, the population growth hearings demonstrated how broad the public awareness of the danger of too many people has become.

Yet Robert H. Finch, the former secretary of HEW and now counselor to Mr. Nixon, entered a formal statement of government policy endorsing an end to population growth in America. The average family size should be brought down to two children, he said.

A spokesman for the United Methodist Church said the population should be leveled off "at the earliest practicable time."

A HARVARD DEMOGRAPHER said upgrading women's professional opportunities would give them something prestigious to do besides bear children.

A conservationist from the Sierra Club said man should adjust his thinking to putting the human race into the biophysical world instead of dominating it by his numbers and accompanying pollution.

A black woman stated again the feelings of some blacks that population control is aimed at reducing mainly the nonwhite growth rate, but left no doubt that she was for population control anyway.

The director of the family life division of the U.S. Catholic Conference spoke out against abortion, which was no surpirse, but even he devoted himself to the hows, whys and whens of population control, rather than whether. And even within the clergy of his own church he would find argument, as the Chicago study showed.

ALL TOGETHER, the witnesses at the Washington hearing proved their points with political statements, statistics and moral indignation. It was left to Ellen Peck, who did not testify but who wrote "The Baby Trap," to lay down a more self-centered but no less convincing case against babymaking. She did it in 245 pages. I can summarize it in three words: It's no fun.

Mrs. Peck is 28, taught junior high school before starting a column of advice to girls becoming women, and set the theme of her book in the title of its opening chapter when she quotes William Saroyan — "In the time of your life, live . . ."

But it is not all so selfish sounding as that She covers how manufacturers and the media gang up to glorify babies and motherhood, how husbands are disenchanted when they have to share their wives' time and affection with their children, how women usually, but not always, deteriorate physically and socially after becoming mothers, how not to have babies (birth control and abortion) and how to explain the decision to abstain from motherhood to friends and relatives. Then she returns again to the freedom a woman enjoys when she is not bound by children.

All this will infuriate a lot of women who already have become mothers, which is a condition hard to remedy. And Mrs. Peck might seem too much of a swinger for a presidentially suggested commission to solicit her testimony. But when the Commission on Population Growth holds its later hearings in Los Angeles, Little Rock, Chicago and New York, it might consider inviting her. She can offer the priests, politicians and gynecologists an attractive sales pitch, as when she concludes: "You're doing good for the world by not having children; You're doing good for the world by not having children; you can take credit for that, even if you decide to remain childless purely for reasons of personal advantage. Personal advantage and the larger social good do coincide, in this case."

Today is an anniversary — not one that we exactly want to celebrate, but one that should be noted.

It was 17 years ago today — April 21, 1954 — that the United States began flying French troops from Paris to reinforce the French defense of Dienbienphu against an attacking force of Ho Chi Minh's Vietnamese liberation army.

That was the beginning of our involvement.

IT WAS A DEPARTURE from the United States' previous policy of keeping hands off Southeast Asia. It was a departure from the anti-colonialist stand taken during World War II, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt declared that Vietnam must never be returned to France.

It was not returned to the French. After losing at Dienbienphu they pulled out, first negotiating a supposedly temporary partition of Vietnam along the 17th parallel, with Bao Dai, their puppet emperor of Annam, as chief of the new state of South Vietnam. A little over a year later, all French influence vanished when Bao Dai was deposed by overwhelming vote in a national referendum and Ngo Dinh Diem, his prime minister, was made chief of state.

BUT THE UNITED States, which had begun its involvement on behalf of the French by flying their troops to Dienbienphy, remained involved on behalf of the government of Bao Dai — and after him, of Ngo Dinh Diem.

WHEN Diem was overthrown by a palace revolt, the U.S. continued its presence in behalf of a series of successors, down to the present government of Nguyen Van Thieu and Nguyen Cao Ky.

And the involvement grew. From merely furnishing arms and money during President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration, it grew to sending 16,000 "military advisers" during the incumbency of President John F. Kennedy. And while Lyndon B. Johnson was in the White House, it grew to a full-scale American war, with more than half a million American troops fighting in the jungles of Vietnam.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER refused to send troops despite pressures within his own administration. His secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, propounded the "domino theory" that South Vietnam must not be allowed to fall to the communist lest all the other Southeast Asian countries tumble in succession like a row of dominoes. And his vice president, Richard M. Nixon, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors only a few weeks before that U.S. airlift of French troops began:

"If in order to avoid further Communist expansion in Asia and particularly in Indochina, if in order to avoid it we must take the risk of putting American boys in, I believe that the executive branch of the government has to take the politically unpopular position of facing up to it and doing it, and I personally would support such a decision."

The then-vice president may therefore be said to have been sort of midwife at the birth of U.S. involvement in Vietnam 17 years ago today. As President, he has reduced the involvement from 550,000 troops to 284,000, and says he will withdraw another 100,000 by the end of this year.

The monster that grew from the airlift has started shrinking a little. But it is still a frightful monster as it reaches its 17th birthday.

CAPITOL REPORT

Democrats' Package Proposes Major Reshuffling Of Taxes

By ARTHUR YOUNGBERG
California News Alliance

Ah, the tax burden we all carry; if only the load could be lightened a little! One man's relief, though, is often another's millstone.

The state Legislature will soon have to face up to big decisions on tax increases. In the offing is a major upheaval in the way Californians pay taxes.

CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING provisions in bills now before the Legislature:

— Substantial income tax credits for renters.

— Higher individual income taxes.

— Payroll withholding.

— One per cent increase in the state sales tax.

— Increased bank, insurance and corporation taxes.

— Elimination of the oil depletion allowance.

— Higher taxes on capital gains.

— Higher inheritance taxes.

— Higher license fees for all motor vehicles.

— Reduced business inventory taxes.

And . . . a new, statewide property tax for schools.

ALL OF THESE except the statewide property tax for schools are part of the Democratic tax package sent to the Legislature last month by Assemblyman Joe A. Gonsalves of La Mirada, head of the powerful Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee. It is an ambitious and costly plan — totaling $2 billion more in taxes each year after 1971.

Home owners would be the biggest beneficiaries from Gonsalves' tax-shift program, receiving $1.1 billion in property tax relief starting this fall when the first county tax payment is due.

Homes occupied by their owners would be totally exempted from property taxes, but the land they are built on would stay on the assessment rolls. The portion of a duplex, condominium or cooperative housing occupied by the owner would also be exempted from taxation except for the land.

Renters would get tax relief totaling $290 million in 1971-72 through special state income tax deductions. Apartment buildings would not be exempted from property taxes.

Elderly home owners with low incomes would also get a property tax break. The state would reimburse seniors 62 and older for their entire property tax bill if their income was under $2,300 a year. Elderly home owners with incomes from $2,500 to $5,000 would be reimbursed for a percentage of their property taxes.

The Democrats' plan would raise $1.4 billion in new tax reveneus in 1971-72, of which $242 million would go to the state Department of Education to help ease the financial plight of local school districts.

The state would take over the administration of the four major welfare programs — Aid to the Aged, Blind, Disabled and Families with Dependent Children. County costs would be limited to 50 cents on the tax rate.

WHERE WOULD ALL the money come from? The $1.4 billion total for 1971-72 adds up this way:

— $808 million from personal state income tax increases including payroll withholding starting Jan. 1, 1972, and a reduction in the capital gains exemption from 50 to 15 per cent.

— $69 million from higher taxes on insurance company premiums.

— $88 million for higher vehicle license fees.

— $97 million from higher taxes on bank and corporation profits; elimination of the oil depletion allowance.

— $13 million from higher inheritance taxes.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Athlete Backs Two Coaches Who Quit

I am backing Coach Stan Tobiason and Coach Don Zile in their recent resignation from our track team. I myself feel that it would be most difficult to run a track team with someone else telling me whom I may or must run in any given meet.

Mr. Don Kreps said he didn't want to hurt the team in any way, but he did want Steve Levintow to be reinstated and entered into competition against Terra Linda on April 15.

He did hurt the team, in morale. There is a lot of mixed emotions and anger boiling up inside some of us. And worst of all we have lost two good and very qualified coaches, Coach Tobiason has been with me in both cross-country and track for all my four years at Redwood, and though I may have not always agreed with him (as most athletes don't always agree with their coaches) I feel I learned a great deal from him and I respected him. Coach Zile I've only known for this season. He's well qualified and informed about track, he can tell you what you do wrong and help you correct it in any event pertaining to track.

Replacing them with Mr. Paul Bosque, assistant principle (sic), isn't my idea of a good decision on Mr. Kreps' part; we need a good coach, not a fine administrator.

I hope Mr. Kreps will take a look at the situation our team is in and see what he can do to bring back to the team coaches Tobiason and Zile.

Must Officers Abide By Emily Post?

The police and narcotic agents in Marin County are doing an excellent job in apprehending the increasing number of dope pushers and with the help of most of our courts they are putting these characters in jail.

"A case in point." In the I-J of April 14, there was an item which stated that the charges in which four men were arrested in a drug raid at a motel had been dismissed, even though they had a large amount of narcotics in their possession at that time.

This took place in the court of Judge Joseph G. Wilson and his reason for dismissing these pushers, of all things, was that the narcotic agents had not knocked on their door and identified themselves.) Could be that Judge Wilson had the law on his side, which protects the civil rights of these characters. But if that was his reasoning, then I say it is about time that this law should be rewritten so that this interpretation cannot be taken again.

Going from the sublime to the ridiculous: If some of our courts appear to function according to rules and dictates of Emily Post in order to safeguard the civil rights of these law breakers, the courts should insist that the narcotic agents send a letter to the suspects, stating date, day and time they will knock on the door, so that the pushers can flush the drugs down the toilet and have their guns ready for the agents.

Grand Jury Should Probe Water District

How low will the Marin Water District sink? At one time, I had considerable respect for them, probably out of naive innocence. But the times they are a changing. From what the I-J reports, the general manager of the district has apparently lied on two occasions (to the I-J and to a young ecologist) about Phoenix Lake pollution problems. The district was found granting special favors of taxpayers land and thus money to a few influential business men (golf club and hunting club affair). Then, the district attempted to renege on a promise made six months ago to seek voter approval for any further financing of the Sonoma-Marin Aqued uct. When that effort was thwarted by Assemblyman Bagley's refusal to submit the bill, the district appeared to recant and agree to go before the voters for funds. However, that wasn't the end of the funding problem. Assemblyman Belotti, R-Eureka, introduced the water district's bill for them, reportedly at the urging of lobbyist Robert Beckus.

My reactions to all this is — Who pays lobbyist Beckus's salary? Can the district directors be subject to a recall election? Is the grand jury taking a long, hard look into the legality and ethics of the water district operation? I only hope that the rest of Marin County citizens are as outraged as I am at this sham on representative government.

Track Team Member Blames Principal

I am a sophomore member of the Redwood High Trakk team. I would like to express my opinions on the recent resignation of our track coaches (Stanley) Tobiason and (Donald) Zile.

I and the majority of the team members feel we have lost a fine coach, promoted by the actions of Steve Levintow and Mr. (Donald) Kreps. I feel the team will suffer from the loss of our two coaches . . .

I personally feel that Steve Levintow is not dedicated to track, and would only like to stir up last year's hasslement of the coaching staff, and use it as a means of joining the team. I also do not see why Mr. Kreps must feel so inclined to help this undedicated person and attempt to run the coaching staff as a means of supporting his position. Mr. Kreps said that his concern is the welfare of the team. If it is, why is he killing it?

It was a month before our first meet that we started practice. I hear it wasn't until a month later that Steve Levintow attempted to come out for track . . .

I come to practice daily so as to be entered by the coach in the upcoming meet. Only once did I see Levintow out practicing. Steve Levintow, in his moments of weakness, went selfishly crying to Mr. Kreps, and Mr. Kreps being the good man that he is, stuck up for poor helpless Steve, and in the process overthrew the coaching power, and forced the coaches to quit . . .

New Relations With China Full Of Potential For Good

WASHINGTON — It is hardly possible to overstate the potential for good which can flow from the new move to improve U.S.-Chinese relations.

It may well lead to the most significant salutary single event of the decade of the Seventies — a new balance of war-restraining power among all of the principal nations in the Western Pacific — mainland China, the United States, Russia, and Japan.

What is happening is that Premier Chou En-lai and President Nixon are acting to escalate peace in Asia.

That's the potential of the steps which are now being taken by both sides — nothing less.

They're coming at the right time, in the right way, in the best climate.

THESE STEPS are meaningful because they serve the enlightened national interests of both countries and are coming into being at a moment when both sides need each other.

This is why minor incidents are of major importance. The presence of the United States table tennis team in Peking, the invitation to the Chinese tennis players to compete at Forest Hills are signs of larger contacts to come.

And they are coming rapidly because the time is propitious. These are the reasons:

The United States needs Peking's help to end the Vietnam war under the best possible circumstances.

Communist China needs to feel that in the United States it has at least a neutral friend because it fears Russian military power on its far-flung western borders.

PRESIDENT NIXON and President Johnson before him concluded that the prospects of peace would be enhanced whenever China was ready to become an open participant in the world community. The American people are ready for mutual diplomatic recognition.

With the end of the violent phase of the Cultural Revolution, the government of Mao Tze-tung is more stable and the mainland economy is improving. This means that Peking can come out of its self-imposed cocoon and apparently it is ready to do so.

These are the main reasons why hope for improved relations, which Mr. Nixon expressed two years ago when he unsuccessfully sought to resume the ambassadorial talks in Warsaw, are now beginning to be realized with a rush. Both sides have been getting ready to make happen what is now happening. This explains why, when the American players arrived in Peking, Premier Chou En-lai did not say, "isn't table tennis a great sport?" He said: "This opens a new page in the elations between the Chinese and American people."

WHAT, THEN, is the potential of what has now begun so auspiciously?

It will enhance the prospects of peace in the whole Pacific.

It will improve the often tense and uncertain relations between Red China and Japan.

It may induce North Vietnam to seek a new negotiated settlement of the Vietnamese war as Hanoi sees Peking and Washington working together.

It will promote a two-way trade in non-strategic goods which will benefit both countries.

And, contrary to the judgment of some, improved relations between China and the United States may not alarm the Soviet Union. Mr. Nixon has gone out of his way to affirm to Moscow that he seeks no anti-Soviet alliance with Peking and that the whole thrust of U.S. influence will be against armed conflict between China and Russia.

There is a possibility that Moscow and Peking will be competing for American friendship.

Everybody's Against Babies At Washington Conference

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — It was a great week for the Pill. The Commission on Population Growth and the American Future held two days of hearings in the capital without attracting a single witness who would admit he was for population growth.

A survey by the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago found that only 27 per cent of active Catholic priests in this country believe all artifical contraception is morally wrong.

And there came in the mail a book entitled "The Baby Trap," by a long-haired blonde non-mother who makes the traditionally bewailed state of childless marriage out to be one long and fun-filled trip to Europe on money that otherwise would have been banked for diapers and braces.

More than any government-sponsored inquiry so far, the population growth hearings demonstrated how broad the public awareness of the danger of too many people has become.

Airport Over The Freeway? New Policy Makes It Possible

If the recently announced change in policy on freeways by the state Division of Highways is carried out, they will no longer resemble freeways.

They may be high-rise apartment houses, office buildings, airports or parking lots. Oh, yes, they will still be freeways, but they will be money-making freeways.

In the past, the highway commission has leased land under overpasses for such things as parking lots. This was done so that it would benefit the communities. Usually the rent was for such a nominal sum that it hardly paid for the bookkeeping involved.

Under the new policy, the land under overpasses and the space over freeways can be rented from the division of highways if it makes enough money to help pay for the freeways.

IMAGINE WHAT COULD happen in Marin county.

In downtown San Rafael, as the need for parking becomes more acute, the state will lease the land under the overpasses for parking. Then if land becomes more scarce, it would lease the space above the freeways for high-rise office or apartment buildings. It would resemble New York City where the subways run under and through buildings without disturbing them.

The freeways going through the heart of the city might not be any more than a series of high-rise office and apartment buildings.

IT IS CONCEIVABLE that a wide ramp over a straight stretch of freeway could be used as an airport for small planes.

During the Vietnam War, STOL planes have come to the forefront. These planes, named for Short Take-Off and Landing, have just that ability. They can carry 15 to 20 passengers at a much cheaper cost than helicopters.

This could solve the commute problem to the San Francisco and Oakland airports. STOL planes have been advocated as the best method of travel between smaller cities. Daily trips between Marin County, Sacramento, Santa Rosa, San Jose and other short distances would solve a commute problem that the larger airlines cannot do with the big planes.

The advantage of a runway right over a freeway would be that it probably would give the commuter a place to park his car. Then he could take an elevator to the upper deck where his STOL plane was waiting.

Everybody would benefit. The cars would not have to travel so far on the freeway. There would be less smog from them. The commuter would not have to leave the center of the city to catch a plane for short distances to other communities or the airports. The state would make money from the use of the space over the freeways.

In fact San Francisco might even consent to a freeway through that city if it was completely covered by buildings.

Riles: Local Schools Can Solve Issue

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Wilson C. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, said yesterday the U.S. Supreme Court's decision on school bussing "clarifies the situation once and for all."

"I think the people are ready to go along with integration as long as its feasible and reasonable," said Riles, the first Negro to hold statewide office in California.

Riles said he had no plans for his department to get involved in integration efforts.

The nation's highest court Monday validated bussing, pupil pairing and other racial balancing devices to eradicate school desegregation.

Riles told a news conference he "expected" the ruling and said it was consistent with the court's landmark 1954 decision outlawing separate but equal schools to preserve segregated classrooms.

He said it is now up to local school districts to draft integration plans that are compatible with parents and the court's rulings.

"Let's let local schools try to work something out," he said, adding that he didn't expect his office to interfere with local racial balancing matters.

"I don't see any need for my department or the state to do anything," said Riles. "Let's rather give local people a chance to solve it."

Riles also said he thought the Supreme Court's decision invalidated the remaining provisions of the antibussing law passed by the legislature last year. The act has been partially struck down by the state Supreme Court.

The state court said schools may assign pupils to specific schools for integration purposes but may not force them to go there on a school bus.

Riles said the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling upholding the right of states to bus or use other racial balancing devices eliminated this provision.

He said the invalidated act caused "needless hostility" throughout the state, which he described as a "multi-ethnic society."

"We ought to have a chance to get to know each other," Riles said and indicated he thought the best place to start is in the schools.

Statewide School Tax: Robin Hood Or Sheriff?

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Take from the rich and give to the poor."

This philosophy, which made a legendary hero of Robin Hood and a villain of the sheriff of Nottingham, is the basis of SB 801 and AB 1406 in the California Legislature.

These identical bills embody the state Department of Education's plan for equalizing the amount per child available for education in the more than 1,000 school districts within California and taking some of the burden off the taxpayers in the poorer districts.

Through a statewide property tax of $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation for school support, plus contributions from the state general fund, it would provide $767 for every elementary school pupil, $874 for every high school pupil, and $917 for every community (junior) college student.

Of the $3.75 tax rate, $1.87 would go to elementary schools, $1.50 to high schools, and 38 cents to junior colleges.

THIS WOULD BE quite a godsend to some districts, such as Ophir Elementary School District in Placer County, which in fiscal 1970 was able with a $2.35 tax rate to provide only $297 per pupil for what the state classified as "current expenses of education" (not the whole per-pupil cost, since it doesn't include everything).

On the other hand, it would be no help to the taxpayers of Vista Del Mar Elementary School District in Santa Barbara County, who in the same year paid a tax rate of only $1.23 to provide $1,065 for "current expenses of education" of each pupil.

To the school board and taxpayers of Ophir District, SB 801 and AB 1406 look like Robin Hood. To those of Vista Del Mar, they look more like the sheriff of Nottingham.

WHAT THE BILLS are all about is "equalization" — a word that appears frequently, but with little meaning, in the present school finance statutes.

The amount of money a school district can spend per pupil varies greatly because of great differences in assessed valuation. In fiscal 1969, according to figures prepared by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, the lowest per-pupil assessed valuation in any elementary district was $125; the highest was $1,156,872.

There are numerous state apportionments, each on a different complicated formula, intended to equalize this. But they don't do the job — which is why Ophir District had to tax its residents at nearly double the rate of Vista Del Mar to spend one-fourth as much money per pupil.

THE SYSTEM PROPOSED in the state Department of Education's bills would not put all districts on equal footing, either; but it would come much closer.

The statewide tax would replace an equal amount in the school district's local tax. Those districts now levying less than the amounts in the statewide tax would have to raise the minimum. Those levying more would have to reduce taxes if they are not spending more per pupil than the law sets up. If they are spending more per pupil, they could either reduce expenditures to the state level or adjust local taxes to make up the difference.

This would mean that Ophir could more than double its expenditure per pupil while reducing its tax rate. But if Vista Del Mar wanted to continue to spend more than $1,000 per pupil, it would have to levy a local tax to make up the excess above $767.

THE PLAN IS NOT likely to fail in the legislature because of the cries from the wealthy districts who see Robin Hood disguised as the sheriff of Nottingham, however.

If it fails, it likely will be because of opposition from the governor's office.

This is because the $3.75 statewide tax rate would not completely fund it. In addition, it would require $400 million more from the state general fund for next year than the schools received from that source this year. And Gov. Ronald Reagan has come out flatly against any increase in state taxes.

No Welfare Cutoff — Yet

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —U. S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli said yesterday he would not — for the present — enter an order cutting off all federal welfare funds immediately to the state of California.

Zirpoli said he felt himself "bound by the scope" of a stay issued by the U. S. District Court of Appeals, although he said he did not agree that the Court of Appeals had ruled on the issues he had asked it to decide.

Zirpoli last year ruled that California was in violation of the law for failing to adjust welfare benefits for families receiving aid to dependent children for increases in the cost of living.

He issued an order cutting off millions of dollars in federal welfare funds if the state did not do so within 60 days.

The state appealed the ruling to the Circuit Court, estimating the Zirpoli decision could add up to $3.1 billion "to the tax burden of California citizens."

The state called the federal requirements "a bureaucratic ritual". Negotiations between the state and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have been carried on since.

Zirpoli noted that in his decision last year he had rejected state requests for a stay, but "recognizing that there was substantial ground for differences of opinion respecting the correctness of the portion of the order requiring the immediate increase...certified this question for immediate appeal..."

Zirpoli said he did so believing the Circuit Court would rule only on whether the federal funds cutoff he ordered should be immediate, not whether it should have been ordered, a point on which he felt there was no ground "for differences of opinion."

He said the Circuit Court's Dec. 18, 1970, order, which stayed the entire matter, was a "procedural trap" he fell into because the state, in arguing the appeal, attacked not the timing of a cutoff in federal funds, but his authority to order one.

"As indicated earlier, there is no question about this court's authority and power to enjoin the receipt of federal funds and this question should not be the subject of a certification, a stay or an interlocutory appeal," he said.

"Nonetheless, this court feels bound by the scope of the stay order issued by the Court of Appeals."

Zirpoli warned, however, that if the parties try to modify the Appeals Court stay or take it to the U. S. Supreme Court, he will "enter an order enjoining forthwith in some manner the continued illegal expenditure of federal funds by the state of California."

He accused California of "flagrant disregard" of the U. S. Supreme Court, the California Supreme Court, the Department of Health Education and Welfare, and Congress.

All these bodies, he said, over the last 18 months have told California directly or indirectly "that it is not in compliance with federal law...yet...the state has refused to take any meaningful corrective action, while at the same time it continues to accept federal monies."

Hardline Stand On El Paso Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon Administration today strongly opposed any type of "forgiveness" legislation that would nullify the Supreme Court order requiring El Paso Natural Gas Co., to divest a competitor it acquired illegally in 1957.

"A legislative overruling of the court's order would do serious injury to the public interest in effective competition in the natural gas industry and, more broadly, to the entire program of antitrust law enforcement," Assistant Attorney General Richard W. McLaren declared.

McLaren, the Justice Department's antitrust chief, made the administration's views known at Senate Commerce Committee hearings held in Seattle to assess the consumer impact of the divestiture order in the 14-year old case.

Chairman Warren D. Magnuson, D-Wash., said government and business leaders from the Northwest had pleaded with him to introduce legislation nullifying the order on grounds it would lead to economic chaos and an engergy supply crisis in the Northwest.

The Supreme Court four times has ordered divestiture by El Paso of Pacific Northwest, a pipeline company it acquired. The court's most recent order remanded the case to a Federal Court in Denver to work out details.

McLaren said the Justice Department "strongly opposes the enactment of legislation which would relieve El Paso of the obligation of divesting properties acquired from Pacific Northwest and remedying the injury to competition resulting from the merger.

He said the department's proposed plan would require the setting up of a new company to receive the divested assets of the pipeline company it acquired.

El Paso delivered $578 million worth of gas to local distributors across the West last year, about $122 million of it through the pipeline acquired from Pacific Northwest.

"We believe that this would be the most effective way to put (the) new company in a position where it could compete for new increments of demand in the California market," he said.

Airport Over The Freeway? New Policy Makes It Possible

If the recently announced change in policy on freeways by the state Division of Highways is carried out, they will no longer resemble freeways.

They may be high-rise apartment houses, office buildings, airports or parking lots. Oh, yes, they will still be freeways, but they will be money-making freeways.

In the past, the highway commission has leased land under overpasses for such things as parking lots. This was done so that it would benefit the communities. Usually the rent was for such a nominal sum that it hardly paid for the bookkeeping involved.

Under the new policy, the land under overpasses and the space over freeways can be rented from the division of highways if it makes enough money to help pay for the freeways.

IMAGINE WHAT COULD happen in Marin county.

In downtown San Rafael, as the need for parking becomes more acute, the state will lease the land under the overpasses for parking. Then if land becomes more scarce, it would lease the space above the freeways for high-rise office or apartment buildings. It would resemble New York City where the subways run under and through buildings without disturbing them.

The freeways going through the heart of the city might not be any more than a series of high-rise office and apartment buildings.

IT IS CONCEIVABLE that a wide ramp over a straight stretch of freeway could be used as an airport for small planes.

During the Vietnam War, STOL planes have come to the forefront. These planes, named for Short Take-Off and Landing, have just that ability. They can carry 15 to 20 passengers at a much cheaper cost than helicopters.

This could solve the commute problem to the San Francisco and Oakland airports. STOL planes have been advocated as the best method of travel between smaller cities. Daily trips between Marin County, Sacramento, Santa Rosa, San Jose and other short distances would solve a commute problem that the larger airlines cannot do with the big planes.

The advantage of a runway right over a freeway would be that it probably would give the commuter a place to park his car. Then he could take an elevator to the upper deck where his STOL plane was waiting.

Everybody would benefit. The cars would not have to travel so far on the freeway. There would be less smog from them. The commuter would not have to leave the center of the city to catch a plane for short distances to other communities or the airports. The state would make money from the use of the space over the freeways.

In fact San Francisco might even consent to a freeway through that city if it was completely covered by buildings.

Riles: Local Schools Can Solve Issue

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Wilson C. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, said yesterday the U.S. Supreme Court's decision on school bussing "clarifies the situation once and for all."

"I think the people are ready to go along with integration as long as its feasible and reasonable," said Riles, the first Negro to hold statewide office in California.

Riles said he had no plans for his department to get involved in integration efforts.

The nation's highest court Monday validated bussing, pupil pairing and other racial balancing devices to eradicate school desegregation.

Riles told a news conference he "expected" the ruling and said it was consistent with the court's landmark 1954 decision outlawing separate but equal schools to preserve segregated classrooms.

He said it is now up to local school districts to draft integration plans that are compatible with parents and the court's rulings.

"Let's let local schools try to work something out," he said, adding that he didn't expect his office to interfere with local racial balancing matters.

"I don't see any need for my department or the state to do anything," said Riles. "Let's rather give local people a chance to solve it."

Riles also said he thought the Supreme Court's decision invalidated the remaining provisions of the antibussing law passed by the legislature last year. The act has been partially struck down by the state Supreme Court.

The state court said schools may assign pupils to specific schools for integration purposes but may not force them to go there on a school bus.

Riles said the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling upholding the right of states to bus or use other racial balancing devices eliminated this provision.

He said the invalidated act caused "needless hostility" throughout the state, which he described as a "multi-ethnic society."

"We ought to have a chance to get to know each other," Riles said and indicated he thought the best place to start is in the schools.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Statewide School Tax: Robin Hood Or Sheriff?

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Take from the rich and give to the poor."

This philosophy, which made a legendary hero of Robin Hood and a villain of the sheriff of Nottingham, is the basis of SB 801 and AB 1406 in the California Legislature.

These identical bills embody the state Department of Education's plan for equalizing the amount per child available for education in the more than 1,000 school districts within California and taking some of the burden off the taxpayers in the poorer districts.

Through a statewide property tax of $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation for school support, plus contributions from the state general fund, it would provide $767 for every elementary school pupil, $874 for every high school pupil, and $917 for every community (junior) college student.

Of the $3.75 tax rate, $1.87 would go to elementary schools, $1.50 to high schools, and 38 cents to junior colleges.

THIS WOULD BE quite a godsend to some districts, such as Ophir Elementary School District in Placer County, which in fiscal 1970 was able with a $2.35 tax rate to provide only $297 per pupil for what the state classified as "current expenses of education" (not the whole per-pupil cost, since it doesn't include everything).

On the other hand, it would be no help to the taxpayers of Vista Del Mar Elementary School District in Santa Barbara County, who in the same year paid a tax rate of only $1.23 to provide $1,065 for "current expenses of education" of each pupil.

To the school board and taxpayers of Ophir District, SB 801 and AB 1406 look like Robin Hood. To those of Vista Del Mar, they look more like the sheriff of Nottingham.

WHAT THE BILLS are all about is "equalization" — a word that appears frequently, but with little meaning, in the present school finance statutes.

The amount of money a school district can spend per pupil varies greatly because of great differences in assessed valuation. In fiscal 1969, according to figures prepared by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, the lowest per-pupil assessed valuation in any elementary district was $125; the highest was $1,156,872.

There are numerous state apportionments, each on a different complicated formula, intended to equalize this. But they don't do the job — which is why Ophir District had to tax its residents at nearly double the rate of Vista Del Mar to spend one-fourth as much money per pupil.

THE SYSTEM PROPOSED in the state Department of Education's bills would not put all districts on equal footing, either; but it would come much closer.

The statewide tax would replace an equal amount in the school district's local tax. Those districts now levying less than the amounts in the statewide tax would have to raise the minimum. Those levying more would have to reduce taxes if they are not spending more per pupil than the law sets up. If they are spending more per pupil, they could either reduce expenditures to the state level or adjust local taxes to make up the difference.

This would mean that Ophir could more than double its expenditure per pupil while reducing its tax rate. But if Vista Del Mar wanted to continue to spend more than $1,000 per pupil, it would have to levy a local tax to make up the excess above $767.

THE PLAN IS NOT likely to fail in the legislature because of the cries from the wealthy districts who see Robin Hood disguised as the sheriff of Nottingham, however.

If it fails, it likely will be because of opposition from the governor's office.

This is because the $3.75 statewide tax rate would not completely fund it. In addition, it would require $400 million more from the state general fund for next year than the schools received from that source this year. And Gov. Ronald Reagan has come out flatly against any increase in state taxes.

HERE'S AN EASY version of the popular Italian cannelloni which uses a canned sauce instead of the "from scratch" method used by more authentic Italian cooks. It also uses spinach for a texture and color contrast.

Serve A Shepherd Stew

The spring lamb harvest this year promises to be an excellent one which should mean good buys and especially those lamb shanks. Here is a cost-conscious lamb stew.

SHEPHERD STYLE BEAN STEW

1 pound dry navy beans
2½ quarts water
1½ pounds lamb shank
1 onion, diced
1 teaspoon powdered ginger
Few grains pepper
1 cup shredded cabbage
1 cup diced carrots
½ cup diced celery
1 cup canned tomatoes

Put beans and water in a large pot. Bring to a boil and cook two minutes. Remove pot from heat and let stand one hour. Then add lamb, onion, ginger, pepper; cover, bring mixture to a boil, reduce heat and simmer gently for two hours. Add cabbage, carrots, celery and tomatoes; continue simmering till vegetables are tender, about 1½ hours. Remove lamb, cut meat off bones and return lamb to stew. Salt and pepper to taste. Makes six servings.

THE SPRING LAMB time is a good time to make this cost-conscious shepherd stew. It combines lamb shanks, vegetables and navy beans and is spiced with ginger, pepper and onions for full flavor. This recipe will serve six.

Glass fiber fabrics are easy to suds, rinse, and use again without ironing.

Try A Streamlined Recipe For Italian Cannelloni

Sunny as Southern Italy itself is this updated version of famous cannelloni. You still have a three-part symphony of pasta, filling and sauce, yet by using seasoned canned tomato herb sauce you eliminate one whole lengthy step of preparation.

The spinach gives interesting texture and color contrast as well as flavor to the cannelloni — makes them look handsome, too. Use a light hand with the dough, to assure its tender freshness.

As for the filling, double up on the cheese and you add depth.

Keep the Italian feeling of this special dish by serving it with just warm crusty bread, a big green salad, followed by fresh fruit for dessert.

TOMATO HERB SAUCED CANNELLONI

1 (10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
3 eggs, slightly beaten
3 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
Double Cheese Filling
1 (15-ounce) can tomato herb sauce
½ cup water
⅓ cup red wine (or water)
¼ pound thin slices Mozzarella cheese

Heat spinach over very low heat until thawed, then cover and continue heating 5 minutes. Drain well, pressing out all water. Combine with eggs; pour into center of flour mixed with salt in mixing bowl.

Blend, then knead about 5 minutes until dough is well mixed and forms a smooth ball. Roll out dough, half at a time, to 1/16-inch thickness on floured board. Cut dough into 3x6-inch rectangles; cook 4 or 5 at a time in boiling water 5 minutes. Drain well, pat dry; cover until all are cooked.

Spoon some of Double Cheese Filling down center of each cannelloni; roll up. Place seam side down, slightly apart in bottom of buttered 3-quart baking dish. Combine tomato herb sauce, water and wine; pour over all. Cover. Bake at 400 degrees 15 minutes. Uncover, arrange Mozzarella slices slightly overlapping down center of casserole; continue baking 10 minutes or until bubbly. Makes 8 to 10 servings of 2 cannelloni each.

DOUBLE CHEESE FILLING: Mix together 1 pound ricotta cheese, ⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon sweet basil, 1 tablespoon finely minced onion and 1 teaspoon salt. Makes abut 2 cups.

Are You A Versatile Cook Using Fresh Asparagus?

There is nothing that compares to the distinct flavor of asparagus. No other vegetable resembles it in shape or flavor.

To most, asparagus means elegance, served on special occasions. As to flavor, adults love it and children barely tolerate it.

After the asparagus stalks are severed from the crown of the plant manually, the cut stalks are brought into the packing house. Here an assembly line of workers sort the asparagus by the diameter of the stalks. The sizing terms are: jumbo, large, standard and small. Each respective size is placed into a crate. "Jumbo" is almost an inch in diameter and the size graduates downward so that small is about a quarter of an inch. The pencil slim stalks in the retail markets are called "extra fancy" and "fancy." Large asparagus is higher priced than the small size. Which size has the best flavor is a personal preference.

Western asparagus comes all but ready to pop into the boiling water. It is washed during the chilling process at the packing house so there is virtually no grit. Just bend the stalk to snap off the tough portion. Leave it whole or cut into diagonal slices.

Buy asparagus that is cold and with the butt end moist. Keep the stalks cold and moist until ready to cook. "Standard-sized stalks run about 15-16 stalks to the pound and would serve three generously.

One of the quickest ways to cook asparagus is to put two cups of water, ½ teaspoon of salt in an electric frypan or regular skillet. Bring the water to a boil. Fill the bottom with a layer of asparagus. Put the lid on and cook over medium heat. Check for tenderness in about four minutes, but it may take a couple more minutes.

Most western asparagus will be tender crisp with green color and delicious flavor within five minutes. There is no set time because each batch of asparagus will vary. Also try the quick-fry method for cooking asparagus called Fresh Asparagus Cantonese in the recipes. The garlic can be left out and a tablespoon of sherry or soy sauce added just before removing from heat.

FRESH ASPARAGUS CANTONESE

2 tablespoons oil
1 clove garlic, pressed
2 pounds fresh asparagus, sliced on diagonal
salt and pepper

In frying pan heat oil almost to the smoking point. Stir in Garlic Then add asparagus. Cover. Then, like popping corn, shake pan rather vigorously for 3-5 minutes. Asparagus should be tender crisp. Season with salt and pepper.

ASPARAGUS VINAIGRETTE

3 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup vinegar
¾ cup salad oil
Pepper to taste
1 bunch fresh asparagus, cooked and chilled
Pimiento

Combine all ingredients except asparagus. Shake or beat dressing until blended. Pour over asparagus in shallow dish and marinate in refrigerator for several hours. Garnish with bits of pimiento. Makes 4 servings.

ASPARAGUS-HAM ROLL UPS

1 pound asparagus
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon bottled steak sauce
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
4 slices cooked ham
4 slices processed cheese
4 frankfurter buns
Foil

Cook asparagus; drain and chill. Combine mayonnaise, steak sauce, and instant onion. Arrange cheese on ham slices; spread with mayonnaise mixture. Top with a few spears of asparagus. Roll up like a jelly roll. Place in frankfurter buns. Wrap in foil. Bake in 375° F. oven for 10-15 minutes until warm. Serve. Makes 4 servings.

SUGGESTIONS

On a bed of iceberg lettuce, put cold, crisp cooked spears garnished with crumbled bacon, grated hard-cooked egg and a cherry tomato cut in half. Serve with Italian or French dressing.

Cooked asparagus tossed with pieces of walnuts sauteed in butter and a dash of garlic salt.

They're Singled Out For Volunteer Efforts

Instead of honoring a single volunteer, the Volunteer Bureau of Marin selected four volunteers as its "Volunteer of the Year" at its annual meeting yesterday.

The bureau's executive director, Mrs. Marion Kelley, explained, "Our award has multiplied this year in proportion to our activities. We have grown and the number of people who keep our operation going has increased."

Award winners are Mrs. Eugene Demings, a general volunteer; Col. Deane Gough, volunteer administrator of the new Wheels for Marin transportation program; Robert R. Beebe, volunteer for the Department of Public Social Services; and Planned Parenthood of Marin, the first agency to be honored.

Mrs. Eugene Demings, a 50 year resident of San Rafael, is "the prototype of one of our greatest assets, the general volunteer", said Mrs. Kelley. In the past five years Mrs. Demings has been "on call for spot jobs". Her specialty is clerical work, handling mailings, filing, typing, answering the telephone. She works two mornings each week for the Red Cross and does one or two other jobs wherever she's needed, often at the Volunteer Bureau.

Mrs. Demings was once offered a paid job for a position she was temporarily filling as a volunteer. She says, "I had to turn it down. I couldn't face giving up the pleasures of being a volunteer. I really love the behind the scenes glimpses I have of the different agencies and the dedicated people who work for them."

"WHEELS FOR Marin is one of our most exciting ventures to date", says Mrs. Kelley, "and without Col. Deane Gough, volunteer administrator, we couldn't keep the wheels rolling."

Wheels for Marin is a county wide coordinated program, launched a year ago by the Volunteer Bureau for transporting elderly, ill and handicapped persons for medical, psychiatric and dental care they would otherwise be denied. The program assists some 350 patients a month, using 45 volunteer drivers and two donated full time vehicles (most of the volunteers use their own cars).

Colonel Gough, who started as a volunteer driver, now spends every weekday morning handling administrative and detail work of the program.

He recruits and trains drivers, maintains the vehicles, handles reports and correspondence with agencies, patients and doctors, prepares the agenda and minutes for steering committee meetings, and sometimes fills in as a driver.

After 30 years in the Army, the last 12 as a transportation officer, and eight as a math teacher, Gough says,

"I find more genuine satisfaction in this than either of my two other careers. People are being rehabilitated by our program and this is a rewarding thing for all of us."

ROBERT BEEBE gives the people of Marin 32 hours of his time dvewy week and loves doint it. For the past year he has been a volunteer employee in the department of Public Social Services, working in the eligibility control and validation section.

Beebe and his wife have lived in Marin County for 30 years. He retired from the railroad in July of 1969 and worked in his garden and on building projects at home until leisure began to pall. Mrs. Mary Boden, who directs volunteers for DPSS, was asked to put out a call for businessmen who would come and look at department procedures with an eye to discovering ways to cut costs and increase efficiency.

"This and the training and supervision of new volunteers have been Bob Beebe's main jobs for the past year", says Mrs. Boden, "and by now he is one of our most valuable volunteers." Additionally Beebe is now coordinating the Kappa Kappa Gamma Phone Pal Project within the department.

The Board of Supervisors have appointed Beebe a member of the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee. He is serving on two of its subcommittees; public information and quality of services rendered by DPSS. He recently received a special award from the supervisors for outstanding services to the community.

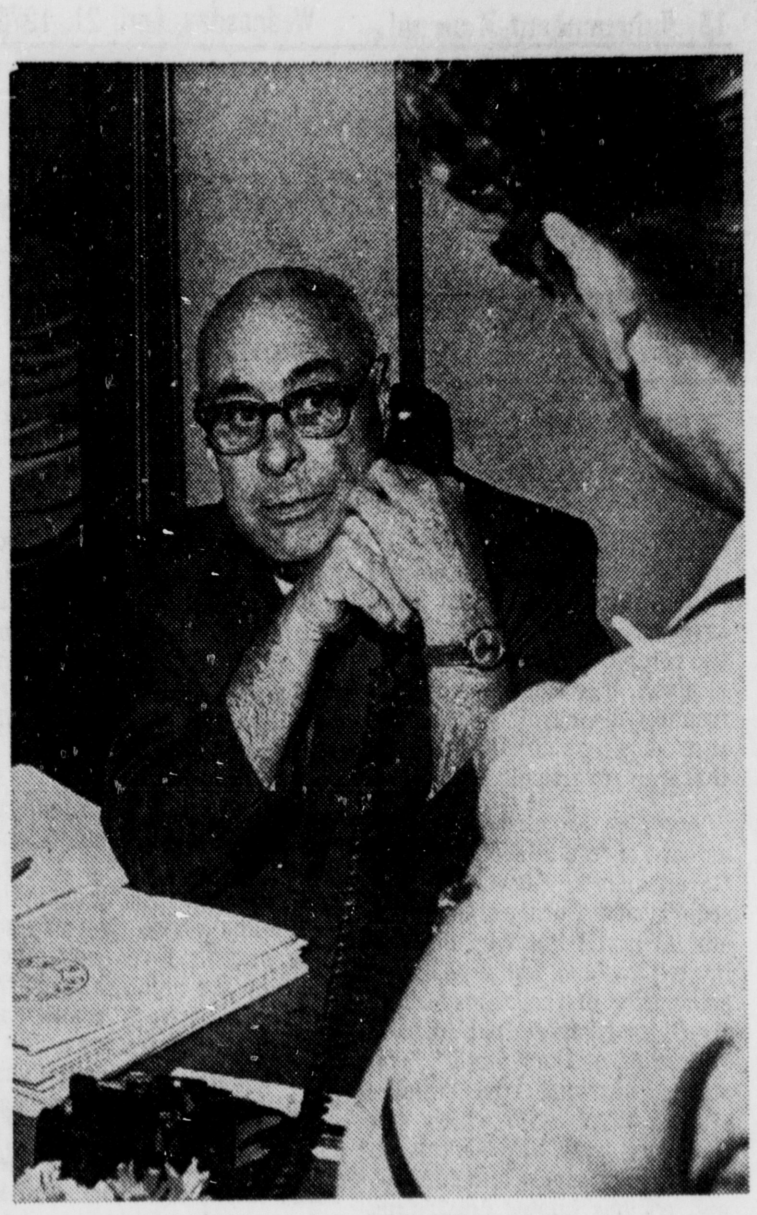
"The Volunteer Bureau refers about 80 volunteers a month to various agencies", says Mrs. Kelley. "Part of our job is to be concerned with what happens to the volunteer after leaving here. Planned Parenthood of Marin has a particularly outstanding Volunteer Program. A sophisticated training course and a professional approach in the way they Treat volunteers are a large part of their success."

PLANNED PARENTHOOD volunteers work a four hour shift in the office once a week. Their duties include greeting patients and identifying their needs, selling birth control supplies to enrolled patients, making appointments for visits and pregnancy testing, answering the telephone and either referring questions to staff or providing general non-technical information about the agency's programs.

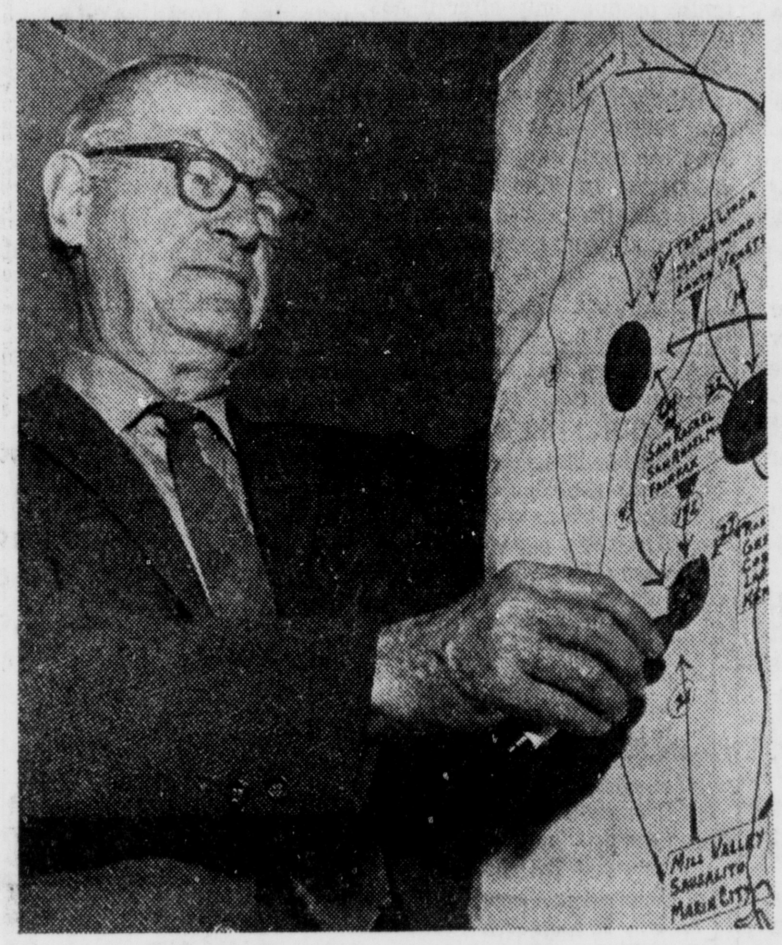
"Being a volunteer here requires dedication and committment,'' says Mrs. George Lawrence, volunteer coordinator and herself a volunteer. "We have about 25 general volunteers (an additional 33 are nurses and lab technicians) ranging from young married women without children to grandmothers, and they all share this dedication."

Mrs. Terence Grew, orientation chairman, says that the goals of Planned Parenthood's training program are to familiarize the volunteer with all phases of the agency's activities as well as the more specific training for their own job. Training consists of four three hour a week group sessions and then two or three sessions on the job with a trained volunteer. Initial training is reinforced by monthly volunteer workshops, where any new procedures are described and volunteers can discuss problems.

LINDA BELDON, a new, enthusiastic volunteer at Planned Parenthood likes her job because, "We're providing a service that couldn't be done by anyone else. We're doing our part to solve the population problem but, more important, we're helping people with their personal problems and I'm glad to be a part of this."



VOLUNTEER — Robert Beebe has been singled out for an annual award by the Volunteer Bureau of Marin for his donation of 32 hours a week training and supervising volunteers for the Department of Public Social Services at the Civic Center. Here he pauses to talk with Mary Boden, who directs volunteers for DPSS.



ADMINISTRATIVE AND detail work of keeping Wheels for Marin on the road transporting ill, elderly and handicapped persons to medical appointments is handled Each weekday morning by volunteer Col. Deane Gough. A former Army man and a teacher, he says he finds more satisfaction in his volunteer work than he did in either of his two paid careers.

SKILLED AND reliable volunteers such as Mrs. Eugene Demings, left, are what keeps much of the agencies' clerical work going smoothly, and Mrs. Demings has been singled out as a Volunteer of the Year. Here she discusses the day's work with Mrs. Jan Shaw, center, Volunteer Bureau secretary; and Mrs. Margery Sell, staff worker of the bureau.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Isn't the Government Report On Obscenity Free Advertising?

DEAR HELEN:

It always amuses me when I read a story about a girl being arrested for "soliciting," and the complete name and address is given. If she gets out on bail (usually the case), you can be sure business improves with that free advertising.

Now I've come across another case of free advertising. The Government's Report on Obscenity and Pornography is in our library. I thumbed through it today and found a list of some fifty of the "most offensive" magazines, names and addresses of the "adult" book stores carrying the wildest stuff, ratings as to which was the worst and why — this on books, magazines, and films — and copious quotes illustrating what's dirty, and what has "redeeming social value."

All an interested person need do is refer to this book and he's on his way to pre-graded pornography. He can even get quite a bit of it in the report.

I realize the commission came out against censorhip, but must they all but sponsor "pay dirt"? — LAUGHING, KIND OF

DEAR LAUGHING:

A report isn't a report unless it names names and gives examples.

I'm laughing-kind-of too, for I suppose you realize you just gave the book you condemn a heap of free advertising. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I was a widower for several years, then met this woman and married her. She left me after three months to return to her mother whom she evidently couldn't live without.

I happen to know that my mother-in-law is running a business under my wife's name so that she can collect Social Security at the same time.

I want my wife and our expected child back. Should I threaten to turn the mother in if she doesn't make her daughter return to me? I've dug up enough on "Mamma" to give her a good scare. — LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME:

If threats are your way of winning back a wife, I don't wonder that she left. Change your tune or you'll always be a soloist. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This is in answer to "Ardent but Annoyed," whose husband has the "paws that repulse." Mine, too.

I would love a kiss or an occasional embrace, but no: He grabs, pokes, pinches. I feel his only interest is in my body, not me, and I'm constantly embarrassed in front of the children or friends. I've tried to explain, but he says there's something wrong with me. Why can't men see that this turns basically warm women cold? — W.B.

DEAR HELEN:

I just had to tell "Ardent but Annoyed? she is not alone. Don't get me wrong. I think children should be brought up in a home where they can see their parents love each other, but they are quick to know the difference between really caring and just the sex urge.

A husband who holds your hand, gives you a loving pat, has something nice to say to you and makes you feel sheltered in his arms will find he has created a passionate, happy, eager partner, after the bedroom door closes, or when they are alone.

I hope my husband reads this and understands a little better. He, too, has felt rejected at times, because he simply can't understand that women respond to gentleness. — HOPEFUL

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent Journal.

EXCHANGING VOWS in a redwood grove at Samuel P. Taylor Park, Robert Burkhart and Kerry Mertle were married Saturday in Renaissance style attire. A string quartet played Bulgarian and Macedonian folk music during the ceremony. Kerry is the daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Mertle of San Rafael. The couple will live in San Rafael after an Hawaiian wedding trip.

Hems Hover At Knee-Lengths

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI)—The leg fanciers appear to have won. The French winter ready-to-wear fashion collection this week sticks to short lengths and virtually banishes midi-maxis in favor of knee-hovering hemlines.

"Hot pants," under warm capes and coats or in luxurious fabrics for evening, proved they were not just a passing fad by making an appearance in the 21st biannual ready-to-wear exhibition of some 725 French designers and manufacturers this week.

The leg, in fact, hidden by midcalf and ankle-flapping clothes for a couple of seasons, made a comeback and was back in view. Ready-to-wear designers, following the cue of Paris high fashion that hiked skirts for spring last January, compromised with hemlines hovering from top of the kneecap to just below.

SOME MANUFACTURERS said it was the anti-midi mood in the United States and Canada that forced the French to make what may be the fastest fashion retreat in costume history and one of the biggest French retreats since Waterloo.

The shorts in view in the ready-to-wear exposition halls at the Salon de Versailles and private showrooms were the only dizzy note. Paris clothes have calmed down to sober, classic coats and dresses and even suits, which have not been in such profusion for years.

The long trouser suit also won out over knickers and gauchos and was prominent in almost every collection. Some houses tried long, full trousers gathered at the ankle. Only a few houses catering to young girls stuck to their principles and displayed midi dresses, maxi coats and knickers and even brought back some mini dresses.

WHAT THE high fashion houses will do in their winter collections next July will exert even more influence on the perpetual Paris battle over whether women should have the choice of any length.

Some deluxe, ready-to-wear designers announced they decided to end the "anarchy" in fashion by forming their own organization, "Gep," and laying down a "party line" as to length, and even styles. The member designers staged their own show at the Hilton Hotel, and all the models, true to the rules, had the same styles and colors.

The "Gep"-regimented line included long trouser suits for both day and evening, suits with long belted jackets, fitted coats with belts and fox or beaver collars and hembands, cocktail dresses at the knee, long evening gowns and shorts worn with matching jackets, capes or suits.

The general look of the ready-to-wear shows is a narrow silhouette with a natural, belted waistline and shoulders wider than usual through capelets or turned up shoulder taps like a Buck Rogers suit. The new fabric is Scotch plaid, often shaggy and rough, for capes, coat linings, coats, trousers and dresses.

Thick, quilted cotton also joined the winter fashion lineup. The big coat style is the "secret agent" trenchcoat, often with short, detachable capelet.

The muddy colors of the past season also have been abandoned by the Paris ready-to-wear, with yellow, apricot, orange, bright blue and kelly-green coats sparkling in many collections. Wide, decorative zippers abound on coats in the shows often were printed or embroidered. Geometric and "art nouveau" prints still are with us.

The World War Two look of Yves Saint Laurent's high fashion shows last January had little effect on the French winter ready-to-wear, except for some square-shouldered blazer jackets, long curly hair, bright lipstick and platform-soled shoes.

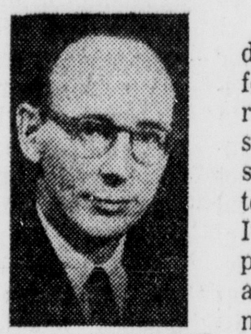
Cosmetic Industry Racing To Improve Ahead Of Law

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE



WASHINGTON — Consumerism is having an effect on the cosmetic industry. It is racing to make voluntary improvements before public demands for them become expressed in new restrictive laws.

The principal industry organization, the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association has formally asked the Food and Drug Administration to set up two procedures under its authority to police cosmetic products.

One would require producers of such items to register with the agency in Washington. The other would require producers to supply the agency with lists of ingredients for each product sold to the public.

The only catch is that the latter information would be kept confidential and would be used only by government officials. Presumably, the government could then issue warnings and take action on the basis of the information, but the lists could not be released to the public.

This may not sound like much of a step forward in view of the increasing need of the public for information that relates to personal allergies. But it is a major breakthrough for an industry that sells beauty, miracles, the "natural look" and other promises with mysterious, secret formulas.

Critics of the industry, including some females, insist that disclosure of actual ingredients would reveal that many expensive products contain little more than cheap emulsifiers, waxes and perfumes.

Others say that most buyers don't really want to know what lies underneath the pretty, nice-smelling substances as long as there is no danger of getting an allergic reaction from them.

For many years, the industry has successfully resisted efforts to require cosmetics to be tested for safety before they can be sold publicly. Most manufacturers already do test for their own protection. to cut down the chance of being sued for injuries.

Few buyers realize that the government does not have power to require such testing and can take action against a cosmetic product only after it has compiled evidence of personal injury.

Although injuries are a serious matter — hair dyes have been the most dangerous — the proportion of injuries to total sales is extremely small. So the issue has not received much publicity.

Apparently, the industry has decided that the best way to fend off perennial attempts to require pre-market testing for safety and demands for disclosure of ingredients on labels is to move ahead in other ways. Its recent petitions were approved by Association directors after many discussions with members over a long period of time.

The Association is also trying to get industry approval for a set of voluntary guidelines to assure product quality through adherence to certain manufacturing practices. Keeping products free from bacterial contamination has been a constant problem, especially for skin lotions.

The chief crusader for more control over cosmetics is Rep. Leonore Sullivan (D-Mo.), the author of bills in each Congress for pretesting products for safety.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Isn't the Government Report On Obscenity Free Advertising?

DEAR HELEN:

It always amuses me when I read a story about a girl being arrested for "soliciting," and the complete name and address is given. If she gets out on bail (usually the case), you can be sure business improves with that free advertising.

Now I've come across another case of free advertising. The Government's Report on Obscenity and Pornography is in our library. I thumbed through it today and found a list of some fifty of the "most offensive" magazines, names and addresses of the "adult" book stores carrying the wildest stuff, ratings as to which was the worst and why — this on books, magazines, and films — and copious quotes illustrating what's dirty, and what has "redeeming social value."

All an interested person need do is refer to this book and he's on his way to pre-graded pornography. He can even get quite a bit of it in the report.

I realize the commission came out against censorhip, but must they all but sponsor "pay dirt"? — LAUGHING, KIND OF

DEAR LAUGHING:

A report isn't a report unless it names names and gives examples.

I'm laughing-kind-of too, for I suppose you realize you just gave the book you condemn a heap of free advertising. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I was a widower for several years, then met this woman and married her. She left me after three months to return to her mother whom she evidently couldn't live without.

I happen to know that my mother-in-law is running a business under my wife's name so that she can collect Social Security at the same time.

I want my wife and our expected child back. Should I threaten to turn the mother in if she doesn't make her daughter return to me? I've dug up enough on "Mamma" to give her a good scare. — LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME:

If threats are your way of winning back a wife, I don't wonder that she left. Change your tune or you'll always be a soloist. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This is in answer to "Ardent but Annoyed," whose husband has the "paws that repulse." Mine, too.

I would love a kiss or an occasional embrace, but no: He grabs, pokes, pinches. I feel his only interest is in my body, not me, and I'm constantly embarrassed in front of the children or friends. I've tried to explain, but he says there's something wrong with me. Why can't men see that this turns basically warm women cold? — W.B.

DEAR HELEN:

I just had to tell "Ardent but Annoyed? she is not alone. Don't get me wrong. I think children should be brought up in a home where they can see their parents love each other, but they are quick to know the difference between really caring and just the sex urge.

A husband who holds your hand, gives you a loving pat, has something nice to say to you and makes you feel sheltered in his arms will find he has created a passionate, happy, eager partner, after the bedroom door closes, or when they are alone.

I hope my husband reads this and understands a little better. He, too, has felt rejected at times, because he simply can't understand that women respond to gentleness. — HOPEFUL

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent Journal.

EXCHANGING VOWS in a redwood grove at Samuel P. Taylor Park, Robert Burkhart and Kerry Mertle were married Saturday in Renaissance style attire. A string quartet played Bulgarian and Macedonian folk music during the ceremony. Kerry is the daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Mertle of San Rafael. The couple will live in San Rafael after an Hawaiian wedding trip.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus. Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson was born April 21, 1893.

On this day in history:

In 753 B.C. Rome was founded by Romulus, according to ancient legend.

In 1954 U.S. Air Force planes began flying French troops from Paris to Indo-China to reinforce the beseiged bastor at Dienbienphu.

A thought for today: French novelist Andrew Maurois said, "Housekeeping in common is for women the acid test."

Ross Boy, 9, Hurt In Crash

A 9-year-old Ross boy was injured Sunday at 2 p.m. when his bicycle collided with a car at the intersection of Meadow and Laurel Grove avenues in Kentfield, it was reported yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol said he was riding his bicycle south on Meadow Avenue when he turned left onto Laurel Grove and collided with a westbound auto driven by Robert M. Dorinson, 20, of Laurel Grove Avenue, Ross.

RUFFS HEART

South ruffed the second heart and drew four rounds of trumps. Then he took his three club tricks, reserving the diamonds until the end.

East, who was not an agent of the aforementioned kindly Providence, had saved all of his diamonds and defeated the slam with the jack of diamonds. "Nice try," East remarked admiringly to South. "If there had been a fifth suit, I'd have wondered whether to save the diamonds."

"No need to apologize," South replied graciously. He hadn't quite understood East and didn't like to make a fellow bridge player unhappy. South needn't have worried since his faulty lin e of play had actually made East very happy.

ONLY TWO ROUNDS

South should make the slam by drawing only two rounds of trumps and then taking the top diamonds. If the six missing diamonds happen to divide equally, there is no danger in testing the diamonds before drawing all of the trumps.

If the diamonds happen to divide unequally, South's best chance to dispose of his fourth diamond is to ruff it in the dummy. And if South wants to adopt such a plan, he must keep a trump in the dummy.

TOP DIAMONDS

After taking the top diamonds and ruffing the fourth diamond, South returns to his hand with a club and draws the rest of the trumps. The slam is then safe and South can recover from his temporary feeling of insecurity.

RHUBARB TIME — Nancy Herman in star spangled, red, white and blue hotpants wants the world to know it's that time in Tam Valley, time for the 17th annual Rhubarb Revue''. She will be one of the dancers enlivening the brash ''do'' the next four weekends.

'Rhubarb Revue' To Open Friday

The 17th annual "Rhubarb Revue" will roar into the Tamalpais Valley Community Center Friday, complete with musical and theatrical satires of most of today's burning issues, including women's liberation, the generation gap, hippies and doctors.

The event - the oldest continuing show if its kind in Marin - is sponsored by the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club and will run for four consecutive weekends with shows scheduled this Friday and Saturday and April 30 and May 1, 7, 8, 14 and 15.

The revue will be presented at 8:30 p.m. each night in the Tamalpais Valley Community Center, Marin Avenue and Tennessee Valley Road, according to publicity chairman Jack Adams.

Directed by Bernie Healey, who has directed about six of the shows in past years, the revue will feature 18 individual acts, including skits, singing and dancing.

Adams said the revue received its name during a heated discussion over what to call the show, which began in 1955. "As the meeting was about to $reak up, one club member shook his head and said: 'What a rhubarb!" he recalled, "and that became the name."

Proceeds from the revue will benefit the improvement club's building fund and help pay for the newly-completed community center, according to Adams.

Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Robert M. Glessner, 432 Live Oak Drive, Tamalpais Valley.

High School Vocalists To Give Show

Performances also will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Proceeds will go to the music department's scholarship fund and children under 12 will be admitted without charge, reported John W. Enders, choral instructor.

The audience will be seated at tables in a caberet atmosphere and student singers will impersonate noted singers, Enders said.

Scholarship Winners To Perform

Winners of scholarships offered by the Marin County branch of the Music Teachers Association of California and a member of the Young Artist Guild will present a concert Saturday at 8 p.m. in the choral hall in the Fine Arts Building of the College of Marin.

Scholarship winners in four categories performing in the first half of the program will be lower elementary, Stephen Moyer, 10, Mill Valley; Dan Hill, 9, Mill Valley; Jimmy Walker, 9, Corte Madera.

Advanced: Peter Adler, 17, San Anselmo.

Presenting the second half of the program will be Noly Paa, 20-year-old organist and composer who is a student at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and a member of the Young Artist Guild of the Music Teachers Association of California.

Newman Work

Sculptures by Allan M. Newman of 22 Pico Court, San Rafael, KSFO and Golden West Radio Network executive, will be displayed in the second annual art show sponsored by the Heather Branch of the Childrens Hospital Medical Center of the East Bay from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in the warehouse in Port Costa.

Odette Pupils To Give Recital

A public recital of the piano pupils of James Odette will be given at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club.

ART REVIEW

Flexibility In Machine Study

By KAY KSANDA

Every month at the Art and Garden Center in Ross, the Marin Society of Artists presents a show with a different theme and what it hopes is a pertinent look. Considering this month's theme, "The Machine Aesthetic," the paintings, graphics, sculpture, and one rope hanging are not as mechanical as one might expect.

Of the 608 artists, only 38 are represented in this show which is dominated by the medium of assemblage. The premise for the artist is to create an idea within the theme, translate it into a conveyable medium, then craft it with design and technique.

One of the obvious problems is: what can be done with wheels that has not already been done to death?

A macabre answer from Suzanne Gomberg is a real skull resting on the innards of an old ticker tape machine. A radio voice inside the machine reads off the quotes, while the machine silently squats on its reams of shiny black tape. Titled "Machinator" the entire assemblage-sculpture is encased in an orange plexi-glass cube.

Next to "Machinator" is a long wood-metal assemblage. Although the idea is familiar, the collage-wall hanging of found woods, copper wheels, and iron scraps framed in copper, gleams with tints and resins. The untitled work by Joyce Valprey effects harmony and beauty.

There are some strong paintings, unusual collages and a few graphics. A sparkling large graphite by John Harte titled "Barbary Coast," is a representation of a player piano's workings designed within the Pompein ornamentation of the once-famous building. Created in circles, squares and rectangles, the semi-abstract patterning has humor as well as balance and freshness.

Along the same wall is a pristine embossed design called "Geometrics," by Eleanor Bender. In modern terms, where composition is not considered, it has purity in its use of white with white in milky richness.

Phyllis Taplitz's woodcut "Odessey" is a small, but dramatic surprise in clear blues, reds and yellows leading like roads to the hot rectangle of what seems to be a factory.

Fred Herschleb's watercolor-collage titled "Hello, Hello, Or The Time They Dug Up The Phone Cable" is a powerful painting combining a marvelous ideas with excellent design and craftmanship. From the severed cables spew "K's, E's, K's, A's," letters that tumble and jumble to the ground of tinfoil. Broad flat geometric planes of blue, grey, and alizrian crimson shape the picture.

Award winners are "Barbary Coast,'' graphite by John Harte; "The American Scene," collage by Phyllis Taplitz; "Machinator," sculpture by Susan Gomberg; "Cosmic Blues," a striking two-dimensional plexiglass hanging by Nelcy Tarics; and "Hello, Hello . . .," watercolor by Fred Hershleb. shleb.

Honorable mention should go to the hanging committee for their sculpture blocks and walls of sepia, black, and white. The show will run through May 2, daily from 1 to 4 p.m.

Four School Budgets To Be Studied

Four different plans for use of existing school facilties in the Sausalito School District and the budgets each proposal would require will be considered by the district board at a special meeting at 7 p.m. today in Bayside School.

The four proposals are: 1. All grades at Martin Luther King School including moving of portables to King and dividing school into sections for older and younger chldren; 2. Grades 1-8 at King, with kindergarten at Manzanita School; 3. All grades in existing facilities at King and 4. Kindergarten through fifth grades at Manzanita with remaining grades at Bayside.

Although Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg did not have exact cost figures for implementing each plan, he has prepared four budgets for operating the district next year, each one incorporating one proposal.

The total district budget needed for plan one would be $957,035, according to the superintendent, while the second plan would mean a $951,673 expenditure. The third plan would require a $922,048 spending program, he said, and the fourth proposal would require a 1,247,455 budget.

Yellowstone In 'Bad Shape' For Confab

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., says Yellowstone National Park is in such bad shape that a major part of the celebration marking its 100th birthday next will probably will have to be held somewhere else.

Melcher said accommodations and conditions in the park are such that an international conference on national parks — a feature of the centennial — will probably be held at nearby Grand Teton National Park.

Zone Board Adopts A Budget

The Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board has adopted a $407,000 budget for 1971-72, most of it earmarked for improvements along Novato Creek.

Charles E. Murphy, Marin County flood control engineer, estimated the budget approved by directors Monday night will carry a tax rate of 23 cents per $100 assessed valuation, up 3.5 cents from the current rate.

The budget is $103,800 higher than the current budget, but there is $234,000 in carryover funds, leaving $172,900 to be raised by taxes, Murphy reported.

Directors decided that $325,000 should be designated as "Novato Creek Project Reserve" for any needed creek improvements.

The Army Corps of Engineers is working on a plan to cover both Novato and Warner creeks.

Murphy said the corps' project calls for improving Novato Creek to Highway 37, but provides only for dredging beyond that point.

Directors supported interim zoning in the lower Novato Creek area, so development can be controlled to avoid problems in future creek work, Murphy said.

Controversial Pastor Due Seminary Job

A clergyman charged before a Senate subcommittee with allowing his church to be used as an arsenal for Black Chicago street gangs, is expected to be appointed lecturer at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Trustees will vote May 4 on the administration's recommendation of Rev. John R. Fry, 46, as visiting lecturer. Fry will teach for one year at the school, if approved, and will not be a member of the seminary's regular teaching staff, according to Michael F. Hughes, vice-president for development.

He will teach social ethics at the castle seminary, oldest and largest graduate school for the clergy in the West.

Fry, a white minister, resigned April 5 from his postion as pastor of Chicago's First Presbyterian Church and the following day 23 members of a black street gang he worked with were indicted on federal charges of defrauding funds intended for a training program for ghetto youths.

Before a 1968 Senate subcommittee he was charged by witnesses as having allowed the Blackstone Rangers — now known as the P. Stone Nation — to store arms in his church.

Governing bodies of the Presbytery of Chicago and First Church labeled the charges unfounded along with others claiming Fry condoned drug parties and encouraged extortion.

"He is a brilliant man and a popular teacher," said Dr. Arnold B. Come, seminary president, and a friend of Fry. Come said the seminary received a grant for Fry to teach there from the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

He said Fry will spend about half of his time teaching and the other half studying and writing. He currently teaches part time at the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago.

RHUBARB TIME — Nancy Herman in star spangled, red, white and blue hotpants wants the world to know it's that time in Tam Valley, time for the 17th annual Rhubarb Revue''. She will be one of the dancers enlivening the brash ''do'' the next four weekends.

17th ANNUAL

'Rhubarb Revue' To Open Friday

The 17th annual "Rhubarb Revue" will roar into the Tamalpais Valley Community Center Friday, complete with musical and theatrical satires of most of today's burning issues, including women's liberation, the generation gap, hippies and doctors.

The event - the oldest continuing show if its kind in Marin - is sponsored by the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club and will run for four consecutive weekends with shows scheduled this Friday and Saturday and April 30 and May 1, 7, 8, 14 and 15.

The revue will be presented at 8:30 p.m. each night in the Tamalpais Valley Community Center, Marin Avenue and Tennessee Valley Road, according to publicity chairman Jack Adams.

Directed by Bernie Healey, who has directed about six of the shows in past years, the revue will feature 18 individual acts, including skits, singing and dancing.

Adams said the revue received its name during a heated discussion over what to call the show, which began in 1955. "As the meeting was about to $reak up, one club member shook his head and said: 'What a rhubarb!" he recalled, "and that became the name."

Proceeds from the revue will benefit the improvement club's building fund and help pay for the newly-completed community center, according to Adams.

Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Robert M. Glessner, 432 Live Oak Drive, Tamalpais Valley.

High School Vocalists To Give Show

Performances also will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Proceeds will go to the music department's scholarship fund and children under 12 will be admitted without charge, reported John W. Enders, choral instructor.

The audience will be seated at tables in a caberet atmosphere and student singers will impersonate noted singers, Enders said.

Scholarship Winners To Perform

Winners of scholarships offered by the Marin County branch of the Music Teachers Association of California and a member of the Young Artist Guild will present a concert Saturday at 8 p.m. in the choral hall in the Fine Arts Building of the College of Marin.

Scholarship winners in four categories performing in the first half of the program will be lower elementary, Stephen Moyer, 10, Mill Valley; Dan Hill, 9, Mill Valley; Jimmy Walker, 9, Corte Madera.

Advanced: Peter Adler, 17, San Anselmo.

Presenting the second half of the program will be Noly Paa, 20-year-old organist and composer who is a student at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and a member of the Young Artist Guild of the Music Teachers Association of California.

Newman Work

Sculptures by Allan M. Newman of 22 Pico Court, San Rafael, KSFO and Golden West Radio Network executive, will be displayed in the second annual art show sponsored by the Heather Branch of the Childrens Hospital Medical Center of the East Bay from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in the warehouse in Port Costa.

Odette Pupils To Give Recital

A public recital of the piano pupils of James Odette will be given at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club.

ART REVIEW

Flexibility In Machine Study

By KAY KSANDA

Every month at the Art and Garden Center in Ross, the Marin Society of Artists presents a show with a different theme and what it hopes is a pertinent look. Considering this month's theme, "The Machine Aesthetic," the paintings, graphics, sculpture, and one rope hanging are not as mechanical as one might expect.

Of the 608 artists, only 38 are represented in this show which is dominated by the medium of assemblage. The premise for the artist is to create an idea within the theme, translate it into a conveyable medium, then craft it with design and technique.

One of the obvious problems is: what can be done with wheels that has not already been done to death?

A macabre answer from Suzanne Gomberg is a real skull resting on the innards of an old ticker tape machine. A radio voice inside the machine reads off the quotes, while the machine silently squats on its reams of shiny black tape. Titled "Machinator" the entire assemblage-sculpture is encased in an orange plexi-glass cube.

Next to "Machinator" is a long wood-metal assemblage. Although the idea is familiar, the collage-wall hanging of found woods, copper wheels, and iron scraps framed in copper, gleams with tints and resins. The untitled work by Joyce Valprey effects harmony and beauty.

There are some strong paintings, unusual collages and a few graphics. A sparkling large graphite by John Harte titled "Barbary Coast," is a representation of a player piano's workings designed within the Pompein ornamentation of the once-famous building. Created in circles, squares and rectangles, the semi-abstract patterning has humor as well as balance and freshness.

Along the same wall is a pristine embossed design called "Geometrics," by Eleanor Bender. In modern terms, where composition is not considered, it has purity in its use of white with white in milky richness.

Phyllis Taplitz's woodcut "Odessey" is a small, but dramatic surprise in clear blues, reds and yellows leading like roads to the hot rectangle of what seems to be a factory.

Fred Herschleb's watercolor-collage titled "Hello, Hello, Or The Time They Dug Up The Phone Cable" is a powerful painting combining a marvelous ideas with excellent design and craftmanship. From the severed cables spew "K's, E's, K's, A's," letters that tumble and jumble to the ground of tinfoil. Broad flat geometric planes of blue, grey, and alizrian crimson shape the picture.

Award winners are "Barbary Coast," graphite by John Harte; "The American Scene," collage by Phyllis Taplitz; "Machinator," sculpture by Susan Gomberg; "Cosmic Blues," a striking two-dimensional plexiglass hanging by Nelcy Tarics; and "Hello, Hello . . .," watercolor by Fred Hershleb. shleb.

Honorable mention should go to the hanging committee for their sculpture blocks and walls of sepia, black, and white. The show will run through May 2, daily from 1 to 4 p.m.

Four School Budgets To Be Studied

Four different plans for use of existing school facilties in the Sausalito School District and the budgets each proposal would require will be considered by the district board at a special meeting at 7 p.m. today in Bayside School.

The four proposals are: 1. All grades at Martin Luther King School including moving of portables to King and dividing school into sections for older and younger chldren; 2. Grades 1-8 at King, with kindergarten at Manzanita School; 3. All grades in existing facilities at King and 4. Kindergarten through fifth grades at Manzanita with remaining grades at Bayside.

Although Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg did not have exact cost figures for implementing each plan, he has prepared four budgets for operating the district next year, each one incorporating one proposal.

The total district budget needed for plan one would be $957,035, according to the superintendent, while the second plan would mean a $951,673 expenditure. The third plan would require a $922,048 spending program, he said, and the fourth proposal would require a 1,247,455 budget.

Yellowstone In 'Bad Shape' For Confab

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., says Yellowstone National Park is in such bad shape that a major part of the celebration marking its 100th birthday next will probably will have to be held somewhere else.

Melcher said accommodations and conditions in the park are such that an international conference cn national parks — a feature of the centennial — will probably be held at nearby Grand Teton National Park.

Zone Board Adopts A Budget

The Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board has adopted a $407,000 budget for 1971-72, most of it earmarked for improvements along Novato Creek.

Charles E. Murphy, Marin County flood control engineer, estimated the budget approved by directors Monday night will carry a tax rate of 23 cents per $100 assessed valuation, up 3.5 cents from the current rate.

The budget is $103,800 higher than the current budget, but there is $234,000 in carryover funds, leaving $172,900 to be raised by taxes, Murphy reported.

Directors decided that $325,000 should be designated as "Novato Creek Project Reserve" for any needed creek improvements.

The Army Corps of Engineers is working on a plan to cover both Novato and Warner creeks.

Murphy said the corps' project calls for improving Novato Creek to Highway 37, but provides only for dredging beyond that point.

Directors supported interim zoning in the lower Novato Creek area, so development can be controlled to avoid problems in future creek work, Murphy said.

Controversial Pastor Due Seminary Job

A clergyman charged before a Senate subcommittee with allowing his church to be used as an arsenal for Black Chicago street gangs, is expected to be appointed lecturer at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Trustees will vote May 4 on the administration's recommendation of Rev. John R. Fry, 46, as visiting lecturer. Fry will teach for one year at the school, if approved, and will not be a member of the seminary's regular teaching staff, according to Michael F. Hughes, vice-president for development.

He will teach social ethics at the castle seminary, oldest and largest graduate school for the clergy in the West.

Fry, a white minister, resigned April 5 from his postion as pastor of Chicago's First Presbyterian Church and the following day 23 members of a black street gang he worked with were indicted on federal charges of defrauding funds intended for a training program for ghetto youths.

Before a 1968 Senate subcommittee he was charged by witnesses as having allowed the Blackstone Rangers — now known as the P. Stone Nation — to store arms in his church.

Governing bodies of the Presbytery of Chicago and First Church labeled the charges unfounded along with others claiming Fry condoned drug parties and encouraged extortion.

"He is a brilliant man and a popular teacher," said Dr. Arnold B. Come, seminary president, and a friend of Fry. Come said the seminary received a grant for Fry to teach there from the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

He said Fry will spend about half of his time teaching and the other half studying and writing. He currently teaches part time at the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago.

Jet Noise Bill Envisages Hike In Air Fares

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Airline passengers would foot the bill for a five-year program to reduce jet aircraft noise proposed Monday by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

The Senator said the legislation could result in at least a 50 per cent reduction in noise which unnecessarily plagues up to 10 million people.

The Cranston bill would require noise suppression equipment to be installed in some 2,000 commercial jets by the end of 1974.

The legislation would authorize $1 billion in federal loan guarantees to help airlines finance the program and a 1 1-2 per cent fare increase to enable them to repay the loans.

In addition, the bill would authorize a $35 million research program to develop noise dampers for jet engines.

Coors Reports Big Collection

The Adolph Coors Co., which has been buying back aluminum cans in Marin for 13 months, announced it collected 2.4 million pounds of cans in 11 western states in the first three months of this year.

Coors' purchaser in San Rafael, Golden Gate Distributing Co., 1942 Fourth Street, takes all aluminum cans, regardless of manufacturer, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Mondays and Fridays.

Since it began its cash for cans program last year, Coors reported, it has bought back almost 200 million cans and paid out $865,231.

The program is not restricted to Coors cans. Coors pays 10 cents a pound — about 23 cans — for the returned cans and announced in February that all of the company's beer bottles are returnable for one cent each.

94 Per Cent In Felony Convictions

By MARY LEYDECKER

Ninety-four per cent of the felony crimes disposed of last year in Marin Superior Court ended with convictions, the third highest rate in the state, according to statistics just released.

Figures provided by the Bureau of Criminal Statistics of the Department of Justice also revelaed:

1. Marijuana offenses and burglary were the most numerous types of felony charges in Marin.
2. The overwhelming percentage of defendants in superior court were Caucasians.
3. More than two-thirds of the defendants were sentenced within six months after they were charged with crimes in superior court.
4. The highest number of persons in Marin's history, 38, were sent to state prison.
5. The most common sentence, however, was probation with some jail time.

Marin Asst. Dist. Atty Gary W. Thomas said that the statistics showed that only Ventura (97.2 per cent) and Kern (96.6) per cent surpassed Marin in conviction rates in 1970.

Out of a total of 311 defendants in Marin Superior Court whose cases were concluded last year, 293 were found guilty either through their own pleas or after a trial.

The 18 cases which ended in dismissal included only seven in which the defendants were actually acquitted. The other 11 were dismissed either on a motion by the district attorney, for lack of evidence, transfer of the case to juvenile court or in three cases, because the defendants had died.

(The figures do not reflect felony cases dismissed at the municipal court level.)

Only two homicide cases were handled last year in superior court, and both defendants went to state prison.

Marijuana accounted for 86 cases, in which 75 of the defendants pleaded guilty, six cases were dismissed and one person was acquitted. Of those convicted for marijuana offenses, there was an even split (39) of those who did jail tume and those who didn't.

One youth was sentenced to the California Youth Authority, but no one went to state prison last year from Marin for a marijuana conviction.

For the 66 persons convicted of burglary a jail sentence was the most common penalty. Six burglars were sent to state prison, however, and four were committed to the California Rehabilitation Center for drug addiction treatment.

In addition to the marijuana cases, there were 35 felony cases involving opiates, dangerous drugs and other drug offenses. All ended with convictions.

The racial breakdown of the 293 persons convicted of felonies included 251 Caucasians, 30 Negroes, 9 Mexican-Americans and one other race, which was not specified.

No breakdown as to sex was available.

The time defendants waited for their cases to be disposed of ranged from less than a month for 25 persons to more than two years for one defendant charged with a marijuana offense.

About two-thirds of the defendants, however, were sentenced within three months to one year after they were charged in superior court.

In addition to the 38 persons sent to prison last year, five youths were sent to CYA from superior court. Robbery was the crime accounting for the most prison sentences, with seven persons sentenced to prison.

Six were sent to prison for burglary convictions.

A total of 214 defendants received probation, with jail terms included for 135 of these. An additional 25 persons received jail sentences without being placed on probation. Seventy-nine persons were placed on probation without getting jail sentences.

A total of seven persons were committed last year for drug addiction and two defendants were turned over to state mental hospitals.

Marin had cases involving all the types of crimes listed by the justice department ranging from assaults and other crimes of violence through such offenses as forgery except for one category - no one was charged with bookmaking in Marin last year.

Jet Noise Bill Envisages Hike In Air Fares

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Airline passengers would foot the bill for a five-year program to reduce jet aircraft noise proposed Monday by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

The Senator said the legislation could result in at least a 50 per cent reduction in noise which unnecessarily plagues up to 10 million people.

The Cranston bill would require noise suppression equipment to be installed in some 2,000 commercial jets by the end of 1974.

The legislation would authorize $1 billion in federal loan guarantees to help airlines finance the program and a 1 1-2 per cent fare increase to enable them to repay the loans.

In addition, the bill would authorize a $35 million research program to develop noise dampers for jet engines.

Coors Reports Big Collection

The Adolph Coors Co., which has been buying back aluminum cans in Marin for 13 months, announced it collected 2.4 million pounds of cans in 11 western states in the first three months of this year.

Coors' purchaser in San Rafael, Golden Gate Distributing Co., 1942 Fourth Street, takes all aluminum cans, regardless of manufacturer, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Mondays and Fridays.

Since it began its cash for cans program last year, Coors reported, it has bought back almost 200 million cans and paid out $865,231.

The program is not restricted to Coors cans. Coors pays 10 cents a pound — about 23 cans — for the returned cans and announced in February that all of the company's beer bottles are returnable for one cent each.

Giants' Win Streak Ends; Bonds Hurt, Out Of Lineup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A difficult struggle has ended for Reggie Cleveland.

The 22-year-old Canadian righthander of the St. Louis Cardinals literally "sweated out" his first victory in the big leagues Tuesday night, a 2-1 win over the San Francisco Giants.

Cleveland sat nervously in the Cardinal clubhouse as veteran reliever Moe Drabowsky struck-out the final two Giant batters with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to end a nine-game San Francisco win streak.

"I was really sweating it out in the clubhouse," Cleveland said after the game. "It's been a long wait for that first win."

Cleveland held a 2-0 lead over losing pitcher Juan Marichal until the eighth inning when Tito Fuentes singled home San Francisco's lone run of the evening.

Frank Linzy replaced Cleveland and ended the eighth inning threat, only to load the bases in the ninth. Drabowsky, still strong at age 35, came in to blow his fastball past Rookies George Foster and Fran Healy to save Cleveland's victory.

"I've always had trouble getting my curve ball over the plate," Cleveland said. "But tonight it was breaking hard for strikes. I think I simply lost my concentration in the eighth inning, and I'm happy that Moe did such a great job."

The loss could be costly to the Giants, who will have to do without speedy outfielder Bobby Bonds for awhile. Bonds sprained his right ankle when he jammed his foot against the first base bag on an attempted pickoff by Cleveland in the third inning.

Doctors were to decide today how long Bonds must sit out. X-rays were taken Tuesday night. Ken Henderson, almost fully recovered from a sprained thumb, will replace Bonds in the starting lineup.

While young Cleveland savored his first major league win against six career losses, the Giants' ace Marichal absorbed his first defeat of the season compared to three wins.

Joe Torre, who has hit safely in all 14 Cardinal games, drove in the first St. Louis tally in the fourth inning with an infield hit. He scored moments later on a double by Ted Simmons.

A pair of the league's best righthanded starters were scheduled to take the mound today in the final game of the Giants' current homestand. Gaylord Perry (3-0) was slated to face Bob Gibson (2-1) of the Cardinals.

A'S WIN, 4-0

'Catfish' Stings Angels

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The Oakland Athletics have served warning they expect to prove thorny obstacles to the California Angels by taking the first game of the opening series between the clubs Tuesday night.

"Taking the first one gives us a chance to sweep the series," Oakland manager Dick Williams commented after the 4-0 victory.

The victory ended the Angels' seven-game winning streak and also a two-day stand at the top of the Western division. Oakland took over first place with the victory.

The game was highlighted by the three-hit pitching of Jim "Catfish" Hunter and the hitting of Sal Bando, who had two homers and drove in three runs.

"My arm was not as limber as it will be later in the season," Hunter said. "I kept throwing a ball on my first pitch and getting myself into trouble."

It was Hunter's first win after two losses but Williams said he saw signs in his hurler's last outing that he was rounding into the form that made him an 18-game winner last year.

"Hunter's a major league pitcher and you wait," said Williams. "In the first few innings he didn't have his velocity or control but he's a knowledgeable pitcher and got out of trouble."

Bando credited coach Irv Noren with correcting a flaw in his swing that snapped him out of a batting slump.

"I had gotten one hit in 17 times at bat before I beat out a dribbler," Bando said. "But in my last two times at bat in the second game against Chicago I hit a homer and a double."

The third baseman in his last six times at the plate has hit three home runs, a double, a single and walked.

"Noren noticed I was dropping my bat and locking my elbow," Bando said. "As soon as I corrected that, I started hitting."

Angels manager Lefty Phillips said there was nothing wrong with his team that a few hits wouldn't correct.

"We have been fortunate in getting the pitching in our first 13 games. Now we need more woodwork. I hope the hitting comes around."

The loss went to starter Tom Murphy to make his record 1-2. Murphy allowed five hits in five innings but three of them came in the fourth to bring him the loss.

'Bench' Is A Key Factor In Bucks-Bullets Series

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Five men will start for both the Baltimore Bullets and the Milwaukee Bucks when the two teams square off tonight for the first game of their best-of-seven series to determine the championship of the National Basketball Association.

But as all good fans know there is an important aspect to any championship team that is not found among the starting five. That part of the team is called the bench.

Milwaukee Bucks' coach Larry Costello is very aware of this fact and he says that the key to Milwaukee's beating Baltimore four out of the seven games is the bench.

"We've got to get help from our bench if we're going to make it," Costello said.

Tonight's game will be televised by ABC (Channels 7 and 11, 6 o'clock).

The help Milwaukee is going to have to get must come from three men — Dick Cunningham, Lucius Allen and Bob Boozer.

Cunningham and Allen have played admirably all season spelling Lew Alcindor or, in Allen's case, either Oscar Robertson or Jon McGlocklin.

Boozer, on the other hand, has had his ups and downs.

He has been good and not so good when he has filled in for the two Milwaukee forwards, Bob Dandridge or Greg Smith.

But what has given Costello and all Milwaukee fans hope has been the play of the 33-year-old Boozer in the playoffs.

In the fourth game of the Milwaukee-Los Angeles series, Boozer scored 16 points on 8 baskets in 10 attempts, pulled in 7 rebounds and blocked five shots. He followed that performance with 11 points and 9 rebounds in the final game against the Lakers here.

Boozer could play a significant role in the Bucks' quest for a championship since Baltimore's front line matches up pretty well with Milwaukee's.

At center Wes Unseld has been effective in the past against Alcindor. Especially in Lew's rookie year, Unseld occasionally gave him fits. This year, Unseld has been strong on the boards pulling down an average of almost 19 a game during the playoffs while averaging 12.9 points.

Alcindor has averaged 26.4 points during the playoffs and has pulled down 16.4 rebounds per game.

John Tresvant will play opposite Smith and Smith has a slight edge in scoring — 12.2 points in the playoffs to 8.6 points for Tresvant. Smith also has a slight edge in playoff rebounding 8.7 to 7.7.

At the other forward, Baltimore's Jack Marin has the edge over Dandridge. Marin has averaged 21.2 points per game in the playoffs to Dandridge's 18.8. Dandridge has pulled down 9.5 rebounds per game to 9.9 for Marin.

In the backcourt Earl Monroe averaged 23.7 points per game to lead the Baltimore attack and Fred Carter averaged 14.4. Kevin Loughery, the third Bullet guard has also averaged 14.4.

McGlocklin hit at a 16.5 clip during the playoffs for Milwaukee and Robertson at a 16.2 pace. Allen averaged 7.2 per game.

Statistically both teams seem pretty even, but in championship playoffs those statistics very often don't mean a thing. It may very well come down to which man can come off the bench and do the job. Both the Bullets and the Bucks have good men sitting on the bench, but the nod has to go to Milwaukee.

Marin '9' Is Back In Third

Barely 24 hours after they defeated Santa Rosa Junior College to move into first place in the Camino Norte Conference baseball race, the College of Marin Tars are back in second.

Glenn Yamamoto belted a pair of home runs, the second a three-run shot in the 10th inning, to lead the Bear Cubs past the Tars, 10-7 yesterday in Santa Rosa. Marin thus fell back to third place, behind Santa Rosa and league-leading West Valley J.C. of Campbell.

Yesterday's game was almost a complete reversal of Monday's affair at Kentfield, in which the Tars prevailed, 10-8. In that one, pitcher Chris Roland got the win, and yesterday he was tagged with the loss as he worked the final three innings in relief of starter Gerry Goodrick.

Marin shortstop Steve Hendrickson doubled home Dee Fedrick in the ninth inning to tie the score after Roger Offenbach brought the Tars within a run in the seventh with a triple that scored Jim Peters. But Yamamoto, who got the Bear Cubs on the scoreboard with a bases-empty homer in the third, hit

PREP BASEBALL

San Marin Erupts

The San Marin High School Mustangs were overdue to explode at the plate. In four Marin County Athletic League baseball games prior to yesterday they had a total of 11 hits, and only two of them were for extra bases.

Well, explode they did, thumping three home runs yesterday to rack up their first league win of the season, 9-7 over San Rafael High at Albert Park.

In other MCAL contests, Novato ran its first place record to 5-0 with a 4-2 decision over Marin Catholic, and Drake edged Redwood in the ninth inning, 3-2. Terra Linda and Tamalpais were postponed until today because no umpires showed up for the game in Mill Valley.

San Marin posted five runs in the first inning and got four more in the third to hand the Bulldogs their fourth straight loss after an opening game win. With a strong wind blowing out to left field, Jack Burnam cracked a two-run homer and Steve Burden belted one good for three runs in that first inning seige. Dave Ilchert got the third inning rally going with a leadoff circuit shot. Ilchert and Burden had two hits apiece.

The Bulldogs were no slouches themselves as they muscled up for three doubles. Gary Nelson slammed two of them and a single for a perfect afternoon. Leftfielder Holt Green and third baseman Jim Thorne each had a pair of singles for San Rafael.

In Novato it was a pitching duel between lefthander Mike Lamb of the Hornets and righthander Tom Olson of Marin Catholic. Only seven hits were recorded by both teams, but the Wildcats of Kentfield committed a couple of costly errors in the first, when Novato scored two times to take the lead for good.

First baseman Steve Pond had a hand in both of Novato's other scores doubling home a run in the third, and scoring on a single by Lamb in the sixth.

Lamb got the win, and he deserved it, as he struck out 10 batters and didn't walk anyone. Olson also went the distance.

Drake pitcher Lex Rzepelia went the distance, surviving a harrowing bases loaded situation in the top of the ninth to get credit for his team's second MCAL win of the year. He allowed a run but got out of the jam with a pair of strikeouts and a pop up.

Pitch-Hit-Throw Contest Slated

Registration in the San Rafael area for the nationwide Major League Baseball Pitch, Hit and Throw competition for boys 9 through 12 is going on and will run through May 20.

Competition will be held May 29 at Albert Park, according to Gary Frugoli, recreation supervisor of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department.

Each boy competes with boys his own age in three events — pitching for accuracy, hitting for distance, and throwing for accuracy. Winners are determined on the basis of total scores.

Champ Bowler Don Carter In Comeback

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Former world champion bowler Don Carter plans to go back into competition on the pro circuit, it was announced today.

Carter, who last year was voted the greatest bowler of all time, has been bowling league games in nearby Canoga Park in an attempt to get his game back into top form. He hasn't won a pro tournament since 1962.

With his right knee healed from an August 1970 operation to repair damaged cartilage, the 33-year-old man with the strange-looking "push away" style says he's ready to go.

"I've never felt better," he said. "I've adjusted my pushaway and suddenly I'm in full control."

Carter will compete in the $50,000 Bellows-Valvair Open in June in Anaheim, Calif.

Giants' Win Streak Ends; Bonds Hurt, Out Of Lineup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A difficult struggle has ended for Reggie Cleveland.

The 22-year-old Canadian righthander of the St. Louis Cardinals literally "sweated out" his first victory in the big leagues Tuesday night, a 2-1 win over the San Francisco Giants.

Cleveland sat nervously in the Cardinal clubhouse as veteran reliever Moe Drabowsky struck-out the final two Giant batters with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to end a nine-game San Francisco win streak.

"I was really sweating it out in the clubhouse," Cleveland said after the game. "It's been a long wait for that first win."

Cleveland held a 2-0 lead over losing pitcher Juan Marichal until the eighth inning when Tito Fuentes singled home San Francisco's lone run of the evening.

Frank Linzy replaced Cleveland and ended the eighth inning threat, only to load the bases in the ninth. Drabowsky, still strong at age 35, came in to blow his fastball past Rookies George Foster and Fran Healy to save Cleveland's victory.

"I've always had trouble getting my curve ball over the plate," Cleveland said. "But tonight it was breaking hard for strikes. I think I simply lost my concentration in the eighth inning, and I'm happy that Moe did such a great job."

The loss could be costly to the Giants, who will have to do without speedy outfielder Bobby Bonds for awhile. Bonds sprained his right ankle when he jammed his foot against the first base bag on an attempted pickoff by Cleveland in the third inning.

Doctors were to decide today how long Bonds must sit out. X-rays were taken Tuesday night. Ken Henderson, almost fully recovered from a sprained thumb, will replace Bonds in the starting lineup.

While young Cleveland savored his first major league win against six career losses, the Giants' ace Marichal absorbed his first defeat of the season compared to three wins.

Joe Torre, who has hit safely in all 14 Cardinal games, drove in the first St. Louis tally in the fourth inning with an infield hit. He scored moments later on a double by Ted Simmons.

A pair of the league's best righthanded starters were scheduled to take the mound today in the final game of the Giants' current homestand. Gaylord Perry (3-0) was slated to face Bob Gibson (2-1) of the Cardinals.

A'S WIN, 4-0

'Catfish' Stings Angels

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The Oakland Athletics have served warning they expect to prove thorny obstacles to the California Angels by taking the first game of the opening series between the clubs Tuesday night.

"Taking the first one gives us a chance to sweep the series," Oakland manager Dick Williams commented after the 4-0 victory.

The victory ended the Angels' seven-game winning streak and also a two-day stand at the top of the Western division. Oakland took over first place with the victory.

The game was highlighted by the three-hit pitching of Jim "Catfish" Hunter and the hitting of Sal Bando, who had two homers and drove in three runs.

"My arm was not as limber as it will be later in the season," Hunter said. "I kept throwing a ball on my first pitch and getting myself into trouble."

It was Hunter's first win after two losses but Williams said he saw signs in his hurler's last outing that he was rounding into the form that made him an 18-game winner last year.

"Hunter's a major league pitcher and you wait," said Williams. "In the first few innings he didn't have his velocity or control but he's a knowledgeable pitcher and got out of trouble."

Bando credited coach Irv Noren with correcting a flaw in his swing that snapped him out of a batting slump.

"I had gotten one hit in 17 times at bat before I beat out a dribbler," Bando said. "But in my last two times at bat in the second game against Chicago I hit a homer and a double."

The third baseman in his last six times at the plate has hit three home runs, a double, a single and walked.

"Noren noticed I was dropping my bat and locking my elbow," Bando said. "As soon as I corrected that, I started hitting."

Angels manager Lefty Phillips said there was nothing wrong with his team that a few hits wouldn't correct.

"We have been fortunate in getting the pitching in our first 13 games. Now we need more woodwork. I hope the hitting comes around."

The loss went to starter Tom Murphy to make his record 1-2. Murphy allowed five hits in five innings but three of them came in the fourth to bring him the loss.

'Bench' Is A Key Factor In Bucks-Bullets Series

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Five men will start for both the Baltimore Bullets and the Milwaukee Bucks when the two teams square off tonight for the first game of their best-of-seven series to determine the championship of the National Basketball Association.

But as all good fans know there is an important aspect to any championship team that is not found among the starting five. That part of the team is called the bench.

Milwaukee Bucks' coach Larry Costello is very aware of this fact and he says that the key to Milwaukee's beating Baltimore four out of the seven games is the bench.

"We've got to get help from our bench if we're going to make it," Costello said.

Tonight's game will be televised by ABC (Channels 7 and 11, 6 o'clock).

The help Milwaukee is going to have to get must come from three men — Dick Cunningham, Lucius Allen and Bob Boozer.

Cunningham and Allen have played admirably all season spelling Lew Alcindor or, in Allen's case, either Oscar Robertson or Jon McGlocklin.

Boozer, on the other hand, has had his ups and downs.

He has been good and not so good when he has filled in for the two Milwaukee forwards, Bob Dandridge or Greg Smith.

But what has given Costello and all Milwaukee fans hope has been the play of the 33-year-old Boozer in the playoffs.

In the fourth game of the Milwaukee-Los Angeles series, Boozer scored 16 points on 8 baskets in 10 attempts, pulled in 7 rebounds and blocked five shots. He followed that performance with 11 points and 9 rebounds in the final game against the Lakers here.

Boozer could play a significant role in the Bucks' quest for a championship since Baltimore's front line matches up pretty well with Milwaukee's.

At center Wes Unseld has been effective in the past against Alcindor. Especially in Lew's rookie year, Unseld occasionally gave him fits. This year, Unseld has been strong on the boards pulling down an average of almost 19 a game during the playoffs while averaging 12.9 points.

Alcindor has averaged 26.4 points during the playoffs and has pulled down 16.4 rebounds per game.

John Tresvant will play opposite Smith and Smith has a slight edge in scoring — 12.2 points in the playoffs to 8.6 points for Tresvant. Smith also has a slight edge in playoff rebounding 8.7 to 7.7.

At the other forward, Baltimore's Jack Marin has the edge over Dandridge. Marin has averaged 21.2 points per game in the playoffs to Dandridge's 18.8. Dandridge has pulled down 9.5 rebounds per game to 9.9 for Marin.

In the backcourt Earl Monroe averaged 23.7 points per game to lead the Baltimore attack and Fred Carter averaged 14.4. Kevin Loughery, the third Bullet guard has also averaged 14.4.

McGlocklin hit at a 16.5 clip during the playoffs for Milwaukee and Robertson at a 16.2 pace. Allen averaged 7.2 per game.

Statistically both teams seem pretty even, but in championship playoffs those statistics very often don't mean a thing. It may very well come down to which man can come off the bench and do the job. Both the Bullets and the Bucks have good men sitting on the bench, but the nod has to go to Milwaukee.

Marin '9' Is Back In Third

Barely 24 hours after they defeated Santa Rosa Junior College to move into first place in the Camino Norte Conference baseball race, the College of Marin Tars are back in second.

Glenn Yamamoto belted a pair of home runs, the second a three-run shot in the 10th inning, to lead the Bear Cubs past the Tars, 10-7 yesterday in Santa Rosa. Marin thus fell back to third place, behind Santa Rosa and league-leading West Valley J.C. of Campbell.

Yesterday's game was almost a complete reversal of Monday's affair at Kentfield, in which the Tars prevailed, 10-8. In that one, pitcher Chris Roland got the win, and yesterday he was tagged with the loss as he worked the final three innings in relief of starter Gerry Goodrick.

Marin shortstop Steve Hendrickson doubled home Dee Fedrick in the ninth inning to tie the score after Roger Offenbach brought the Tars within a run in the seventh with a triple that scored Jim Peters. But Yamamoto, who got the Bear Cubs on the scoreboard with a bases-empty homer in the third, hit

San Marin Erupts

The San Marin High School Mustangs were overdue to explode at the plate. In four Marin County Athletic League baseball games prior to yesterday they had a total of 11 hits, and only two of them were for extra bases.

Well, explode they did, thumping three home runs yesterday to rack up their first league win of the season, 9-7 over San Rafael High at Albert Park.

In other MCAL contests, Novato ran its first place record to 5-0 with a 4-2 decision over Marin Catholic, and Drake edged Redwood in the ninth inning, 3-2. Terra Linda and Tamalpais were postponed until today because no umpires showed up for the game in Mill Valley.

San Marin posted five runs in the first inning and got four more in the third to hand the Bulldogs their fourth straight loss after an opening game win. With a strong wind blowing out to left field, Jack Burnam cracked a two-run homer and Steve Burden belted one good for three runs in that first inning seige. Dave Ilchert got the third inning rally going with a leadoff circuit shot. Ilchert and Burden had two hits apiece.

The Bulldogs were no slouches themselves as they muscled up for three doubles. Gary Nelson slammed two of them and a single for a perfect afternoon. Leftfielder Holt Green and third baseman Jim Thorne each had a pair of singles for San Rafael.

In Novato it was a pitching duel between lefthander Mike Lamb of the Hornets and righthander Tom Olson of Marin Catholic. Only seven hits were recorded by both teams, but the Wildcats of Kentfield committed a couple of costly errors in the first, when Novato scored two times to take the lead for good.

First baseman Steve Pond had a hand in both of Novato's other scores doubling home a run in the third, and scoring on a single by Lamb in the sixth.

Lamb got the win, and he deserved it, as he struck out 10 batters and didn't walk anyone. Olson also went the distance.

Drake pitcher Lex Rzepelia went the distance, surviving a harrowing bases loaded situation in the top of the ninth to get credit for his team's second MCAL win of the year. He allowed a run but got out of the jam with a pair of strikeouts and a pop up.

JACK HANLEY

Speier Gets My N.L. Rookie Vote

Chris Speier is on his way to Rookie of the Year honors in the National League. It may seem a bit early to vote Speier the 1971 crown since the baseball season is only a couple of weeks along and has a long way to go.

But Speier is a young man who has fulfilled every prediction made for him. Indeed, the 20-year-old shortstop sensation of the Giants has made extravagant predictions now seem conservative.

"HE CAN run, hit, field and throw and does all of it pretty well," said Charlie Fox during the spring training. The manager of the Giants should have said Speier does it all extremely well.

"If we're wrong about this young man," said Horace Stoneham during spring training, "we know nothing about the game of baseball." The president of the Giants never previously said that about a raw rookie with only one year of minor league experience.

"I GOT TO BET on this fellow," said Jack Schwarz last winter, long before spring training started. "Speier's a throwback, a breed of baseball player not common anymore. He reminds me of old timers like Frankie Frisch and Bill Jurges."

Such salutations might have puffed another rookie so full of self esteem that he would begin pinching himself to make sure it wasn't all a dream. Not Speier. Not for a minute did the 6-1, 175, whiz kid from Alameda doubt that he was destined for major league stardom. And he never doubted that he would take the shortstop job away from Hal Lanier in spring training.

"I CAME to camp to make the big team," said Speier, "not the Phoenix roster."

Speier never played for Phoenix, the Giants' AAA farm club in the Pacific Coast League. Ordinarily a rookie whose only previous pro experience had been one year in AA baseball at Amarillo in the Texas League would have been delighted with a promotion to Phoenix, especially when he was merely a non-roster invitee to the Giants' 1971 spring training camp.

BUT SPEIER, as Schwarz sensed when he signed the young man in the winter of 1969, was no ordinary ball player. "I don't think anything is going to stop him," said Schwarz. "He's a very determined fellow."

In 28 spring training games Speier hit .295, demonstrated that he could turn over the double play with either Lanier or Tito Fuentes as his second base DP partner, and made only three errors.

But could he make the DPs in games that count? A back muscle spasm kept him out of the Giants' road opener at San Diego April 6. Thereafter, he was in 15 double plays, 12 of them on the all-important pivot relay. Furthermore, he hit .298 (14-for-47). His errors were minimal (2).

AFTER THE first two weeks of the 1970 season, the DP production of the Giants was six in 13 games. This year after 13 it was 20, with Speier's fast release of the ball on the pivot primarily responsible.

(Tomorrow: More about Speier)

Utah Stars Lead ABA Playoffs

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Stars need only one more victory to move into the American Basketball Association championship playoff round.

The Stars took a 3-1 lead over Indiana Tuesday night when they trimmed the Pacers 126-99. The series now moves to Anderson, Ind., for the fifth game Thursday night.

Utah was never threatened in game No. 4 as the Stars moved out to a 33-13 lead after the first quarter thanks to the shooting of Willie Wise, who scored 11 of his team's first 20 points. Zelmo Beaty paced the Stars with 22 points and Wise finished with 19 while Billy Keller led Indiana with 20.

The Eastern Conference final playoff between Kentucky and Virginia resumes tonight at Louisville. Virginia leads the Colonels 2-1 in the best-of-seven series.

Rancho Cotate Record: 5-0

The Rancho Cotate High School Cougars stretched their North Bay League II record to 5-0 with a 15-2 win over Analy High yesterday afternoon.

It was the fourth victory in a row for winning pitcher Dane Jacobson. Jacobson struck out 5 and allowed five hits in going the route for the Cougars.

The Rancho was sparked by a host of strong bats including Gary Disharoon who slammed a fourth inning triple and went a total of 2 for 4 at the plate.

Rancho Cotate will try to keep the momentum going Friday when it takes on El Molino in a game to be played in Rohnert Park.

Petaluma Nine Edges Napa

Petaluma High School's hard hitting third baseman Mark Ross smacked a first inning home run that drove in two runs for the Trojans as they defeated the Napa Indians 4-3 yesterday in North Bay League 1.

The Trojans scored again in the second inning and in the sixth. The Indians committed five errors, two of them resulting in Petaluma scores.

The Trojans have a bye Friday and don't resume action until Tuesday when they take on Santa Rosa. Petaluma now boasts a 3-2 league record.

STANLEY CUP PLAYOFFS

Hawks, Canadiens Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Dennis Hull had to demonstrate that brother Bobby isn't the whole Stanley Cup Show for the Chicago Black Hawks and Jacques Lemaire had to prove he still has the old scoring touch for the Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night as the Clubs won their first semifinal round games.

Bobby Hull scored six goals in Chicago's opening round for-game sweep over Philadelphia, but hasn't been able to beat goalie Ed Giacomin in the ranger series. Dennis Hull, however, upheld the family honor with two goals as the Hawks shut out New York 3-0 to even their best-of-seven series at 1-1.

Lemaire, used sparingly in the first five games of Montreal's seven-game triumph over Boston, rammed home three goals in the Canadiens' 7-2 mauling of Minnesota to take a 1-0 lead in that series.

Chicago received perfect goaltending from Tony Esposito as the Hawks avenged last Sunday's overtime loss to New York. Cliff Koroll, who scored the Hawks' lone goal in the opener, gave Esposito the margin he needed when he whacked in a rebound off Giacomin's pad with 2:06 left in the first period.

Dennis Hull tallied Chicago's other two goals, his first of the series. Dennis skated down ice with Koroll on a two-on-one breakaway and beat Giacomin at 14:06 of the second period. When the rangers lifted Giacomin in the final minute of game in favor of six forwards, Dennis drilled the puck into an empty net just 15 seconds shy of the final buzzer.

Coach Billy Reay, who keeps saying "I just hope we're ready," found his Hawks more than a match for the Rangers.

"Still, I didn't think there was a great deal of difference between the teams in either game," said Reay. "It was a great team effort both nights. They have a little more experience and depth and have been using six defensemen.

Reay cautioned that "these are physical games because they're so emotional" and that he was glad Chicago didn't lose the psychological edge the club had after pinning Philadelphia four straight while New York was beating Toronto in a seven-game series.

Lemaire used the seventh game of the Boston series as a spring-board for his scoring spree against the North Stars. The veteran center, who scored 28 goals during the regular season, assisted on three goals in that game.

"I just had to prove myself and these three goals gave me the chance," said Lemaire. "I wasn't used much against Boston, but I prefer the wide open style of play and there's lots of room to skate against Minnesota."

The Montreal forward equalled a playoff record shared by four others when he scored all his goals in one period. His first goal at 11:07 of the second stanza gave the Canadiens a 2-1 lead and he added goals at 16:33 and 18:51 to climax Montreal's four-goal period.

Minnesota grabbed a 1-0 first period lead on Danny Grant's goal, but couldn't score again until Bill Goldsworthy beat rookie goalie Ken Dryden at 17:12 of the third period.

Montreal plays host to Minnesota in the second game Thursday. The Chicago-New York series switches to Ranger Ice the same night.

West's Cast Is Removed

A spokesman said West, whose absence was a key factor in the Lakers' defeat in the National Basketball Association playoffs, will begin a rehabilitation program immediately.

West will be on crutches for several days with his knee being treated with whirlpool bath.

Penn's Harter To Oregon U.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dick Harter, head basketball coach at the University of Pennsylvania, who led the third-ranked Quakers to 28 straight wins before losing to Villanova in the NCAA quarterfinals, has resigned to become head coach at the University of Oregon.

Harter, 39, coached the Quakers to a 26-0 record this season in regular play, the first time the Penn squad ever compiled an unblemished basketball season record.

Hank Feels No Pressure Of 600

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Hank Aaron, the superstar baseball takes for granted, doesn't feel any pressure on the threshold of becoming the third man ever to hit 600 homers.

He's too busy thinking about becoming the first man to hit 715.

"I'm a long way from it right now but I think I'm better than even money to hit 715," Aaron said Tuesday night after his sixth homer of the season — and 598th of his career — gave the Atlanta Braves a 2-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Only Babe Ruth at 714 and Willie Mays, who has five this year and 633 in his career, are ahead of him.

The so-called 600 "barrier" — which was difficult for Mays to reach in 1969 when he hit only 13 all year — doesn't seem to bother Aaron. "I don't think going for No. 600 adds any pressure," he said.

The incredible thing about Aaron's career is that despite his splendid play, he has seldom captured the imagination of the fans. They just take his excellence for granted without getting excited about it. Aaron also has had the disadvantage of not playing in a world series since 1958 and he's also spent his entire career in two cities — Milwaukee and Atlanta — far from the communication centers like New York and Los Angeles.

Aaron homered in the first inning off Bob Moose after Ralph Garr beat out an infield hit to produce the only two runs of the game and support Phil Niekro's six-hit pitching.

In other games, Philadelphia blanked Montreal 1-0, Chicago edged Houston 3-1, Cincinnati nipped New York 3-2, Los Angeles beat San Diego 6-2 and St. Louis edged San Francisco 2-1.

In the American League, Boston edged Cleveland 4-1, Washington beat New York 7-2, Chicago routed Milwaukee 7-1, Minnesota beat Kansas City, 5-4, Detroit topped Baltimore, 7-6, and Oakland blanked California 4-0.

Johnny Bench's fifth homer of the year — a two-run blast in the eighth inning off reliever Danny Frisella — gave Cincinnati its victory over the Mets. Pete Rose hit his first homer in the first inning for the Reds' first run. Duffy Dyer's pinch single produced New York's only two runs in the seventh.

Rookie Roger Freed drove in the only run of the game with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and Chris Short pitched a three-hitter as Philadelphia blanked Montreal. Rookie Ernie McAnally went seven innings in his first start and suffered the loss.

Ferguson Jenkins pitched a six-hitter and Ron Santo hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning as Chicago beat Houston to snap a four-game losing streak.

Richie Allen's two-run single and Bill Russell's two-run infield hit highlighted a six-run third inning that carried the Dodgers to victory over San Diego. It was the Padres' seventh straight loss.

Speier Gets My N.L. Rookie Vote

Chris Speier is on his way to Rookie of the Year honors in the National League. It may seem a bit early to vote Speier the 1971 crown since the baseball season is only a couple of weeks along and has a long way to go.

But Speier is a young man who has fulfilled every prediction made for him. Indeed, the 20-year-old shortstop sensation of the Giants has made extravagant predictions now seem conservative.

"HE CAN run, hit, field and throw and does all of it pretty well," said Charlie Fox during the spring training. The manager of the Giants should have said Speier does it all extremely well.

"If we're wrong about this young man," said Horace Stoneham during spring training, "we know nothing about the game of baseball." The president of the Giants never previously said that about a raw rookie with only one year of minor league experience.

"I GOT TO BET on this fellow," said Jack Schwarz last winter, long before spring training started. "Speier's a throwback, a breed of baseball player not common anymore. He reminds me of old timers like Frankie Frisch and Bill Jurges."

Such salutations might have puffed another rookie so full of self esteem that he would begin pinching himself to make sure it wasn't all a dream. Not Speier. Not for a minute did the 6-1, 175, whiz kid from Alameda doubt that he was destined for major league stardom. And he never doubted that he would take the shortstop job away from Hal Lanier in spring training.

"I CAME to camp to make the big team," said Speier, "not the Phoenix roster."

Speier never played for Phoenix, the Giants' AAA farm club in the Pacific Coast League. Ordinarily a rookie whose only previous pro experience had been one year in AA baseball at Amarillo in the Texas League would have been delighted with a promotion to Phoenix, especially when he was merely a non-roster invitee to the Giants' 1971 spring training camp.

BUT SPEIER, as Schwarz sensed when he signed the young man in the winter of 1969, was no ordinary ball player. "I don't think anything is going to stop him," said Schwarz. "He's a very determined fellow."

In 28 spring training games Speier hit .295, demonstrated that he could turn over the double play with either Lanier or Tito Fuentes as his second base DP partner, and made only three errors.

But could he make the DPs in games that count? A back muscle spasm kept him out of the Giants' road opener at San Diego April 6. Thereafter, he was in 15 double plays, 12 of them on the all-important pivot relay. Furthermore, he hit .298 (14-for-47). His errors were minimal (2).

AFTER THE first two weeks of the 1970 season, the DP production of the Giants was six in 13 games. This year after 13 it was 20, with Speier's fast release of the ball on the pivot primarily responsible.

Utah Stars Lead ABA Playoffs

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Stars need only one more victory to move into the American Basketball Association championship playoff round.

The Stars took a 3-1 lead over Indiana Tuesday night when they trimmed the Pacers 126-99. The series now moves to Anderson, Ind., for the fifth game Thursday night.

Utah was never threatened in game No. 4 as the Stars moved out to a 33-13 lead after the first quarter thanks to the shooting of Willie Wise, who scored 11 of his team's first 20 points. Zelmo Beaty paced the Stars with 22 points and Wise finished with 19 while Billy Keller led Indiana with 20.

The Eastern Conference final playoff between Kentucky and Virginia resumes tonight at Louisville. Virginia leads the Colonels 2-1 in the best-of-seven series.

Rancho Cotate Record: 5-0

The Rancho Cotate High School Cougars stretched their North Bay League II record to 5-0 with a 15-2 win over Analy High yesterday afternoon.

It was the fourth victory in a row for winning pitcher Dane Jacobson. Jacobson struck out 5 and allowed five hits in going the route for the Cougars.

The Rancho was sparked by a host of strong bats including Gary Disharoon who slammed a fourth inning triple and went a total of 2 for 4 at the plate.

Rancho Cotate will try to keep the momentum going Friday when it takes on El Molino in a game to be played in Rohnert Park.

Petaluma Nine Edges Napa

Petaluma High School's hard hitting third baseman Mark Ross smacked a first inning home run that drove in two runs for the Trojans as they defeated the Napa Indians 4-3 yesterday in North Bay League 1.

The Trojans scored again in the second inning and in the sixth. The Indians committed five errors, two of them resulting in Petaluma scores.

The Trojans have a bye Friday and don't resume action until Tuesday when they take on Santa Rosa. Petaluma now boasts a 3-2 league record.

STANLEY CUP PLAYOFFS

Hawks, Canadiens Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Dennis Hull had to demonstrate that brother Bobby isn't the whole Stanley Cup Show for the Chicago Black Hawks and Jacques Lemaire had to prove he still has the old scoring touch for the Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night as the Clubs won their first semifinal round games.

Bobby Hull scored six goals in Chicago's opening round for-game sweep over Philadelphia, but hasn't been able to beat goalie Ed Giacomin in the ranger series. Dennis Hull, however, upheld the family honor with two goals as the Hawks shut out New York 3-0 to even their best-of-seven series at 1-1.

Lemaire, used sparingly in the first five games of Montreal's seven-game triumph over Boston, rammed home three goals in the Canadiens' 7-2 mauling of Minnesota to take a 1-0 lead in that series.

Chicago received perfect goaltending from Tony Esposito as the Hawks avenged last Sunday's overtime loss to New York. Cliff Koroll, who scored the Hawks' lone goal in the opener, gave Esposito the margin he needed when he whacked in a rebound off Giacomin's pad with 2:06 left in the first period.

Dennis Hull tallied Chicago's other two goals, his first of the series. Dennis skated down ice with Koroll on a two-on-one breakaway and beat Giacomin at 14:06 of the second period. When the rangers lifted Giacomin in the final minute of game in favor of six forwards, Dennis drilled the puck into an empty net just 15 seconds shy of the final buzzer.

Coach Billy Reay, who keeps saying "I just hope we're ready," found his Hawks more than a match for the Rangers.

"Still, I didn't think there was a great deal of difference between the teams in either game," said Reay. "It was a great team effort both nights. They have a little more experience and depth and have been using six defensemen.

Reay cautioned that "these are physical games because they're so emotional" and that he was glad Chicago didn't lose the psychological edge the club had after pinning Philadelphia four straight while New York was beating Toronto in a seven-game series.

Lemaire used the seventh game of the Boston series as a spring-board for his scoring spree against the North Stars. The veteran center, who scored 28 goals during the regular season, assisted on three goals in that game.

"I just had to prove myself and these three goals gave me the chance," said Lemaire. "I wasn't used much against Boston, but I prefer the wide open style of play and there's lots of room to skate against Minnesota."

The Montreal forward equalled a playoff record shared by four others when he scored all his goals in one period. His first goal at 11:07 of the second stanza gave the Canadiens a 2-1 lead and he added goals at 16:33 and 18:51 to climax Montreal's four-goal period.

Minnesota grabbed a 1-0 first period lead on Danny Grant's goal, but couldn't score again until Bill Goldsworthy beat rookie goalie Ken Dryden at 17:12 of the third period.

Montreal plays host to Minnesota in the second game Thursday. The Chicago-New York series switches to Ranger Ice the same night.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Time For Spring Chores Once Again

Spring boating chores in this day and age of fiber glass and aluminum boats are a far cry from the old days of wooden boats when there was a lot of scraping, sanding and painting.

However, there are still quite a few fitting-out techniques dating back to the wooden boats that can still be applied to modern plastic or metal runabouts. For example, when a deck cleat or some other kind of fitting works loose, don't just screw it back on, but refasten it with a nut and bolt that goes right through. Use a hardwood backing block on the inside. The fitting will probably never work loose again.

But it's still possible that you may have some sanding to do. For instance on mahogany trim or interior woodwork, and if you use a mechanical device make sure it is a belt sander rather than an orbital, oscillating or rotary gadget. The belt sanders don't leave scratches or marks that will show through a fine paint or varnish job.

Household detergents are great for washing the inside and outside of a boat and general spring cleaning chores. But there are some household products to avoid.

Don't use putty or plastic wood to fill cracks or gouges. They strink and weather very badly. Get the recommended marine fillers for the job — they are tried and true.

There are many and varied problems to fitting out or "summer-izing" the modern small runabout, its engine and accessories. That's shown by some of the quesgions I have been asked:

Q. My boat trailer has been sitting outside all winter. Is there anything I must do before I use it?

A. Definitely. Dismantle, wash and re-lubricate the wheel bearings . . . or have it done at a service station. To set out on even a moderate trip without doing it is asking for trouble. The cost is only a few dollars.

Q. If I fiber glass the blade of an oar, must I carry the covering all the way up to the handle!

A. No. As long as the shaft is well protected with varnish so that no water is able to soak into the wood and get under the fiber glass covering. The swelling would force it off. Cgvering oars or paddles ia a good idea. It prolongs their life indefinitely.

Q. My canvas top has shrunk so badly that the snap fasteners won't meet. Can it be stretched?

A. The experts I've contacted say no. It is possible to have extra material stitched on so that it will fit again. Everybody seems to think you stored it wrongly, or it wouldn't have shrunk. It should have been left on the boat.

Q. Oars or paddles are a nuisance to carry in a boat. Any suggestions?

A. Make the "pair" into a single item by slipping a rubber band cut from an old inner tube over each end. Then, depending on your boat, you can devise some kind of hook or peg just under the gunwale that the rubber bands can be slipped over.

Q. My friend made a bracket to carry an extra (smaller) outboard on his boat, both as a spare and to troll. Can such brackets be bought?

A. Yes. We avoid trade names in this column, but there are at least three competing brands sold by marine dealers. See yours.

Tars Host Santa Rosa Trackmen

With hopes of beating Santa Rosa Junior College for the first time in recent history, College of Marin's track and field team will host the Bear Cubs tomorrow at 3 p.m. in a dual meet on the Tars' field in Kentfield.

If the Marin cindermen win the meet, which might go down to the final event — the mile relay — it would end their dual meet season with an even 4-4 record. Their most recent victory was last Friday, 87-44 over Skyline J.C. of San Mateo.

The Tars will be led in the Camino Norte Conference meet by Ted Cain who is involved in some of the top 10 Northern California J.C. times. He's ranked sixth in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles, 54.8, and seventh in the 440, 49.3. He anchors the Tars' mile relay team which has a best of 3:22.4, ninth best in the state.

Redwood In Track Triumph

Redwood High School's track and field team, with new coach Russ Hill at the helm, pounded Marin Catholic, 90-48 yesterday, moving the Giants' record to 3-1 in Marin County Athletic League play.

The meet, a makeup of a rainout several weeks ago, was highlighted by triple winner Don Nelson from Marin Catholic, who took the 100 and 220-yard dashes and long jump.

PREP SWIMMING

Terra Linda, Novato Win

With Rick DeMont and Thom Guthrie contributing double wins, the Terra Linda High School swim team smashed San Rafael High School 79-16 in a Marin County Athletic League meet yesterday at Terra Linda, while Novato belted rival San Marin 65-30.

Guthrie took the 100 and 200-yard freestyle races, while DeMont took the individual medley and backstroke for the Trojans.

Dave Behrans and Roger Rechsteiner nabbed two races and John Summerfield improved his 1971 best diving score to pace the Hornets to the victory over the Mustangs.

With the win, Terra Linda closed out its league season with an unblemished 10-0 mark, while San Rafael is currently 4-4 with two meets to go. Novato raised its mark to 6-3, and San Marin dropped to 2-6. Both Redwood and Drake were idle yesterday.

A protest lodged by San Rafael coach Bill Ranney against the Redwood swim team was approved by League Commissioner George Corson. The protest concerned the eligibility of transfer student Dave Drake for MCAL dual meets, and caused the removal of all points scored by Drake in the 1971 season. The loss of these points will take away the Redwood win against San Rafael.

All other Redwood meets are unaffected by the ruling. The Giants' won-lost mark with these additional losses is reduced to 4-4.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Time For Spring Chores Once Again

Spring boating chores in this day and age of fiber glass and aluminum boats are a far cry from the old days of wooden boats when there was a lot of scraping, sanding and painting.

However, there are still quite a few fitting-out techniques dating back to the wooden boats that can still be applied to modern plastic or metal runabouts. For example, when a deck cleat or some other kind of fitting works loose, don't just screw it back on, but refasten it with a nut and bolt that goes right through. Use a hardwood backing block on the inside. The fitting will probably never work loose again.

But it's still possible that you may have some sanding to do. For instance on mahogany trim or interior woodwork, and if you use a mechanical device make sure it is a belt sander rather than an orbital, oscillating or rotary gadget. The belt sanders don't leave scratches or marks that will show through a fine paint or varnish job.

Household detergents are great for washing the inside and outside of a boat and general spring cleaning chores. But there are some household products to avoid.

Don't use putty or plastic wood to fill cracks or gouges. They strink and weather very badly. Get the recommended marine fillers for the job — they are tried and true.

There are many and varied problems to fitting out or "summer-izing" the modern small runabout, its engine and accessories. That's shown by some of the quesgions I have been asked:

Q. My boat trailer has been sitting outside all winter. Is there anything I must do before I use it?

A. Definitely. Dismantle, wash and re-lubricate the wheel bearings . . . or have it done at a service station. To set out on even a moderate trip without doing it is asking for trouble. The cost is only a few dollars.

Q. If I fiber glass the blade of an oar, must I carry the covering all the way up to the handle!

A. No. As long as the shaft is well protected with varnish so that no water is able to soak into the wood and get under the fiber glass covering. The swelling would force it off. Cgvering oars or paddles ia a good idea. It prolongs their life indefinitely.

Q. My canvas top has shrunk so badly that the snap fasteners won't meet. Can it be stretched?

A. The experts I've contacted say no. It is possible to have extra material stitched on so that it will fit again. Everybody seems to think you stored it wrongly, or it wouldn't have shrunk. It should have been left on the boat.

Q. Oars or paddles are a nuisance to carry in a boat. Any suggestions?

A. Make the "pair" into a single item by slipping a rubber band cut from an old inner tube over each end. Then, depending on your boat, you can devise some kind of hook or peg just under the gunwale that the rubber bands can be slipped over.

Q. My friend made a bracket to carry an extra (smaller) outboard on his boat, both as a spare and to troll. Can such brackets be bought?

A. Yes. We avoid trade names in this column, but there are at least three competing brands sold by marine dealers. See yours.

Tars Host Santa Rosa Trackmen

With hopes of beating Santa Rosa Junior College for the first time in recent history, College of Marin's track and field team will host the Bear Cubs tomorrow at 3 p.m. in a dual meet on the Tars' field in Kentfield.

If the Marin cindermen win the meet, which might go down to the final event — the mile relay — it would end their dual meet season with an even 4-4 record. Their most recent victory was last Friday, 87-44 over Skyline J.C. of San Mateo.

The Tars will be led in the Camino Norte Conference meet by Ted Cain who is involved in some of the top 10 Northern California J.C. times. He's ranked sixth in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles, 54.8, and seventh in the 440, 49.3. He anchors the Tars' mile relay team which has a best of 3:22.4, ninth best in the state.

Redwood In Track Triumph

Redwood High School's track and field team, with new coach Russ Hill at the helm, pounded Marin Catholic, 90-48 yesterday, moving the Giants' record to 3-1 in Marin County Athletic League play.

The meet, a makeup of a rainout several weeks ago, was highlighted by triple winner Don Nelson from Marin Catholic, who took the 100 and 220-yard dashes and long jump.

PREP SWIMMING

Terra Linda, Novato Win

With Rick DeMont and Thom Guthrie contributing double wins, the Terra Linda High School swim team smashed San Rafael High School 79-16 in a Marin County Athletic League meet yesterday at Terra Linda, while Novato belted rival San Marin 65-30.

Guthrie took the 100 and 200-yard freestyle races, while DeMont took the individual medley and backstroke for the Trojans.

Dave Behrans and Roger Rechsteiner nabbed two races and John Summerfield improved his 1971 best diving score to pace the Hornets to the victory over the Mustangs.

With the win, Terra Linda closed out its league season with an unblemished 10-0 mark, while San Rafael is currently 4-4 with two meets to go. Novato raised its mark to 6-3, and San Marin dropped to 2-6. Both Redwood and Drake were idle yesterday.

A protest lodged by San Rafael coach Bill Ranney against the Redwood swim team was approved by League Commissioner George Corson. The protest concerned the eligibility of transfer student Dave Drake for MCAL dual meets, and caused the removal of all points scored by Drake in the 1971 season. The loss of these points will take away the Redwood win against San Rafael.

All other Redwood meets are unaffected by the ruling. The Giants' won-lost mark with these additional losses is reduced to 4-4.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Room For Growth In Home Products

BY ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We need advice on American Home Products. We have 139 shares at an average cost of $37 and have an option to purchase 75 more at $58. Should we sell and take the profit, exercise the option or what? — L.M.

A. Unless you need additional income, I would not sell your commitment in American Home. Although at present levels you have an approximate 106 per cent profit, there is still considerable long-term growth mileage left in this issue.

Company sales and earnings have grown at compound average annual rates of 10.3 per cent and 9.6 per cent, respectively over the past ten years with no slowdown apparent. Even in 1970 when economic conditions were generally unfavorable for corporate profitability, American Home turned in a 9.8 per cent gain in per share income on an 8.5 per cent rise in net sales.

If you wish to increase your position in this stock, I would by all means take advantage of the option you mentioned - at $58 a share you would be buying American Home at around 24 per cent below current market quotes.

Q. I hold 10 Florida Turnpike Authority Revenue 4¾s of 2001. A while back you discussed another toll revenue bond which was in arrears. I now wonder if there is any danger for my bonds? — A.T.

A. Because in most cases turnpike authorities meet bond interest and sinking fund requirements solely from toll revenue, there is a wide latitude in safety margins from one turnpike issue to another. The ailing bond previously discussed here was Series C Chesapeake Bay Bridge & Tunnel. In 1970 revenues of $7.6 million were collected, which, after expenses, covered only 62 per cent of annual interest requirements for all series.

The Florida Turnpike Authority Revenue bonds are another story altogether. Collections last year of $24 million covered interest obligations by 377 per cent after expenses were met, a substantial improvement over a decade earlier when coverage was only 199 per cent.

Prices Fall Second Day On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices closed lower for the second consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday. Turnover was fairly heavy.

The setback was largely attributed to an extension of Tuesday's profit taking which interrupted a two-week upswing. However, also unsettling investors were a Commerce Department report of a decline in March durable goods orders and a statement by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that the Soviet Union had started building a new, extensive ballistics missile system which "must be of major concern" to the United States.

Last month's decline in new orders for durable goods—a leading economic indicator—was the first drop since last October, when the strike at General Motors Corp. was substantially responsible for a 4 1-2 per cent decrease in orders.

Of the 1,688 issues crossing the tape, declines led advances, 827 to 553. A turnover of around 17,000,000 shares compared with 17,880,000 shares traded on Tuesday.

Diebold, Inc. was weak in the wake of a disappointing earnings statement.

Prices were weak in moderately active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Graphic Arts, Salin Printing Combine Their Operations

Two Marin County printing firms, Graphic Arts of Marin, Inc. of Sausalito and Salin Printing and Advertising of San Rafael, have combined their operations under the Graphic Arts name.

BERNARD MOSS of Graphic Arts will continue as president and Lothar Salin, who has headed the San Rafael firm for the past 21 years, will become executive vice president. Offices will be maintained in both cities, with Salin remaining in the San Rafael area. All other personnel will be retained.

Graphic Arts now expects to have access to greater production capacity and versatility in creative work, general job printing and publications. It is likely that plant equipment will be concentrated in one location.

OVER LAST WEEKEND, the motorcycling Greenblats, Merle (Sandy) and Marilyn, moved their triving two-wheeling Marin Motorsports from 1560 Fourth Street to 1101 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael.

The Greenblats, who have occupied the Fourth Street store for the past five years, no longer need worry about curb parking to display their Hondas, Triumphs, Kawasakis and Husqvarnas. Johnny Ribeiro Builder constructed a 12,000-square foot building for them on a one-acre site, with enough room to show off the various models and also test them.

PLANNED SECURITY PROGRAMS in San Rafael has moved from Mission Avenue to 304 Reynold Johnson Building at 1299 Fourth Street.

This represents an expansion in marketing the company's payroll deduction retirement plan and managing director John Hyams will be taking on additional sales representatives.

RICHARD TURNER of the KTIM Turners has returned to the San Rafael radio station as sales manager. For the past five years he has been manager of KTIM's sister station KBLC at Lakeport.

A PROGRAM OF WORKSHOPS on employee relations techniques is being initiated under the joint sponsorship of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, Dominican College and Gary Nelson and Associates, San Rafael.

The first series of three sessions, for retailers only, will be held in Room 207 of the library at Dominican College from 7:30 to 10 p.m. on the next three Mondays - April 26, May 3 and May 10. Registration is $20 and should be made with the Marin County Chamber office. It is limited to 30 persons.

A SERIES OF THREE free lectures on investments sponsored by Waldron and Co., Northgate Industrial Park will be held tomorrow night, Thursday, April 29, and Thursday, May 6, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Bank of Marin's Community Room, 1 Mitchell Boulevard at the Northgate park.

Terrence H. Howard of Santa Venetia, director of research for Waldron, will conduct the series and answer questions. Reservations should be made with Miss Brose at the Waldron office.

A CREDIT GRANTER SEMINAR, sponsored by the Credit Bureau of Marin County will be held tomorrow from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Edgewater Inn, Corte Madera. The course is conducted by Walter Collins on material produced by Glen D. Ruddy, a credit consumer consultant.

Cost is $20, including tuition and several manuals. Registration should be made with the Credit Bureau of Marin County, San Rafael.

RALPH W. GOUSHA JR. of Novato has been appointed an agent for the Redwood Empire district of Prudential Insurance Co.

Banker Proposes Tough Penalties For Polluters

OAKLAND (BW) — Banker Fortney H. Stark Jr. has suggested enacting a felony pollution law — with penalties up to five years in prison — for use against top corporate officers whose industries cause pollution.

"Throw a few chairmen of the board in jail for polluting the air and water, and you'll see pollution disappear quite rapidly," Stark said.

"You'd also probably see some pretty drastic prison reforms."

Stark, president of Security National Bank, delivered the luncheon speech at the 20th annual educational symposium of the California Environmental Health Association.

He singled out General Motors Chairman James M. Roche as an example of an industrialist who "totally misunderstands what is happening in America today.

"In a recent article in U. S. News & World Report, Mr. Roche tries to convince us that 'corporate responsibility' is a catchword of enemies of free enterprise, and that American business is already fulfilling its responsibilities by providing jobs and making money for its shareholders.

"After reading the article, I had the distinct impression that Mr. Roche doesn't feel that eliminating auto pollution is one of General Motors' responsibilities because it would cost too much."

Stark said most corporations are so profit-structured that they fail to see the wisdom of spending money to clean themselves up.

"People like Mr. Roche say, 'I won't change unless everybody does, because I'll lose money.' This is a man who made $795,000 in 1969, or $379 an hour and controls a budget of $24 billion a year, an annual budget larger than any state in the nation and every country in the world except the U. S. and Russia.

Stark said corporations working cooperatively could halt pollution in a surprisingly short time if they wanted to.

"The corporations of America have tremendous power and know-how, and when high corporate executives say their hands are tied because of their responsibility to their shareholders, they're not telling the truth."

He said, "Top corporate officers consider themselves the ultimate of good citizens in private life, but as long as their companies continue to poison the environment, they would just as well be classified as criminals.

"Pollution is a lawless act, an act of violence against our natural resources. Up until recently, this violence has been countenanced by public opinion, just as other lawless acts in our history, such as killing Indians, have been socially acceptable.

"The reckless destruction of our environment can no longer be tolerated by large segments of our society, so we start looking for ways to prevent it, and we are confronted by seemingly impregnable, depersonalized institutions.

"If it's a crime to pollute, whom do we charge? Maybe we should charge those in command. They're responsible for it.

"Felony pollution. That would be an interesting sort of charge, especially with penalties up to five years in prison."

Stark noted that "in 99 per cent of the cases, business is the negative force in defeating ecology laws through lobbying and public relations activities. Its role has been to protect itself from laws that might cause expense or siphon public money into other endeavors such as rapid transit.

"Business lobbyists have retarded new, creative legislation by their unwillingness to accept new ideas. This self-serving approach will eventually be self-defeating.

"If the public gets aroused — which it is — there's no way that corporate lobbyists can win the war, regardless of how many dollars they spread among legislators, because in the end it's the people who elect or defeat the legislators, and the people are getting angry. When they get mad enough, the legislators will listen to them instead of the lobbyists."

Room For Growth In Home Products

BY ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We need advice on American Home Products. We have 139 shares at an average cost of $37 and have an option to purchase 75 more at $58. Should we sell and take the profit, exercise the option or what? — L.M.

A. Unless you need additional income, I would not sell your commitment in American Home. Although at present levels you have an approximate 106 per cent profit, there is still considerable long-term growth mileage left in this issue.

Company sales and earnings have grown at compound average annual rates of 10.3 per cent and 9.6 per cent, respectively over the past ten years with no slowdown apparent. Even in 1970 when economic conditions were generally unfavorable for corporate profitability, American Home turned in a 9.8 per cent gain in per share income on an 8.5 per cent rise in net sales.

If you wish to increase your position in this stock, I would by all means take advantage of the option you mentioned - at $58 a share you would be buying American Home at around 24 per cent below current market quotes.

Q. I hold 10 Florida Turnpike Authority Revenue 4¾s of 2001. A while back you discussed another toll revenue bond which was in arrears. I now wonder if there is any danger for my bonds? — A.T.

A. Because in most cases turnpike authorities meet bond interest and sinking fund requirements solely from toll revenue, there is a wide latitude in safety margins from one turnpike issue to another. The ailing bond previously discussed here was Series C Chesapeake Bay Bridge & Tunnel. In 1970 revenues of $7.6 million were collected, which, after expenses, covered only 62 per cent of annual interest requirements for all series.

The Florida Turnpike Authority Revenue bonds are another story altogether. Collections last year of $24 million covered interest obligations by 377 per cent after expenses were met, a substantial improvement over a decade earlier when coverage was only 199 per cent.

Prices Fall Second Day On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices closed lower for the second consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday. Turnover was fairly heavy.

The setback was largely attributed to an extension of Tuesday's profit taking which interrupted a two-week upswing. However, also unsettling investors were a Commerce Department report of a decline in March durable goods orders and a statement by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that the Soviet Union had started building a new, extensive ballistics missile system which "must be of major concern" to the United States.

Last month's decline in new orders for durable goods—a leading economic indicator—was the first drop since last October, when the strike at General Motors Corp. was substantially responsible for a 4 1-2 per cent decrease in orders.

Of the 1,688 issues crossing the tape, declines led advances, 827 to 553. A turnover of around 17,000,000 shares compared with 17,880,000 shares traded on Tuesday.

Diebold, Inc. was weak in the wake of a disappointing earnings statement.

Prices were weak in moderately active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Graphic Arts, Salin Printing Combine Their Operations

Two Marin County printing firms, Graphic Arts of Marin, Inc. of Sausalito and Salin Printing and Advertising of San Rafael, have combined their operations under the Graphic Arts name.

BERNARD MOSS of Graphic Arts will continue as president and Lothar Salin, who has headed the San Rafael firm for the past 21 years, will become executive vice president. Offices will be maintained in both cities, with Salin remaining in the San Rafael area. All other personnel will be retained.

Graphic Arts now expects to have access to greater production capacity and versatility in creative work, general job printing and publications. It is likely that plant equipment will be concentrated in one location.

OVER LAST WEEKEND, the motorcycling Greenblats, Merle (Sandy) and Marilyn, moved their triving two-wheeling Marin Motorsports from 1560 Fourth Street to 1101 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael.

The Greenblats, who have occupied the Fourth Street store for the past five years, no longer need worry about curb parking to display their Hondas, Triumphs, Kawasakis and Husqvarnas. Johnny Ribeiro Builder constructed a 12,000-square foot building for them on a one-acre site, with enough room to show off the various models and also test them.

PLANNED SECURITY PROGRAMS in San Rafael has moved from Mission Avenue to 304 Reynold Johnson Building at 1299 Fourth Street.

This represents an expansion in marketing the company's payroll deduction retirement plan and managing director John Hyams will be taking on additional sales representatives.

RICHARD TURNER of the KTIM Turners has returned to the San Rafael radio station as sales manager. For the past five years he has been manager of KTIM's sister station KBLC at Lakeport.

A PROGRAM OF WORKSHOPS on employee relations techniques is being initiated under the joint sponsorship of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, Dominican College and Gary Nelson and Associates, San Rafael.

The first series of three sessions, for retailers only, will be held in Room 207 of the library at Dominican College from 7:30 to 10 p.m. on the next three Mondays - April 26, May 3 and May 10. Registration is $20 and should be made with the Marin County Chamber office. It is limited to 30 persons.

A SERIES OF THREE free lectures on investments sponsored by Waldron and Co., Northgate Industrial Park will be held tomorrow night, Thursday, April 29, and Thursday, May 6, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Bank of Marin's Community Room, 1 Mitchell Boulevard at the Northgate park.

Terrence H. Howard of Santa Venetia, director of research for Waldron, will conduct the series and answer questions. Reservations should be made with Miss Brose at the Waldron office.

A CREDIT GRANTER SEMINAR, sponsored by the Credit Bureau of Marin County will be held tomorrow from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Edgewater Inn, Corte Madera. The course is conducted by Walter Collins on material produced by Glen D. Ruddy, a credit consumer consultant.

Cost is $20, including tuition and several manuals. Registration should be made with the Credit Bureau of Marin County, San Rafael.

RALPH W. GOUSHA JR. of Novato has been appointed an agent for the Redwood Empire district of Prudential Insurance Co.

Banker Proposes Tough Penalties For Polluters

OAKLAND (BW) — Banker Fortney H. Stark Jr. has suggested enacting a felony pollution law — with penalties up to five years in prison —for use against top corporate officers whose industries cause pollution.

"Throw a few chairmen of the board in jail for polluting the air and water, and you'll see pollution disappear quite rapidly," Stark said.

"You'd also probably see some pretty drastic prison reforms."

Stark, president of Security National Bank, delivered the luncheon speech at the 20th annual educational symposium of the California Environmental Health Association.

He singled out General Motors Chairman James M. Roche as an example of an industrialist who "totally misunderstands what is happening in America today.

"In a recent article in U. S. News & World Report, Mr. Roche tries to convince us that 'corporate responsibility' is a catchword of enemies of free enterprise, and that American business is already fulfilling its responsibilities by providing jobs and making money for its shareholders.

"After reading the article, I had the distinct impression that Mr. Roche doesn't feel that eliminating auto pollution is one of General Motors' responsibilities because it would cost too much."

Stark said most corporations are so profit-structured that they fail to see the wisdom of spending money to clean themselves up.

"People like Mr. Roche say, 'I won't change unless everybody does, because I'll lose money.' This is a man who made $795,000 in 1969, or $379 an hour and controls a budget of $24 billion a year, an annual budget larger than any state in the nation and every country in the world except the U. S. and Russia.

Stark said corporations working cooperatively could halt pollution in a surprisingly short time if they wanted to.

"The corporations of America have tremendous power and know-how, and when high corporate executives say their hands are tied because of their responsibility to their shareholders, they're not telling the truth."

He said, "Top corporate officers consider themselves the ultimate of good citizens in private life, but as long as their companies continue to poison the environment, they would just as well be classified as criminals.

"Pollution is a lawless act, an act of violence against our natural resources. Up until recently, this violence has been countenanced by public opinion, just as other lawless acts in our history, such as killing Indians, have been socially acceptable.

"The reckless destruction of our environment can no longer be tolerated by large segments of our society, so we start looking for ways to prevent it, and we are confronted by seemingly impregnable, depersonalized institutions.

"If it's a crime to pollute, whom do we charge? Maybe we should charge those in command. They're responsible for it.

"Felony pollution. That would be an interesting sort of charge, especially with penalties up to five years in prison."

Stark noted that "in 99 per cent of the cases, business is the negative force in defeating ecology laws through lobbying and public relations activities. Its role has been to protect itself from laws that might cause expense or siphon public money into other endeavors such as rapid transit.

"Business lobbyists have retarded new, creative legislation by their unwillingness to accept new ideas. This self-serving approach will eventually be self-defeating.

"If the public gets aroused — which it is — there's no way that corporate lobbyists can win the war, regardless of how many dollars they spread among legislators, because in the end it's the people who elect or defeat the legislators, and the people are getting angry. When they get mad enough, the legislators will listen to them instead of the lobbyists."

German Investment Abroad Goes Up

BONN (UPI)—West German investments abroad since 1952 have reached about 20 billion marks ($5.4 billion) but only one-half of it was outside Western Europe.

A report by the Ministry of Economics said the largest area of German investment outside Europe was Brazil, which received 1.45 billion marks ($392 million) during the last 19 years.

Tiburon Closer To Joint Police Plan

The Tiburon City Council on receiving a report last night on the implications of a joint police force for Tiburon and Belvedere, instructed its staff to cooperate with Belvedere city staff in selecting a consultant to advise both city councils.

The report by the cities' joint police study committee stated that a common force would give both cities as good service for the same money, or better service for more money than separate police forces now cost.

The report also called for a determination of such matters as the governing body for such a joint force, how to apportion functions and facilities and location of equipment.

The council discussed hiring a consultant for $1,000 to $2,000 and paying for it out of the Tiburon funds, unless Belvedere offered to pay part of the expense.

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood suggested getting an officer from the state commission on Peace Officers' Standards and Training which would not cost the city anything.

The council asked that the two cities' staffs study hiring consultants or getting one from the state and report back at its May 10 meeting.

The Tiburon City Council also:

HORSES — Received a draft of an ordinance requiring a use permit to keep a horse, but turned it over to city staff to reword. The proposed ordinance included horses but did not mention ponies or donkeys, nor set standards for shelters for the animal and how close these stables could be to nearby homes.

PATHWAYS — Asked staff to get a definite proposal from Brown Heldt Associates of San Francisco on designing the walkways from Main Street to Mar East. This proposal is to be presented at 7:30 p.m. next Monday at city hall.

LEASE — Accepted the city manager's proposal to offer Fred Zelinski a three-year lease on the city hall instead of the five years lease which Zelinski has asked. The city now pays $575 per month on a lease that expires July 1. Zelinski wants $700 per month on a five year lease.

LOT SPLIT — Approved a lot split for Ralph C. Noah for a lot at 6 Rolling Hills Road.

TOWN HOUSES — Approved both the tentative and final maps of Vistazo Towne Houses. The final map is not to be recorded until owner Philip V. Abend of 1410 Vistazo puts in the landscaping according to a plan approved in 1963.

BOTTLES — Authorized staff to prepare an ordinance for its May 10 meeting prohibiting the local sales of non-returnable bottles and containers.

PICKUP — Set May 3 to 7 the free pickup of rubbish in the city.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. next Monday in the city hall.

Senate Approves Refuge Measure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate voted yesterday to designate the Farallon Islands a state game refuge to outlaw the shooting of animals and birds and catching of fish within one mile of the islands.

The measure by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, was sent to the Assembly on a 28-0 vote. There was no opposition.

The measure specifically names the Southeast Farallons, including Maintop Island, the Middle Farallons, the North Farallons and Noonday Rock as being within the refuge boundaries.

Tiburon Council Creates Honorary Historian Post

The Tiburon City Council last night created the honorary post of city historian and an historical committee.

It then named Louise Teather of 2340 Paradise Drive as historian for an indefinite term, to serve at the discretion of the council.

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood had suggested such a post in March. The council created it after consulting with the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society.

Mrs. Teather was asked to nominate appointees to the committee whose task will be to:

Identify all currently available literature, photographs, and other items relating to the history, architecture, geography, geology and ecology of the area;

Serve as the city's official source of information about these subjects.

Boy, 4, Hit; Leg Fractured

Fred J. Tuck, Jr., 4, of 202 McAllister Avenue, Kentfield, suffered a fractured left leg yesterday when he was hit by a car in front of his house, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Officers said he apparently ran in front of a westbound car driven by Randy A. Cook, 15, of 6 Stadium Way, Kentfield, at 5:55 p.m.

The child was taken to Marin General Hospital and then transferred to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco for treatment.

Opposition To Span Approach Traffic Pattern

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — City traffic engineers have opposed a federal plan that calls for barring intra-city traffic from the controversial Doyle Drive approach to the Golden Gate Bridge.

The National Transportation Safety Board said in a special report that the mingling of crosstown and bridge traffic on the drive was a hazard. It said such a traffic flow could have been the cause of an auto collision last July that killed ten persons.

The report urged that only motorists crossing the bridge be allowed to use the approach.

Norman Bray, a city traffic engineer, said Tuesday the only alternative would be to divert downtown traffic into already overcrowded city streets.

Assistant planning director Ed Murphy said the barring of downtown traffic was "pretty drastic."

"If the federal board says there are alternative routes for the crosstown traffic, I wish they'd tell us where they are," he said.

Tiburon Closer To Joint Police Plan

The Tiburon City Council on receiving a report last night on the implications of a joint police force for Tiburon and Belvedere, instructed its staff to cooperate with Belvedere city staff in selecting a consultant to advise both city councils.

The report by the cities' joint police study committee stated that a common force would give both cities as good service for the same money, or better service for more money than separate police forces now cost.

The report also called for a determination of such matters as the governing body for such a joint force, how to apportion functions and facilities and location of equipment.

The council discussed hiring a consultant for $1,000 to $2,000 and paying for it out of the Tiburon funds, unless Belvedere offered to pay part of the expense.

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood suggested getting an officer from the state commission on Peace Officers' Standards and Training which would not cost the city anything.

The council asked that the two cities' staffs study hiring consultants or getting one from the state and report back at its May 10 meeting.

The Tiburon City Council also:

HORSES — Received a draft of an ordinance requiring a use permit to keep a horse, but turned it over to city staff to reword. The proposed ordinance included horses but did not mention ponies or donkeys, nor set standards for shelters for the animal and how close these stables could be to nearby homes.

PATHWAYS — Asked staff to get a definite proposal from Brown Heldt Associates of San Francisco on designing the walkways from Main Street to Mar East. This proposal is to be presented at 7:30 p.m. next Monday at city hall.

LEASE — Accepted the city manager's proposal to offer Fred Zelinski a three-year lease on the city hall instead of the five years lease which Zelinski has asked. The city now pays $575 per month on a lease that expires July 1. Zelinski wants $700 per month on a five year lease.

TOWN HOUSES — Approved both the tentative and final maps of Vistazo Towne Houses. The final map is not to be recorded until owner Philip V. Abend of 1410 Vistazo puts in the landscaping according to a plan approved in 1963.

BOTTLES — Authorized staff to prepare an ordinance for its May 10 meeting prohibiting the local sales of non-returnable bottles and containers.

PICKUP — Set May 3 to 7 the free pickup of rubbish in the city.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. next Monday in the city hall.

Senate Approves Refuge Measure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate voted yesterday to designate the Farallon Islands a state game refuge to outlaw the shooting of animals and birds and catching of fish within one mile of the islands.

The measure by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, was sent to the Assembly on a 28-0 vote. There was no opposition.

The measure specifically names the Southeast Farallons, including Maintop Island, the Middle Farallons, the North Farallons and Noonday Rock as being within the refuge boundaries.

Tiburon Council Creates Honorary Historian Post

The Tiburon City Council last night created the honorary post of city historian and an historical committee.

It then named Louise Teather of 2340 Paradise Drive as historian for an indefinite term, to serve at the discretion of the council.

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood had suggested such a post in March. The council created it after consulting with the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society.

Mrs. Teather was asked to nominate appointees to the committee whose task will be to:

Identify all currently available literature, photographs, and other items relating to the history, architecture, geography, geology and ecology of the area;

Serve as the city's official source of information about these subjects.

Boy, 4, Hit; Leg Fractured

Fred J. Tuck, Jr., 4, of 202 McAllister Avenue, Kentfield, suffered a fractured left leg yesterday when he was hit by a car in front of his house, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Officers said he apparently ran in front of a westbound car driven by Randy A. Cook, 15, of 6 Stadium Way, Kentfield, at 5:55 p.m.

The child was taken to Marin General Hospital and then transferred to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco for treatment.

Opposition To Span Approach Traffic Pattern

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — City traffic engineers have opposed a federal plan that calls for barring intra-city traffic from the controversial Doyle Drive approach to the Golden Gate Bridge.

The National Transportation Safety Board said in a special report that the mingling of crosstown and bridge traffic on the drive was a hazard. It said such a traffic flow could have been the cause of an auto collision last July that killed ten persons.

The report urged that only motorists crossing the bridge be allowed to use the approach.

Norman Bray, a city traffic engineer, said Tuesday the only alternative would be to divert downtown traffic into already overcrowded city streets.

Assistant planning director Ed Murphy said the barring of downtown traffic was "pretty drastic."

"If the federal board says there are alternative routes for the crosstown traffic, I wish they'd tell us where they are," he said.

FINANCES IN A MESS?
Don't feel like the Lone Ranger, most people need some help. This ad is unusual, we don't loan money and are not selling business opportunities. It is just that we feel there are times when sitting down with a successful person who is not emotionally involved in your problems, but can study them, can be the answer or at least the start to solving your situation. I have a formula for climbing out of debt and starting to build financial security that might be the answer you have been looking for. If you and I think we can help you there's a small fee based on how much I have to do. No obligation on either person's part. You may not think I can help you or I may not think you're willing to be helped. One interview will tell us and it will take 15 to 30 minutes. Call my executive secretary, Mrs. Marty Conley, for an appointment. 454-8232.

FINANCES IN A MESS?

Don't feel like the Lone Ranger, most people need some help. This ad is unusual, we don't loan money and are not selling business opportunities. It is just that we feel there are times when sitting down with a successful person who is not emotionally involved in your problems, but can study them, can be the answer or at least the start to solving your situation. I have a formula for climbing out of debt and starting to build financial security that might be the answer you have been looking for. If you and I think we can help you there's a small fee based on how much I have to do. No obligation on either person's part. You may not think I can help you or I may not think you're willing to be helped. One interview will tell us and it will take 15 to 30 minutes. Call my executive secretary, Mrs. Marty Conley, for an appointment. 454-8232.

STARS ABOVE

Berenice's Hair Is Hard To Find

BY SHERMAN WALKER

Berenice's Hair (Coma Berenices) is a constellation that was known to the ancients but is so dim that its beauty can only be appreciated when viewed through binoculars or low-power telescope.

At lectures, it is always amusing to show someone where to point the binoculars, then hear their exclamation of surprise and delight when they catch sight of this constellation. It is a smoky or hazy place in the sky, roughly about the size of the bowl of the Big Dipper.

To find Berenice's Hair, face southward and look at the region of the sky that is four-fifths of the distance up from the southern horizon to overhead.

Some 25 or 30 of these stars can be counted when viewed through fairly good binoculars. When seen through a large telescope, this small space in the sky contains hundreds of nebulae and other objects of great interest to the professional astronomer.

It is remarkable that a star group such as this would be known and named by the ancients, but these people watched the stars more than we moderns and without the interference of electric lights.

"When Shepherd Watched Their Flocks by Night," they were in the darkness for long period and their eyes were well adjusted to the conditions; besides, they had to look at something and the stars were a handy subject for observation and discussion.

Challenge To Laws On Abortion Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court, by a 5-4 vote, upheld today the District of Columbia's abortion statute against a challenge that it was unconstitutionally vague.

The challenged language—similar to that in laws of many states—says that an abortion is legally permissible only if "necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health."

In an array of six opinions expressing a variety of views, the Court emphasized that the vagueness issue was the only one considered.

The reason for confining the ruling within narrow bounds was that Federal Judge Gerhard A. Gesell relied on the vagueness rationale when dismissing the indictment of Dr. Milan Vuitch, a Yugoslav immigrant who has been crusading for more liberal abortion policies.

Challenges of abortion statutes in several states are on the Court's docket.

The majority opinion by Justice Hugo L. Black, reversed Gesell's ruling that the law was too vague.

Black said Vuitch's attorney had suggested other reasons why Gesell's action should be affirmed—for instance, that the law was an invasion of privacy.

But Black said while there were some references to such claims in Gesell's opinion, the Supreme Court viewed it as holding simply that the statute was void for vagueness.

Black pointed out in his discussion of the vagueness issue that the District of Columbia statute—enacted in 1901—did not outlaw all abortions, only those not performed under the direction of a competent, licensed physician, and those not necessary to preserve the mother's life or health.

Gesell held that the law placed on a defendant doctor the burden of proving that he made the right medical judgment.

Black took the opposite view. He said the law placed the burden on the prosecution to "plead and prove that an abortion was not 'necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health'."

"Placing such a burden of proof on a doctor would be peculiarly inconsistent with society's notions of the responsibilities of the medical profession," Black's opinion said.

It was also argued that "health" was imprecise, since the law did not indicate whether it included varying degrees of mental as well as physical health.

Black said other lower courts had construed the law to permit abortions "for mental health reasons whether or not the patients had a previous history of mental defects."

"We see no reason why this interpretation of the statute should not be followed," he said. "Certainly this construction accords with the general usage and modern understanding of the word 'health,' which includes psychological as well as physical well-being."

Justice William O. Douglas dissented as to the constitutionality of the law. Justice Potter Stewart expressed doubts but said if the statute were construed to remove all criminal liability from a licensed physician, it would pass muster in his view.

San Franciscan Loses Appeal On Draft Status

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today upheld selective service regulations which prohibit a draftee from making a conscientious objector claim between the time his induction notice is mailed and the date he is ordered for induction.

The Court, by a vote of 6 to 3, affirmed the conviction of William Ward Ehlert in San Francisco who was sentenced to two years in jail for failing to submit to induction.

Ehlert contended that his draft board should have reopened his case when he made up his mind he was a conscientious objector after receiving his induction notice.

In a majority opinion, Justice Potter Stewart noted that the general counselor of the Army had assured the Justice Department that such claims could be raised after a draftee was inducted.

"We are assured," Stewart said, "that present practice allows presentation of such claims, and that there thus exists no possibility that late crystallizers will find themselves without a forum in which to press their claims."

Douglas commented: "the stories of sudden conversion are legion in religious history. And there is no reason why the selective service boards should not recognize them, deal with them, and if sincere, act on them even though they come after notice of induction has been received."

Selective service regulations state that a registrant's classification may not be reopened after the induction notice has been mailed unless a change in circumstances occurs "over which the registrant has no control."

Ehlert wrote his draft board that he had been "unable to make a decision of such moment until faced with the absolute necessity to do so."

The government said that to reopen the classification of a man ordered to military service would require his removal from that month's draft call and unfairly expedite the call of another man.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Survey Shows Younger Persons Favor Some Population Controls

As the concern about overpopulation grows, many young married couples are planning for the future. A survey conducted among 1,059 students and faculty at Cornell University revealed that 84 per cent believed that family size should be limited. Of these, 26 per cent wanted three or more children, 39 per cent were willing to settle for three. Thirty per cent favored two children and only 5 per cent one or none. Their religious persuasion was not mentioned but 50 per cent favored the "Pill" over all other contraceptive technics to space children and to limit family size. Voluntary sterilization (either of man or woman) was considered undesirable. It was here that many old myths and fears about sterilization were noted. Considering the intellectual level of those surveyed, this was unusual.

ABORTIONS WERE considered to be as undesirable as voluntary sterilization. The survey was done two years ago and we wonder if the respondents have changed their minds since many states have legalized abortion.

The early Greeks and Christians considered abortion a crime if it was done after the pregnant woman felt life. The latter refers to the first movements of the fetus, appearing from the 16th to the 18th week of pregnancy. Stricter laws abolishing abortions were passed 100 years ago in this country. In 1869 Pope Pius XI declared all abortions to be an excommunicatory sin.

BUT SINCE THEN the worm has turned, because of appeals and court actions. Among the decisions is a woman's right of privacy in matters of sex, including the right to decide whether or not she will bear children. Apparently this is a woman's privilege. At any rate, many states now have laws liberalizing abortion and New York has abortion on demand.

WINTER HEATING

Mrs. J. V. writes: Isn't it healthier to regulate the heat in the apartment to 72 rather than let it reach 85? My husband wants a real warm temperature so that when he is home I go around in a sweat.

REPLY

Eighty-five is too high as it may indicate lack of thyroid or anemia. Most of us enjoy a temperature of between 72 and 75 but exceptions occur. Increase the indoor humidity and your husband may feel more comfortable at a lower temperature. Knit him a nice heavy sweater and have it ready at the door when he comes home.

TRAVEL AFTER D & C

G. B. writes: Please explain what a D & C operation is and does it require an anesthetic? Assuming it is done in a hospital, how many days must one be there and could the person take an auto trip of 600 miles directly upon release?

REPLY

D & C refers to dilatation and curettage of the uterus. An anesthetic is given and the woman usually is released from the hospital after 24 hours. Whether or not a 600-mile trip is advisable depends upon why the D & C was performed and the results of the procedure.

DECREPIT VOICE

D. E. V. writes: For two months my vocal cords have been weak. Is there any way they can be strengthened?

REPLY

Yes. Try listening instead of speaking. The symptoms may stem from talking too much or from infection or tumor. May I suggest that you have the throat and larynx examined?

Voters In Oakland Return Incumbents

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Incumbent city councilmen staved off an election challenge Tuesday from a racially-mixed coalition which had hoped to repeat the victory won by radical challengers in neighboring Berkeley.

Four of five officeholders won re-election and the fifth led an at-large field of eight, but faces a runoff May 18 against the only survivor from the "Oakland Coalition."

The vigorous campaign by the coalition of minority and civic group candidates produced the biggest turnout for an Oakland municipal election in two decades.

Their candidates — three blacks, a Chinese, a Hawaiian and a Caucasian—insisted they weren't radicals. They advocated changes in the city's "status quo" and charged the incumbents with being unresponsive to the black community, which makes up 40 per cent of the population.

The winners campaigned on their records of "orderly gains" in housing, redevelopment and employment in this industrial and port city of 386,000 across the bay from San Francisco.

Councilman Fred Maggiora, a 21-year veteran, led the victors with a 2-1 margin over his coalition opponent. Incumbents Frank Ogawa and Raymond L. Eng also won easily, while Felix F. Chialvo edged Mrs. Betty Ann Bruno of the coalition by 7,200 votes out of 88,000 cast.

In the at-large race, incumbent Harvey Binns ran up a 2-1 margin over John Sutter, a conservationist and the only white member of the coalition. Sutter edged out Stephen Brooks, the candidate of the more radical April Caucus, for the right to challenge Binns in the runoff.

The coalition, which won the endorsement of Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes, campaigned against Oakland's unemployment, crime, housing and tax problems.

PG&E Seeking Rate Hikes Of $37 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Gas and Electric Co. asked the State Public Utilities Commission on Tuesday for rate increases totaling $37 million a year. The utility said the total would compensate for increased wholesale gas rates it must pay. About $10 million of it would apply to electricity customers to pay for boosted generating costs resulting from the fuel cost increases, it added.

PG&E estimated the additional cost to domestic customers for gas and electricity at about 50 cents a month and said such an increase would not increse company earnings.

In January, the company was granted a 7.5 per cent increase in its electricity rates, estimated to produce $51.6 million. Last month the firm was granted a $9 million increase in its gas rates.

Consultant On Housing Is Hired

A consultant to prepare a five-year housing program for the county was hired last night by the Marin County Housing Authority board.

Assistant executive director Keith Kelly reported the board ageed to hire the San Francisco firm of E. M. Schaffran and Co. to conduct the study, at a cost of about $5,000. Executive director Wallace K. Shepherd has said the study is needed so the authority "will know what kind of housing is needed and what type of programs we must have to provide that housing."

The board directed its administrative staff to arrange a meeting with the consultant to give board members a chance to discuss their ideas and concerns before the firm begins formulating the plan.

The Marin County Housing Authority board also:

INSPECTION — Approved hiring Crawford and Banning, San Rafael architectural firm, to inspect plans and construction work for a 56-unit senior citizen housing project in Tiburon. The architects will be paid on an hourly rate, Kelly said, with the total cost not to exceed $7,000.

REMODELING — After considerable discussion, called for a number of public hearings (at dates to be announced) on a plan presented by Shepherd to expand administrative offices into a maintenance building adjacent to the housing authority office. The proposal would mean changes in the organization of the administrative staff.

NEW DUTY — Authorized the assistant director to act in Shepherd's place when he is away.

CONFERENCE — Granted the executive director permission to attend the National Association of Redevelopment and Housing officials's annual conference in Los Angeles May 16-18.

STARS ABOVE

Berenice's Hair Is Hard To Find

BY SHERMAN WALKER

Berenice's Hair (Coma Berenices) is a constellation that was known to the ancients but is so dim that its beauty can only be appreciated when viewed through binoculars or low-power telescope.

At lectures, it is always amusing to show someone where to point the binoculars, then hear their exclamation of surprise and delight when they catch sight of this constellation. It is a smoky or hazy place in the sky, roughly about the size of the bowl of the Big Dipper.

To find Berenice's Hair, face southward and look at the region of the sky that is four-fifths of the distance up from the southern horizon to overhead.

Some 25 or 30 of these stars can be counted when viewed through fairly good binoculars. When seen through a large telescope, this small space in the sky contains hundreds of nebulae and other objects of great interest to the professional astronomer.

It is remarkable that a star group such as this would be known and named by the ancients, but these people watched the stars more than we moderns and without the interference of electric lights.

"When Shepherd Watched Their Flocks by Night," they were in the darkness for long period and their eyes were well adjusted to the conditions; besides, they had to look at something and the stars were a handy subject for observation and discussion.

Challenge To Laws On Abortion Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court, by a 5-4 vote, upheld today the District of Columbia's abortion statute against a challenge that it was unconstitutionally vague.

The challenged language—similar to that in laws of many states—says that an abortion is legally permissible only if "necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health."

In an array of six opinions expressing a variety of views, the Court emphasized that the vagueness issue was the only one considered.

The reason for confining the ruling within narrow bounds was that Federal Judge Gerhard A. Gesell relied on the vagueness rationale when dismissing the indictment of Dr. Milan Vuitch, a Yugoslav immigrant who has been crusading for more liberal abortion policies.

Challenges of abortion statutes in several states are on the Court's docket.

The majority opinion by Justice Hugo L. Black, reversed Gesell's ruling that the law was too vague.

Black said Vuitch's attorney had suggested other reasons why Gesell's action should be affirmed—for instance, that the law was an invasion of privacy.

But Black said while there were some references to such claims in Gesell's opinion, the Supreme Court viewed it as holding simply that the statute was void for vagueness.

Black pointed out in his discussion of the vagueness issue that the District of Columbia statute—enacted in 1901—did not outlaw all abortions, only those not performed under the direction of a competent, licensed physician, and those not necessary to preserve the mother's life or health.

Gesell held that the law placed on a defendant doctor the burden of proving that he made the right medical judgment.

Black took the opposite view. He said the law placed the burden on the prosecution to "plead and prove that an abortion was not 'necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health'."

"Placing such a burden of proof on a doctor would be peculiarly inconsistent with society's notions of the responsibilities of the medical profession," Black's opinion said.

It was also argued that "health" was imprecise, since the law did not indicate whether it included varying degrees of mental as well as physical health.

Black said other lower courts had construed the law to permit abortions "for mental health reasons whether or not the patients had a previous history of mental defects."

"We see no reason why this interpretation of the statute should not be followed," he said. "Certainly this construction accords with the general usage and modern understanding of the word 'health,' which includes psychological as well as physical well-being."

Justice William O. Douglas dissented as to the constitutionality of the law. Justice Potter Stewart expressed doubts but said if the statute were construed to remove all criminal liability from a licensed physician, it would pass muster in his view.

San Franciscan Loses Appeal On Draft Status

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today upheld selective service regulations which prohibit a draftee from making a conscientious objector claim between the time his induction notice is mailed and the date he is ordered for induction.

The Court, by a vote of 6 to 3, affirmed the conviction of William Ward Ehlert in San Francisco who was sentenced to two years in jail for failing to submit to induction.

Ehlert contended that his draft board should have reopened his case when he made up his mind he was a conscientious objector after receiving his induction notice.

In a majority opinion, Justice Potter Stewart noted that the general counselor of the Army had assured the Justice Department that such claims could be raised after a draftee was inducted.

"We are assured," Stewart said, "that present practice allows presentation of such claims, and that there thus exists no possibility that late crystallizers will find themselves without a forum in which to press their claims."

Douglas commented: "the stories of sudden conversion are legion in religious history. And there is no reason why the selective service boards should not recognize them, deal with them, and if sincere, act on them even though they come after notice of induction has been received."

Selective service regulations state that a registrant's classification may not be reopened after the induction notice has been mailed unless a change in circumstances occurs "over which the registrant has no control."

Ehlert wrote his draft board that he had been "unable to make a decision of such moment until faced with the absolute necessity to do so."

The government said that to reopen the classification of a man ordered to military service would require his removal from that month's draft call and unfairly expedite the call of another man.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Survey Shows Younger Persons Favor Some Population Controls

As the concern about overpopulation grows, many young married couples are planning for the future. A survey conducted among 1,059 students and faculty at Cornell University revealed that 84 per cent believed that family size should be limited. Of these, 26 per cent wanted three or more children, 39 per cent were willing to settle for three. Thirty per cent favored two children and only 5 per cent one or none. Their religious persuasion was not mentioned but 50 per cent favored the "Pill" over all other contraceptive technics to space children and to limit family size. Voluntary sterilization (either of man or woman) was considered undesirable. It was here that many old myths and fears about sterilization were noted. Considering the intellectual level of those surveyed, this was unusual.

ABORTIONS WERE considered to be as undesirable as voluntary sterilization. The survey was done two years ago and we wonder if the respondents have changed their minds since many states have legalized abortion.

The early Greeks and Christians considered abortion a crime if it was done after the pregnant woman felt life. The latter refers to the first movements of the fetus, appearing from the 16th to the 18th week of pregnancy. Stricter laws abolishing abortions were passed 100 years ago in this country. In 1869 Pope Pius XI declared all abortions to be an excommunicatory sin.

BUT SINCE THEN the worm has turned, because of appeals and court actions. Among the decisions is a woman's right of privacy in matters of sex, including the right to decide whether or not she will bear children. Apparently this is a woman's privilege. At any rate, many states now have laws liberalizing abortion and New York has abortion on demand.

WINTER HEATING

Mrs. J. V. writes: Isn't it healthier to regulate the heat in the apartment to 72 rather than let it reach 85? My husband wants a real warm temperature so that when he is home I go around in a sweat.

REPLY

Eighty-five is too high as it may indicate lack of thyroid or anemia. Most of us enjoy a temperature of between 72 and 75 but exceptions occur. Increase the indoor humidity and your husband may feel more comfortable at a lower temperature. Knit him a nice heavy sweater and have it ready at the door when he comes home.

TRAVEL AFTER D & C

G. B. writes: Please explain what a D & C operation is and does it require an anesthetic? Assuming it is done in a hospital, how many days must one be there and could the person take an auto trip of 600 miles directly upon release?

REPLY

D & C refers to dilatation and curettage of the uterus. An anesthetic is given and the woman usually is released from the hospital after 24 hours. Whether or not a 600-mile trip is advisable depends upon why the D & C was performed and the results of the procedure.

DECREPIT VOICE

D. E. V. writes: For two months my vocal cords have been weak. Is there any way they can be strengthened?

REPLY

Yes. Try listening instead of speaking. The symptoms may stem from talking too much or from infection or tumor. May I suggest that you have the throat and larynx examined?

Voters In Oakland Return Incumbents

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Incumbent city councilmen staved off an election challenge Tuesday from a racially-mixed coalition which had hoped to repeat the victory won by radical challengers in neighboring Berkeley.

Four of five officeholders won re-election and the fifth led an at-large field of eight, but faces a runoff May 18 against the only survivor from the "Oakland Coalition."

The vigorous campaign by the coalition of minority and civic group candidates produced the biggest turnout for an Oakland municipal election in two decades.

Their candidates — three blacks, a Chinese, a Hawaiian and a Caucasian—insisted they weren't radicals. They advocated changes in the city's "status quo" and charged the incumbents with being unresponsive to the black community, which makes up 40 per cent of the population.

The winners campaigned on their records of "orderly gains" in housing, redevelopment and employment in this industrial and port city of 386,000 across the bay from San Francisco.

Councilman Fred Maggiora, a 21-year veteran, led the victors with a 2-1 margin over his coalition opponent. Incumbents Frank Ogawa and Raymond L. Eng also won easily, while Felix F. Chialvo edged Mrs. Betty Ann Bruno of the coalition by 7,200 votes out of 88,000 cast.

In the at-large race, incumbent Harvey Binns ran up a 2-1 margin over John Sutter, a conservationist and the only white member of the coalition. Sutter edged out Stephen Brooks, the candidate of the more radical April Caucus, for the right to challenge Binns in the runoff.

The coalition, which won the endorsement of Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes, campaigned against Oakland's unemployment, crime, housing and tax problems.

PG&E Seeking Rate Hikes Of $37 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Gas and Electric Co. asked the State Public Utilities Commission on Tuesday for rate increases totaling $37 million a year. The utility said the total would compensate for increased wholesale gas rates it must pay. About $10 million of it would apply to electricity customers to pay for boosted generating costs resulting from the fuel cost increases, it added.

PG&E estimated the additional cost to domestic customers for gas and electricity at about 50 cents a month and said such an increase would not increse company earnings.

In January, the company was granted a 7.5 per cent increase in its electricity rates, estimated to produce $51.6 million. Last month the firm was granted a $9 million increase in its gas rates.

Consultant On Housing Is Hired

A consultant to prepare a five-year housing program for the county was hired last night by the Marin County Housing Authority board.

Assistant executive director Keith Kelly reported the board ageed to hire the San Francisco firm of E. M. Schaffran and Co. to conduct the study, at a cost of about $5,000. Executive director Wallace K. Shepherd has said the study is needed so the authority "will know what kind of housing is needed and what type of programs we must have to provide that housing."

The board directed its administrative staff to arrange a meeting with the consultant to give board members a chance to discuss their ideas and concerns before the firm begins formulating the plan.

The Marin County Housing Authority board also:

INSPECTION — Approved hiring Crawford and Banning, San Rafael architectural firm, to inspect plans and construction work for a 56-unit senior citizen housing project in Tiburon. The architects will be paid on an hourly rate, Kelly said, with the total cost not to exceed $7,000.

REMODELING — After considerable discussion, called for a number of public hearings (at dates to be announced) on a plan presented by Shepherd to expand administrative offices into a maintenance building adjacent to the housing authority office. The proposal would mean changes in the organization of the administrative staff.

NEW DUTY — Authorized the assistant director to act in Shepherd's place when he is away.

CONFERENCE — Granted the executive director permission to attend the National Association of Redevelopment and Housing officials's annual conference in Los Angeles May 16-18.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Directors of Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District intends to hold a public hearing on its UBAN Mass Transportation Administration Capital Grant Project, adopted April 9, 1971, at 10:00 AM on the 30th day of April, 1971 in the Board Room, Administration Building, Golden Gate Bridge Toll Plaza, San Francisco, California.

The intent to hold said public hearing is given and this notice is published pursuant to the requirements of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration of the United States. The purpose of a public hearing would be to consider the District's Urban Mass Transportation Administration Capital Grant Project adopted by the District on April 9, 1971, proposing to purchase between 112 and 152 transit and suburban type motor coaches, equipped with Environmental Improvement Package, radio, air conditioning, and fare collection boxes, approximately ten (10) acres of land for a central bus storage and service area and administrative offices, land improvements, buildings, and equipment necessary for bus servicing and maintenance and administrative offices, six (6) automobiles and three (3) trucks, including a recovery vehicle, all equipped with radios, a radio base station, and one bus washing unit. In addition, the District proposes to purchase and develop two parcels approximately two acres each, as satellite bus stations in the Novato and Santa Rosa areas.

The estimated cost is $9,464,000, which will be financed by a 66⅔% Federal Capital Grant of $6,309,000 under Section 3 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended in 1970, and the remaining 33⅓%, in the amount of $3,155,000 by the District from monies reserved from Bridge revenues in accordance with State Assembly Bill 584.

It is intended by the District and Greyhound Lines-West, present operator in the counties, that the Golden Gate Transit system will replace the present Greyhound operation between the counties of Sonoma, Marin and San Francisco, and within the counties of Marin and Sonoma. It is also the intent of both organizations that present Greyhound employees whose work will in effect be transferred to the District will be given the option and first choice of working for the District.

The project conforms to the proposed comprehensive land use and transportation planning program of the urban area and has been approved by the Association of Bay Area Governments. The project is to replace the existing transit system with an all-new system, with a service designed explicitly to meet the present needs of the residents and workers of the three counties. The resulting improved service will have positive effects on economic, social and environmental conditions.

The District will make available to the public in the office of the District Secretary, Administration Building, Golden Gate Bridge Toll Plaza, San Francisco, on a reasonable basis its preliminary application, draft environmental statement, and its transit development program to the extent developed at this time, and of which this project is a part.

All Federal, State or local agencies with jurisdiction by law, or special expertise, and authorized to develop and enforce environmental standards, have been notified of the application, will be provided a copy of the draft environmental statement upon request, and are invited to participate in, or supply, statements for the public hearing. A list of such Federal agencies and their areas of environmental concern was obtained from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration.

All persons and official bodies, and other organizations interested in appearing at a hearing will be heard at such time.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Ex-Hollywood Writer 'Loved Every Cliche'

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The season's best television drama, "Poet Game," recently shown on the non-commercial network, was written by Anthony Terpiloff, a former Hollywood writer now living in Wales. The play concerned a hard-drinking, middleaged Irish poet trying to straighten out his personal life while on an American lecture tour.

Through the "Hollywood Television Theatre," which produced his play, I asked Terpiloff if he would care to send along some recollections of his time in Hollywood. Following is part of the reply he cabled:

"I was old enough to know what I was doing when I came to Hollywood. I had command of the cliche about disillusionment and cynicism. My idea was to make the most of it and be only as cynical and disillusioned as I had to be. Like a soldier going into battle convinced that everyone else can be killed but himself, writers go to Hollywood saying 'I'll take the money and run — God is on my side and also my talent.'

"I went because I was sent for, paid for and loved every cliche of it. You can't cry rape when you know what's going to happen. My greatest complaint was that it didn't happen often enough. Some good fairy kept me from it. Hollywood's not a harem. Nobody forces you to stay. In fact, it's hard to stay there and make money. A good half of professional writers earn nothing in given years. Another great percentage get by on handouts for story ideas which are given to other writers or abandoned.

"I jumped into Hollywood enthusiastically and got unexpected benefits and unexpected damages: You know, brain, liver, stomach, morale. I found love, if not fame and fortune. I wanted to be used. I told my agent to find somebody to use me unmercifully. They said, you're too good to be used. I tried hard to prove them wrong and failed utterly but, inexplicably, I wrote many American television entertainments and got on producers' short lists and was invited to previews.

"Agents always exhort you to go in with four great stories in the morning. I was given a useful tip by a fellow writer: to tell the story in three words. I learned. And it worked, but the laugh's on me because I was then required to create a story from those three stupid words. Producers were looking at me expectantly, waiting for pages, wondering why they weren't getting pages on time. Is there no thinking allowed? So, you're a part-time fraud for a start, but you get paid for it.

"You're there to sell your services, as it says in the contract. You have to come up with current, acceptable, salable ideas that sound great in story conferences. In my clever later years I brought a tape recorder to conferences that lasted for hours, then got my wife to type a transcript. I couldn't stand to read it so I'd ask: 'Could you boil this down to a paragraph—or, better yet, one sentence, and then would you read it to me?' ...

"In Britain the audience is not deprived. Television companies take a play and, for the most part, produce it as written. Lewis Freedman (producer of the 'Hollywood Television Theatre') ... is a creative producer who takes the script, enhances it, refines it but doesn't change its intent. He trusts writers, a unique experience in Hollywood.

"Seven years ago I was asked to come to Hollywood. Last June I was asked to leave but not ridden out on the rail. Given a ticket to London by Freedman, I had the good sense to stay where I began my commerical career 10 years earlier. Hollywood is no trap. Somehow I knew when I could stand it no longer I'd make my way out just as I'd made my way there in the first place. Presumably if you're a genuine playwright, you playwrite wherever you are. Any damage done to talent is not Hollywood but oneself. Done by neglect, willful, calculated neglect."

Woman's Body Found Sprawled In Flower Bed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The body of a young woman was found Tuesday sprawled in a bed of wildflowers at the base of a hill in the Mission District. She died from a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Coroner Henry Turkel said the unidentified victim was about 19 or 20, around 135 pounds, and five foot six. He could not determine immediately whether it was murder or suicide.

Neighbors reported hearing two shots in the early morning hours, but told police they had not seen anyone outside.

Art Exhibition Is Scheduled Sunday

The Petaluma Art Association will hold an art exhibition Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the picnic area of the Marin French Cheese Co., 7500 Red Hill Road, Petaluma.

Jailed In Pigsty For Calling Officer A 'Pig'

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI)—A municipal judge sentenced a 19-year-old youth to sit three hours in a pigpen for calling a policeman a pig.

Robert L. Vitek Jr., a resident of this Cleveland suburb, Tuesday pleaded no contest to a charge of abusing a police officer. He was accused of shouting "Pig" at Sgt. Jay L. McKenna, while the policeman was arresting someone else for speeding April 11.

Judge Manuel M. Rocker fined him $300 and sentenced him to 30 days in the nearby Warrensville workhouse.

Then Rocker suspended the workhouse sentence and most of the fine on the condition that Vitek sit in a pigsty for three hours.

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A tax override measure designed to rescue the Sacramento City Unified School District from a financial bind was easily passed Tuesday by voters.

With all but two of the district's 104 precincts counted, there were 32,354 votes in favor of the proposal and 20,541 against it.

The measure will raise the district tax by 13.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation to offset the loss of $3.2 million due to a budget miscalculation.

Teachers In Novato To Give Ideas

Novato Unified School District teachers will have a chance to put down in writing how they feel about the district, its good and bad points.

Teachers also will list things they like most and least about the district on survey sheets, identified only by grade level.

The association felt the results of the survey could result in steps to improve teacher morale.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

NEGOTIATOR — Rejected a request by the classroom teachers organization to designate Supt. James G. Bunker as board representative in negotiations with teachers, to succeed Deputy Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello, present negotiator, who is leaving to be superintendent of the Reed School District.

DISASTER TRAINING — Authorized sending a teacher from each school to attend state Department of Education workshops on disaster preparedness and civil defense.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Janet Coxon, teacher at Rancho School, and Mary Wallen, a counselor, and Ruth Dauernheim, a secretary.

REASSIGNMENT — Approved a request by Ralph O'Neill, principal and teacher at North Marin High School, a continuation school, for reassignment.

MOBILITY — Approved district participation in a program to increase mobility of partially-sighted or blind students.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the administration building to instruct its negotiator on negotiation with teachers in a closed session, with the next regular meeting scheduled at 8 p.m. May 3 at the Novato High School lecture hall.

N.Y. Senate In Historic Return

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—The State Senate, which hasn't met outside Albany since the 18th century, went back Tuesday to Kingston, N.Y., the Hudson River city it was chased out of by the British in 1777.

A one-hour working session was held in the historic Senate House near where New York's first legislative body met 194 years ago. In the short session Tuesday, the 1971 Senate passed 18 non-controversial bills —nearly half the entire number passed by the 1777 Senate during the entire year.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Ex-Hollywood Writer 'Loved Every Cliche'

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The season's best television drama, "Poet Game," recently shown on the non-commercial network, was written by Anthony Terpiloff, a former Hollywood writer now living in Wales. The play concerned a hard-drinking, middleaged Irish poet trying to straighten out his personal life while on an American lecture tour.

Through the "Hollywood Television Theatre," which produced his play, I asked Terpiloff if he would care to send along some recollections of his time in Hollywood. Following is part of the reply he cabled:

"I was old enough to know what I was doing when I came to Hollywood. I had command of the cliche about disillusionment and cynicism. My idea was to make the most of it and be only as cynical and disillusioned as I had to be. Like a soldier going into battle convinced that everyone else can be killed but himself, writers go to Hollywood saying 'I'll take the money and run — God is on my side and also my talent.'

"I went because I was sent for, paid for and loved every cliche of it. You can't cry rape when you know what's going to happen. My greatest complaint was that it didn't happen often enough. Some good fairy kept me from it. Hollywood's not a harem. Nobody forces you to stay. In fact, it's hard to stay there and make money. A good half of professional writers earn nothing in given years. Another great percentage get by on handouts for story ideas which are given to other writers or abandoned.

"I jumped into Hollywood enthusiastically and got unexpected benefits and unexpected damages: You know, brain, liver, stomach, morale. I found love, if not fame and fortune. I wanted to be used. I told my agent to find somebody to use me unmercifully. They said, you're too good to be used. I tried hard to prove them wrong and failed utterly but, inexplicably, I wrote many American television entertainments and got on producers' short lists and was invited to previews.

"Agents always exhort you to go in with four great stories in the morning. I was given a useful tip by a fellow writer: to tell the story in three words. I learned. And it worked, but the laugh's on me because I was then required to create a story from those three stupid words. Producers were looking at me expectantly, waiting for pages, wondering why they weren't getting pages on time. Is there no thinking allowed? So, you're a part-time fraud for a start, but you get paid for it.

"You're there to sell your services, as it says in the contract. You have to come up with current, acceptable, salable ideas that sound great in story conferences. In my clever later years I brought a tape recorder to conferences that lasted for hours, then got my wife to type a transcript. I couldn't stand to read it so I'd ask: 'Could you boil this down to a paragraph—or, better yet, one sentence, and then would you read it to me?' ...

"In Britain the audience is not deprived. Television companies take a play and, for the most part, produce it as written. Lewis Freedman (producer of the 'Hollywood Television Theatre') ... is a creative producer who takes the script, enhances it, refines it but doesn't change its intent. He trusts writers, a unique experience in Hollywood.

"Seven years ago I was asked to come to Hollywood. Last June I was asked to leave but not ridden out on the rail. Given a ticket to London by Freedman, I had the good sense to stay where I began my commerical career 10 years earlier. Hollywood is no trap. Somehow I knew when I could stand it no longer I'd make my way out just as I'd made my way there in the first place. Presumably if you're a genuine playwright, you playwrite wherever you are. Any damage done to talent is not Hollywood but oneself. Done by neglect, willful, calculated neglect."

Woman's Body Found Sprawled In Flower Bed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The body of a young woman was found Tuesday sprawled in a bed of wildflowers at the base of a hill in the Mission District. She died from a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Coroner Henry Turkel said the unidentified victim was about 19 or 20, around 135 pounds, and five foot six. He could not determine immediately whether it was murder or suicide.

Neighbors reported hearing two shots in the early morning hours, but told police they had not seen anyone outside.

Art Exhibition Is Scheduled Sunday

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI)—A municipal judge sentenced a 19-year-old youth to sit three hours in a pigpen for calling a policeman a pig.

Robert L. Vitek Jr., a resident of this Cleveland suburb, Tuesday pleaded no contest to a charge of abusing a police officer. He was accused of shouting "Pig" at Sgt. Jay L. McKenna, while the policeman was arresting someone else for speeding April 11.

Judge Manuel M. Rocker fined him $300 and sentenced him to 30 days in the nearby Warrensville workhouse.

Then Rocker suspended the workhouse sentence and most of the fine on the condition that Vitek sit in a pigsty for three hours.

Businesses Burglarized

Marin Furniture and Antiques of 807 D Street was burglarized between noon Saturday and 8:20 a.m. yesterday of antique jewelry, watches and clocks valued at $1,572.

Someone broke into Country Club Bowl at 88 Vivian Way between 12:15 and 6:30 a.m. yesterday and took $619 in cash and a .38 caliber revolver from the Candlestick Room, owned by Daniel Charles Olsen.

Someone took a calculator valued at $373 from Mason McDuffie Co. of 1330 Lincoln Avenue between 3 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 a.m. yesterday according to owner Joseph Consulter Reno.

School Tax Measure Wins

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A tax override measure designed to rescue the Sacramento City Unified School District from a financial bind was easily passed Tuesday by voters.

With all but two of the district's 104 precincts counted, there were 32,354 votes in favor of the proposal and 20,541 against it.

The measure will raise the district tax by 13.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation to offset the loss of $3.2 million due to a budget miscalculation.

Jury Trial Set In Burglaries

Stanley Charles Brown, 20, of San Francisco, has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to charges that he burglarized two Mill Valley residences March 11.

Jury trial was set for the week of June 21.

Brown was arrested after Ruth Wilson of 740 Summit Avenue discovered a man in her home. She called police and the man fled.

Brown was arrested later on Corte Madera Avenue. In his vehicle, police said, was a satchel which had been stolen from another residence earlier that day.

Strep Infections Lead Weekly Count

Strep infections, with 48 cases reported, led all communicable diseases reported last week by Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

Rubella with 38 cases was second, and gonorrhea with 31 cases was third. There were five cases of infectious hepatitis, two of mumps and one of measles, Dr. Albrecht reported.

Teachers In Novato To Give Ideas

Novato Unified School District teachers will have a chance to put down in writing how they feel about the district, its good and bad points.

Teachers also will list things they like most and least about the district on survey sheets, identified only by grade level.

The association felt the results of the survey could result in steps to improve teacher morale.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

NEGOTIATOR — Rejected a request by the classroom teachers organization to designate Supt. James G. Bunker as board representative in negotiations with teachers, to succeed Deputy Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello, present negotiator, who is leaving to be superintendent of the Reed School District.

DISASTER TRAINING — Authorized sending a teacher from each school to attend state Department of Education workshops on disaster preparedness and civil defense.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Janet Coxon, teacher at Rancho School, and Mary Wallen, a counselor, and Ruth Dauernheim, a secretary.

REASSIGNMENT — Approved a request by Ralph O'Neill, principal and teacher at North Marin High School, a continuation school, for reassignment.

MOBILITY — Approved district participation in a program to increase mobility of partially-sighted or blind students.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the administration building to instruct its negotiator on negotiation with teachers in a closed session, with the next regular meeting scheduled at 8 p.m. May 3 at the Novato High School lecture hall.

N.Y. Senate In Historic Return

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—The State Senate, which hasn't met outside Albany since the 18th century, went back Tuesday to Kingston, N.Y., the Hudson River city it was chased out of by the British in 1777.

A one-hour working session was held in the historic Senate House near where New York's first legislative body met 194 years ago. In the short session Tuesday, the 1971 Senate passed 18 non-controversial bills —nearly half the entire number passed by the 1777 Senate during the entire year.

Paris A Latecomer To Pornography

Paris belatedly is catching up with the wave of pornography and open sexuality that has swept late 20th Century society in other nations. But France's "sex revolution" is quiet and small compared to those of other countries.

"Sex shops" began to sell books and erotic objects a year ago but police raids have whittled the number of establishments to 30, and these are carefully regulated by guardians from the Ministry of Interior.

A popular dress shop that tried to give away match books showing the American girl owners unclothed ran into an argument with the law for six months before the matches were approved. Erotic store window mannequins have been forbidden, magazines banned, books censored and both French and foreign erotic films banned or cut by the censors of the Interior Ministry.

The largest "sex shop" in Paris is only a subdued, living room-sized place in a high-rent area behind the Madeleine Church. The shop is miniscule compared to the "sex supermarkets" of Germany, the Netherlands, the Scandinavian countries and Britain.

"There are only two more conservative European countries than France —Spain and the Soviet Union," observed the cashier, Brigitte Tourmetz, who with her husband runs the "sexashop" plus another in Paris and two in Nice and Marseille.

With the "sex revolution" influencing culture, Ministry of Interior censors have banned so many books and films that novelist Romain Gary launched a movement to end censorship in France. In 1957, of 318 submitted films, four were totally rejected, 19 labeled for adults only and 13 cut. In 1969, of 347 films, 10 were rejected, 118 forbidden to minors and 56 cut (of which 30 were foreign films).

Leading Role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Margaret Leighton will play a leading role in "Zee & Co." which stars Elizabeth Taylor and Michael Caine filming in London.

A VIDEO-SOUND DISC

A millimeter thick, plastic record developed by four West Berlin engineers marks a major breakthrough in the race for television's video-sound playback future. The record will store 100 times as much information as a conventional phonograph record and may offer customers the cheapest by far playback system for their TV sets.

Britons To Pay More To Keep Healthy

By DENNIS EISENBERG
Toronto Telegram News Service

LONDON — The Tory Government of Britain is absolutely determined to press ahead with its prime minister's bracing command that citizens in these isles must learn to stand on their own two feet.

Now ever the sick, the lame, and the short-sighted are also to be taught the lesson that Ted Heath means precisely what he says — and that they can no longer rely on the comforting embrace of the welfare state to help them out in their hour of need.

For the so-called "free" National Health Service (NHS) in Britain is to be drastically overhauled by the government. People needing medicine will no longer get their doctor's prescriptions supplied at the present rate — no matter what their true costs — of about 30 cents for each item. Instead, the price will rise to almost double that figure. New scales now being discussed will mean that the cost of spectacles from NHS opticians will soar by more than 200 per cent.

There is also the likelihood that people might be asked to pay part of their keep in hospitals — now entirely free.

Naturally, there has been a strong outcry from Labor Parliament members at these proposed new charges which strike at the whole concept of the all-embracing National Health Service introduced into Britain by Aneurin Bevan in the days of the Attlee Labor government shortly after the last war.

Certainly the National Health Service in the past two decades has resulted in a healthier Britain. For it meant that the poorest in the land could usually get the very best medical treatment completely free.

However, the whole NHS concept has run into serious difficulties in recent years. As medical science advances, so the cost of looking after the health of the nation has soared astronomically. Because of heavy handed bureaucracy resulting from the centralization of the country's medical services and hospitals as well as inefficiency by an ever-swelling administration, the NHS is meeting with increased difficulties.

There are long gueues of people waiting for operations — sometimes stretching years ahead. A very high proportion of the doctors produced by British medical schools annually emigrate to seek better opportunities in North America and Australia. This is because of the comparatively low wages and rigid structure which suppresses the initiative of young, ambitious doctors.

Indeed if it were not for the vast numbers of immigrant doctors and nurses from India, Pakistan and other Commonwealth countries, many British hospitals would simply have to close their doors.

Something like two million Britons now belong to private health schemes where they pay to get prompt treatment when they fall ill. They still have to pay their normal taxes, but they join the private schemes as the National Health Service meets with increasing problems.

And although many people believe that the NHS is "free", it is not free at all — for they have to pay for it through their taxes and compulsory weekly social security contributions.

To try and cope with the runaway costs of the NHS and to prevent it from disintegrating, even the Labor Party had to introduce some charges on prescriptiongs. Now the Tory Government is determined to follow this policy to its logical conclusion.

Instead of raising overall taxes to pay for the ever increasing demands of the NHS, each individual who needs medical treatment will be asked to pay a higher porportion of its true costs.

Thus the subsidy the healthy in society pay to help the sick is to be limited.

Naturally, this idea of heavier charges strikes at the very roots of the concept of the welfare state. And a fearful clash will take place when the increased charges are to introduced. Labor supporters complain bitterly that the Tories are rubbing the noses of the poor into the dirt in order to lighten the tax burdens on the better-offs.

The Tories retort that people must be taught to look after themselves more and not rely so heavily on the welfare state that dampens down enterprise and the natural initiative of man. They also point out that small children, the elderly, and those in real need, will not have to pay the higher charges but will get increased financial assistance when necessary.

Prices Are Too Steep For Women

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The Grant Grill, an exclusive restaurant at the U.S. Grant Hotel, but for men only until 3 p.m., has withstood the Women's Lib movement with little trouble.

On several occasions small groups of Lib members have attempted to enter for lunch. They were admitted.

Most didn't return. Apparently the majority of women having lunch in downtown San Diego don't think too highly of paying $2.20 for a hamburger or 50 cents for a cup of coffee.

Xenon Gas Used For Jet Safety Lights

NEW YORK (UPI)—Xenon, the relatively rare gaseous element whose name means "strange" in Greek, is being used for the not-so-strange job of illuminating commercial aircraft for maximum safety in flight.

"The radiated light of xenon is twice that of previous high-intensity lighting systems," says Honeywell engineer Donald Lisell. He said a recognition light on a jet plane could be seen as far as 75 miles away at night.

Paris A Latecomer To Pornography

Paris belatedly is catching up with the wave of pornography and open sexuality that has swept late 20th Century society in other nations. But France's "sex revolution" is quiet and small compared to those of other countries.

"Sex shops" began to sell books and erotic objects a year ago but police raids have whittled the number of establishments to 30, and these are carefully regulated by guardians from the Ministry of Interior.

A popular dress shop that tried to give away match books showing the American girl owners unclothed ran into an argument with the law for six months before the matches were approved. Erotic store window mannequins have been forbidden, magazines banned, books censored and both French and foreign erotic films banned or cut by the censors of the Interior Ministry.

The largest "sex shop" in Paris is only a subdued, living room-sized place in a high-rent area behind the Madeleine Church. The shop is miniscule compared to the "sex supermarkets" of Germany, the Netherlands, the Scandinavian countries and Britain.

"There are only two more conservative European countries than France —Spain and the Soviet Union," observed the cashier, Brigitte Tourmetz, who with her husband runs the "sexashop" plus another in Paris and two in Nice and Marseille.

With the "sex revolution" influencing culture, Ministry of Interior censors have banned so many books and films that novelist Romain Gary launched a movement to end censorship in France. In 1957, of 318 submitted films, four were totally rejected, 19 labeled for adults only and 13 cut. In 1969, of 347 films, 10 were rejected, 118 forbidden to minors and 56 cut (of which 30 were foreign films).

Britons To Pay More To Keep Healthy

By DENNIS EISENBERG
Toronto Telegram News Service

LONDON — The Tory Government of Britain is absolutely determined to press ahead with its prime minister's bracing command that citizens in these isles must learn to stand on their own two feet.

Now ever the sick, the lame, and the short-sighted are also to be taught the lesson that Ted Heath means precisely what he says — and that they can no longer rely on the comforting embrace of the welfare state to help them out in their hour of need.

For the so-called "free" National Health Service (NHS) in Britain is to be drastically overhauled by the government. People needing medicine will no longer get their doctor's prescriptions supplied at the present rate — no matter what their true costs — of about 30 cents for each item. Instead, the price will rise to almost double that figure. New scales now being discussed will mean that the cost of spectacles from NHS opticians will soar by more than 200 per cent.

There is also the likelihood that people might be asked to pay part of their keep in hospitals — now entirely free.

Naturally, there has been a strong outcry from Labor Parliament members at these proposed new charges which strike at the whole concept of the all-embracing National Health Service introduced into Britain by Aneurin Bevan in the days of the Attlee Labor government shortly after the last war.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Fatter Checks Will Mean Shelling Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Social Security benefits —and the payroll taxes which finance them —will continue to rise in the years ahead.

That's not a prediction. It's a statement of what will happen as a result of legislation already enacted by Congress.

The Social Security checks which 26.2 million beneficiaries will find in their mailboxes June 3 will be exactly 10 per cent fatter than the checks the same people got in May.

Later in June, all recipients will get an extra check, covering the amount due them as a result of applying the 10 per cent boost retroactively to payments they've already received since Jan. 1, 1971.

President Nixon, who signed the legislation authorizing the increase on March 17, had urged Congress to pay for it by increasing the Social Security "wage base" from $7,800 a year to $9,000 a year, also making that retroactive to last Jan. 1. But Congress voted to postpone the tax base increase until the start of 1972.

The tax base is important both in terms of how much payroll tax you and your employer pay and the size of the benefits you'll collect when you retire or are disabled or otherwise become eligible for Social Security checks.

This is how it works:

The government now levies a tax of 10.4 per cent —half of which is paid by the employer and half by the employe —on the first $7,800 of each covered worker's total annual wages. Income beyond the $7,800 limit is exempt from payroll tax —and also is ignored in computing the amount of benefits a worker eventually will receive.

This means the maximum bite on any individual this year will be $405.60.

Next Jan. 1, the wage base will rise to $9,000. The rate will remain at its current level of 5.2 per cent each on employer and employe. Because this rate will be levied against a larger sum, the maximum payroll deduction will rise to $468 in 1972.

This means anyone earning $9,000 or over will pay $63.40 more in Social Security taxes next year.

Under the recently-enacted law, the wage base is scheduled to remain at $9,000 indefinitely. But the tax rate is scheduled to rise to 5.65 per cent in 1973 and to 5.85 per cent in 1976.

Before those raises take effect, however, Congress is likely to adopt President Nixon's recommendation to peg both taxes and benefits to an automatic escalator system. Under this system, benefits would go up when the cost of living rises, and taxes would go up when the average wage rises. The adjustments would be made simultaneously every two years.

Thus retirement benefits would keep pace with inflation, and the elderly would not suffer as much as they do now when sharp price rises take place months before Congress gets around to adjusting Social Security benefits.

The pension payable to any person upon retirement is related to the amount of "covered" wages he received during his working career. And the amount that can be counted as covered wages is the same as the wage base in effect at that time. Thus persons retiring in future years will be able to count up to $9,000 of annual income as covered wages for all years beginning with 1972.

The maximum benefit payable to a worker retiring this year at age 65 will be $213.10 after counting in the newly-authorized 10 per cent increase.

But, thanks to the increase in the wage base, the maximum payable to a worker retiring at age 65 in 1975 will be $228.80, even if Congress authorizes no further increases in benefits.

An increase in the social Security wage base therefore means two things for all whose wages are above the previous base: (1) An immediate boost in payroll taxes and (2) higher pensions upon retirement. You'll pay more —and eventually get more for it.

Great Britain subsidizes Shakespearean plays to the extent of $600,000 a year.

That's not a prediction. It's a statement of what will happen as a result of legislation already enacted by Congress.

The Social Security checks which 26.2 million beneficiaries will find in their mailboxes June 3 will be exactly 10 per cent fatter than the checks the same people got in May.

Later in June, all recipients will get an extra check, covering the amount due them as a result of applying the 10 per cent boost retroactively to payments they've already received since Jan. 1, 1971.

President Nixon, who signed the legislation authorizing the increase on March 17, had urged Congress to pay for it by increasing the Social Security "wage base" from $7,800 a year to $9,000 a year, also making that retroactive to last Jan. 1. But Congress voted to postpone the tax base increase until the start of 1972.

The tax base is important both in terms of how much payroll tax you and your employer pay and the size of the benefits you'll collect when you retire or are disabled or otherwise become eligible for Social Security checks.

This is how it works:

The government now levies a tax of 10.4 per cent —half of which is paid by the employer and half by the employe —on the first $7,800 of each covered worker's total annual wages. Income beyond the $7,800 limit is exempt from payroll tax — and also is ignored in computing the amount of benefits a worker eventually will receive.

This means the maximum bite on any individual this year will be $405.60.

Next Jan. 1, the wage base will rise to $9,000. The rate will remain at its current level of 5.2 per cent each on employer and employe. Because this rate will be levied against a larger sum, the maximum payroll deduction will rise to $468 in 1972.

This means anyone earning $9,000 or over will pay $63.40 more in Social Security taxes next year.

Under the recently-enacted law, the wage base is scheduled to remain at $9,000 indefinitely. But the tax rate is scheduled to rise to 5.65 per cent in 1973 and to 5.85 per cent in 1976.

Before those raises take effect, however, Congress is likely to adopt President Nixon's recommendation to peg both taxes and benefits to an automatic escalator system. Under this system, benefits would go up when the cost of living rises, and taxes would go up when the average wage rises. The adjustments would be made simultaneously every two years.

Thus retirement benefits would keep pace with inflation, and the elderly would not suffer as much as they do now when sharp price rises take place months before Congress gets around to adjusting Social Security benefits.

The pension payable to any person upon retirement is related to the amount of "covered" wages he received during his working career. And the amount that can be counted as covered wages is the same as the wage base in effect at that time. Thus persons retiring in future years will be able to count up to $9,000 of annual income as covered wages for all years beginning with 1972.

The maximum benefit payable to a worker retiring this year at age 65 will be $213.10 after counting in the newly-authorized 10 per cent increase.

But, thanks to the increase in the wage base, the maximum payable to a worker retiring at age 65 in 1975 will be $228.80, even if Congress authorizes no further increases in benefits.

An increase in the social Security wage base therefore means two things for all whose wages are above the previous base: (1) An immediate boost in payroll taxes and (2) higher pensions upon retirement. You'll pay more —and eventually get more for it.

Truck Hijackers Reap A Huge Harvest In New York

By EDWARD V. MC CARTHY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The driver of a big trailer truck wheeled his rig through the almost impossibly congested streets of New York City recently —one of some 250,000 similar trucks that move precious cargo in, out and around the city every day.

He stopped for a traffic light and silently cursed the heavy traffic, paying NO mind to the auto carrying three men, that drew alongside.

While one man remained at the car's steering wheel, the other two men jumped out. One went to the passenger side of the truck cab, the other climbed to the driver's side and poked a revolver in his face.

No words were spoken. They didn't need to be. The truck driver —call him Tom Smith for the purposes of his account —has been around for a while and he knew the classic picture. He quickly got out of the cab and into the back of the car, lying on the floor. The man with the gun climbed in beside him and the car drove off. The third man drove the truck away.

After several hours of aimlessly driving the car around, the gunman took Tom's driver's license and let him out on a quiet residential street, unharmed.

The gunman and his pal then sped to a pre-determined "drop" where they knew the trailer would be parked. Their partner was there. The truck was there —and the air was blue with curses.

What, the other two wanted to know, was the problem? their partner led them around to the truck's rear and gave them a look at the cargo.

It was thousands of brassieres —but specially designed for women who had undergone surgical removal of one breast —a cargo totally without value to hijackers. They had made a classic goof.

This is one of the few hijack stories New York City Police Capt. Thomas P. Kissane can tell with any degree of amusement.

As boss of the detective division's safe, loft and burglary squad —with a squad of men so small the department keeps the exact number secret to avoid giving "aid and comfort to the enemy" —it is his job not only to track down truck hijackers, but round up safecrackers and burglary rings, which abound in the richest city in the nation.

Most jobs, Kissane said in an interview, are not so amateurism but are pulled by professionals associated directly with the organized underworld —and they almost always know beforehand just what truck and what cargo they are looking for. They work on contract.

"Let's say," Capt. Kissane said, "that the head of a certain organization needs a large supply of cigarettes for his various outlets around the city —they are running low.

"A man planted 'inside' —for a fee of about $1,000 —tips them off when a fully loaded rig is going out with a cargo worth $200,000 on the retail market.

"Three professional heisters —for a fee ranging from $5,000 to $10,000, but averaging about $7,000 per job —are contacted and told when the truck is leaving, its route and where it is headed.

"They decide where best to hit it and the hijack is made — just as in the case of the hijacked brassieres.

"The wheelman who takes the truck gets a fee of about $2,500. He drives to a warehouse either owned or leased by the organized crime types.

"There, three to four men — hired at fees from $50 to $100 each —unload the truck. These are guys with records who don't have a regular occupation and are picking up a quick, tax-free buck.

"The wheelman then drives the truck to a point miles from the warehouse and abandons it, where it will finally be spotted by a radio patrol car and the word is passed on to us.

"By then, of course," Kissane sighed, "it is too late. The cargo has long since been disposed of. It is almost all pure profit. There is virtually no overhead."

"How do they get rid of the loot? Easily," Capt. Kissane said. "Through many contacts. Cigarettes and liquor are the biggest hijack items for this reason.

"They go to legitimate dealers —or buyers for dealers. They sell them the cigarettes at about 70 per cent of wholesale cost, liquor at about 60 per cent of true wholesale cost. Many catering houses and hotels which do a big business in professional and wedding dinners get their supplies this way.

"The stolen stuff is mixed in with legitimately purchased stuff. This way, it is virtually untraceable. And, if anybody is checking up, they have honest bills of lading for honestly bought goods.

"They make a hell of a profit, though, on the stuff they buy under the counter. Everybody makes out but the manufacturer —and the public.

"The public pays in the long run, because the manufacturer, in order to make up for his huge losses, marks up his product price to allow for these losses.

"Just about everything you buy would be cheaper if it weren't for the hijackers."

"They used to be big on stereo systems and big color television consoles," Sgt. Connally chimed in, "but they've all but given that up to concentrate on cigarettes, liquor and perfume. It's because they're lazy. The other stuff is too heavy to transport around and load and unload off trucks for the profit involved. They'd rather handle the lighter stuff."

"That's true," agreed Capt. Kissane. "Most of the other stuff stolen, such as TV, radios, stereos, electric shavers —you name it —is taken by the free lancers."

Why, the reporter asked, can't the drivers of the hijacked trucks pick out their assailants from "mug shots" in the extensive police rogue's gallery, since most of the hijackers have criminal records, and since the hijacked truckers get a good look at them?

"Because the drivers don't want to be hurt or put their families in danger," Kissane said.

"That is why, before they free the driver, the hijackers take away his license. It tells them exactly where he lives. They warn him before they let him go that if he talks, they'll get his family.

"A few days after the hijacking, the license arrives at his home in the mail. If he had been building up any courage before that, the ticket in the mail does the job. He goes to jelly. It proves to him they really know where to find him and his family.

"When we question the driver, he says the men were black if they were white. He says they were tall if they were short. He says anything but the right thing. He can go through thousands of pictures, but he'll never —or hardly ever —pick out the real hijackers. He'll either say he didn't get a good look, or he can't remember."

In 1969 there were 174 trucks hijacked on New York City roadways. Last year there were 318. Figures aren't available yet for this year –but the men in the business say they are continuing to skyrocket.

The reason is spelled out in the value of the goods stolen. Last year the total amounted to $17,396,849 in New York City alone —with an almost 100 per cent, tax-free profit to the crooks.

The companies are against having a man "ride shotgun" in the trucks for several reasons, Capt. Kissane said. One is the cost involved. Another is the danger to their own drivers in case of shoot-outs.

The police can't "tail" every cargo-carrying truck —there are too many of them. They do advise the truckers to use certain "truck routes" which are kept secret but are carefully watched not only by detectives but given "special attention" by uniformed men in regular patrol cars.

But the anti-hijack cops admit candidly, that even this doesn't work too well. Trucks are daily being hijacked at high noon at some of the busiest intersections in the busiest city in the United States.

The police do manage to "infiltrate" the mobs through the use of paid informers and this often leads them to warehouses where they recover hundreds of thousands of dollars in stolen merchandise. Last year alone, for instance, they recovered $7.5 million in stolen goods.

The police would like to infiltrate themselves into the mobs, but it is too difficult and dangerous. As it is, they frequent spots where known hijackers, burglars, safecrackers and other criminals do their drinking and plotting.

"Somehow those B——s got by a big dog he has in the yard to protect his family and hang that disgusting thing there as a warning to him," Kissane said.

"It didn't work. He's still with us, still doing his job."

"Somehow those B——s got by a big dog he has in the yard to protect his family and hang that disgusting thing there as a warning to him," Kissane said.

"It didn't work. He's still with us, still doing his job."

EUROPE'S FIRST DOUBLE-DECKER TUNNEL

Traffic is now rolling through Europe's first double-decker auto tunnel, a 3,421-foot passage at Wuppertal in West Germany's Rhine-Ruhr District. The tunnel shortens the drive from Wuppertal to Dusseldorf, hub city of the Ruhr, from 45 to 15 minutes. It was built over a six-year period at a cost of $12.3 million. With special detectors in the tunnel, the speeding motorist can be caught upon completion of his trip.

Synthetics No Worry To Rubber Producers

SINGAPORE (UPI) — It would not be illogical for the layman to think that the producers of natural rubber and the makers of synthetic rubber must be engaged constantly in an epic battle for the world rubber market.

But here in the world's largest natural rubber market the men involved say it's not so. And one reason is that producers of natural rubber simply cannot provide enough of their product to meet the full demand.

Ever since man began riding around on pneumatic tires in the late 19th Century, rubber trees have been unable to yield enough to meet the need. And that is exactly the way the rubber people want the situation to remain because no matter how much they produce, they sell it all.

The planters of Malaysia, far and away the world's largest natural rubber producing country, and the brokers and dealers and shippers of Singapore have their problems, but they are not the problems usually associated with the industry —for instance, the challenge of the synthetics.

"There are some very hard facts that bear me out when I say we are not at all threatened by the synthetics," said one Singapore Malaysia rubber kings, Tan Eng Joo.

Tan, chairman of the influential Rubber Association of Singapore, said, "Every ounce of natural rubber that is produced is bought and consumed. That is not true of synthetic rubber. Synthetic makers are left with considerable surpluses and they are not producing at the top of their potential. We are."

Tan says the reason for the continuing heavy demand is that natural rubber remains the "best of the elastomers." (An elastomer is anything that is elastic). He cited as one for instance that aviation relies almost wholly on natural rubber for airplane tires.

Of more concern to the natural rubber men than synthetics are black stripe, brown bast, cuplump, tree lace and cockchafers —tree ailments and insects. In this regard, too, however, the natural rubber industry has had success in fighting back.

The Rubber Research Institute of Malaya (RRI) is one of the most sophisticated agricultural laboratories in Asia. Headquartered in Kuala Lumpur and running an experimental station 16 miles outside the capital, the RRI spends nearly $5 million annually looking for ways for Malaysia to produce more rubber.

It has had some great successes. RRI research has increased the yield of the average Malaysian rubber tree since World War II no less than six fold. An acre of rubber trees producing 500 pounds of latex a year in 1948 today produces 3,000 pounds.

The government pours money willingly, even desparately, into rubber research because the government is so dependent on rubber. The strength of Malaysia's rubber is that it provides about half the nearly 3 million long tons the world uses annually. The weakness is Malaysia's overdependence on it.

By far Malaysia's chief source of government revenue is its tax on exports, amounting last year to an estimated $96.3 million. Nearly half of that — $42.6 million —represented the tax on rubber.

New Fathers Getting A New Break In The Delivery Room

I-J Special Report

SAN DIEGO — Father, that forgotten figure in the mystique surrounding the arrival of a new baby, has been given his rightful place in the family unit at University Hospital.

Because the Lamaze Method of childbirth is recognized at the hospital, father is welcome in the delivery room to share in the bringing forth of a life mutually begun nine months earlier.

As long as he "scrubs up" and dons a hospital gown, he's then able to enter the nursery with its rows of cribs, and hold his own child — with no cold glass wall intervening.

Then, as a romantic capping to the occasion, it's a candle-light dinner for mother and father — courtesy of University Hospital — the night after the baby's arrival.

Currently underway is a series of prenatal clinics held weekly at the hospital; planned for the near future are monthly teas for mothers-tobe, during which they will have refreshments, see a movie, and be given a tour of the hospital and the maternity floor.

The changes came about after hospital authorities began delving into the "whys" of traditions hundreds of years old . . . and found there really wasn't any need in a modern hospital for most of them. Apparently it's the first hospital in the country with this kind of "open door" policy, but as a spokesman noted: "This is what a University facility is all about . . . as an innovator and pace-setter."

And as one father said, "after having four other children and feeling like a fifth wheel in the early days following their arrival, for the first time I feel natural, and not at all nervous, about our new baby."

SO SAYS EXPERT

Partners Important In Saving Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An urban expert says President Nixon's plans to decentralize government power through revenue-sharing won't do much good unless it makes the nation's cities partners instead of "creatures" of the states.

The proposal for "city equality" in the federal systems comes from John Feild, director of the Center of Policy Analysis of the National League of Cities and U.S. Conference of Mayors. It is sure to encounter objections from some federal and state officials.

At present, Feild contends, "Local governments are not accorded a full-fledged role" in the allocation of $30 billion a year in federal aid funds.

"Unless and until they are, both policy and administrative conflict will continue to bog the system down," Feild says.

He made the case for "city equality" in the Urban Coalition Magazine "City."

He charged that the Nixon administration's expressed concern for the states' role in the intergovernmental system is "more an exercise in high school civics than it is effective governmental action."

"It is a form of self-deception born of the agricultural age," he said. "The simple truth is that local bureauacracies and local resources are larger, more effective and more relevant to the average American citizen today than those of state government."

Field said the states do have a "vital" role in education, natural resource management, criminal justice and regulation of utilities and commerce. But they are not "capable of doing the same kind of administrative job being done by local government to service the needs of their citizens and involve them in deciding on priorities and goals."

The main problem, according to Feild, is that states in the past have engaged in policies that have widened racial and class lines in the distribution of federal and state funds.

In a lengthy review of federal policies affecting cities, Feild said automatic allocation of funds to states based on their population or some other formula has failed, in the case of school aid, to equalize inequalities between cities and suburbs. In fact, he said, it actually has tended to widen the gaps.

He said the same is now proving true in the distribution of crime-fighting funds under the "safe streets" law.

"Although the ostensible intent of federal effort is to improve the urban environment by improved law enforcement in areas with high concentrations of crime, the dollars are not being matched to these areas."

"Unless and until equitable means are devised to reduce the disparities in income, health, quality of education and opportunities for better housing between the residents of central city and suburban jurisdictions, this country is headed for continuing conflict."

The cities, Feild concluded, "have in a very real sense become for better or worse, de facto partners in the federal system along with the states and must be dealt with as such if the intergovernmental system is to work."

"They are no longer simply 'creatures' of the state whose charters can be theoretically revoked or arbitrarily changed. They are as permanent a component in the federal system as the states and are essential to it."

SO SAYS EXPERT

Partners Important In Saving Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An urban expert says President Nixon's plans to decentralize government power through revenue-sharing won't do much good unless it makes the nation's cities partners instead of "creatures" of the states.

The proposal for "city equality" in the federal systems comes from John Feild, director of the Center of Policy Analysis of the National League of Cities and U.S. Conference of Mayors. It is sure to encounter objections from some federal and state officials.

At present, Feild contends, "Local governments are not accorded a full-fledged role" in the allocation of $30 billion a year in federal aid funds.

"Unless and until they are, both policy and administrative conflict will continue to bog the system down," Feild says.

He made the case for "city equality" in the Urban Coalition Magazine "City."

He charged that the Nixon administration's expressed concern for the states' role in the intergovernmental system is "more an exercise in high school civics than it is effective governmental action."

"It is a form of self-deception born of the agricultural age," he said. "The simple truth is that local bureauacracies and local resources are larger, more effective and more relevant to the average American citizen today than those of state government."

Field said the states do have a "vital" role in education, natural resource management, criminal justice and regulation of utilities and commerce. But they are not "capable of doing the same kind of administrative job being done by local government to service the needs of their citizens and involve them in deciding on priorities and goals."

The main problem, according to Feild, is that states in the past have engaged in policies that have widened racial and class lines in the distribution of federal and state funds.

In a lengthy review of federal policies affecting cities, Feild said automatic allocation of funds to states based on their population or some other formula has failed, in the case of school aid, to equalize inequalities between cities and suburbs. In fact, he said, it actually has tended to widen the gaps.

He said the same is now proving true in the distribution of crime-fighting funds under the "safe streets" law.

"Although the ostensible intent of federal effort is to improve the urban environment by improved law enforcement in areas with high concentrations of crime, the dollars are not being matched to these areas."

"Unless and until equitable means are devised to reduce the disparities in income, health, quality of education and opportunities for better housing between the residents of central city and suburban jurisdictions, this country is headed for continuing conflict."

The cities, Feild concluded, "have in a very real sense become for better or worse, de facto partners in the federal system along with the states and must be dealt with as such if the intergovernmental system is to work."

"They are no longer simply 'creatures' of the state whose charters can be theoretically revoked or arbitrarily changed. They are as permanent a component in the federal system as the states and are essential to it."

SLEEK, MODERN

Reaction Mixed To New Theater

A sleek design: Duesseldorf's new city theater. And it should be, say Duesseldorfers. After all, the swinging, reinforced concrete structure cost nearly 10 million — much too much, many local residents feel.

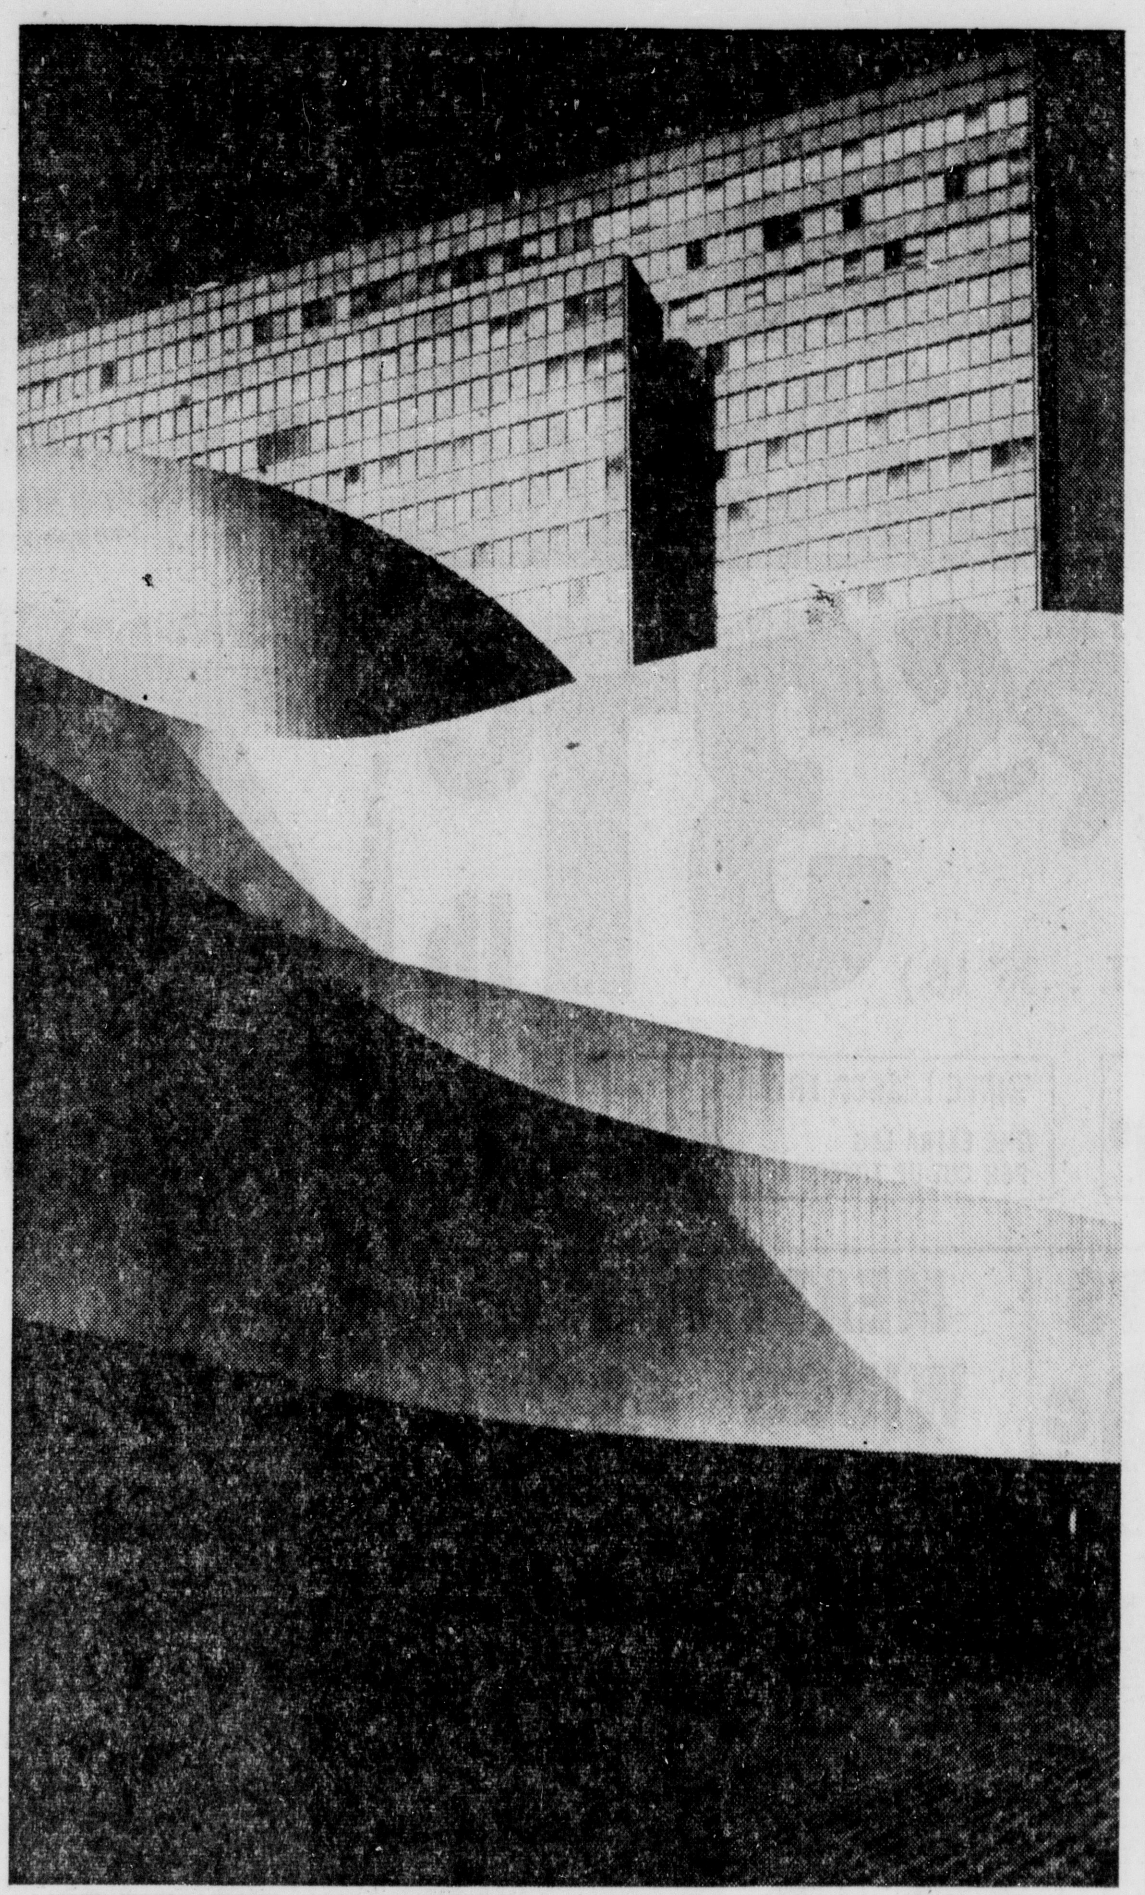
Other citizens find other things wrong with the new theater — for example, that only Duesseldorf prominence was invited to attend the grand opening. Officials decided against public ticket sales for opening night, so they say, in order to prevent any disturbances for occurring.

But the closed performance resulted in disturbances anyway — out front, where police and police dogs went into action to keep demonstrating students "in line". The students were protesting the fact the public at large hadn't been given the opportunity to attend opening night at the theater their taxes - had paid for.

Inside, VIP citizens got a taste of a production not exactly tame itself — Georg Buechner's drama of revolution "Danton's Death", the premiere.

The next few nights proved just as demanding on theatergoers. The roster featured another Buechner drama "The Bachantians", contemporary German dramatist Peter Weiss' "Trotzki in Exile" and Ionesco's "Triumph of Death". The bent on modern theater was too much for many fans, who began to wonder if the theater would ever offer anything less taxing.

Hence, the new theater was starting off in the tenor of an old German saying. Namely, that "the art of doing everything everyone likes is an art that no one has yet mastered."



NEW THEATER — Duesseldorf's new city theater — with sleek lines and connected to a skyscraper — has raised varied opinions from too costly to just right. It cost $10 million to construct.

Flying Whale Chunk Flattens Car Roof

FLORENCE, Ore. (UPI)— When a dead 42-foot California gray whale washed ashore here, the Oregon Highway Division concluded the best way to get rid of it was to blast it into little pieces, so sea gulls and other scavangers could devour it.

In the blast of 20 cases of dynamite, a flying chunk of whale smashed flat the roof of a car parked a quarter-mile away. Said the owner, Walter F. Umenhofer, "My insurance company is never going to believe this."

Add Income

MANILA (UPI)—Eighty-one per cent of the 780 movie houses in the Philippines supplement their income by exhibiting advertising slides on an assortment of products and causes, and by operating refreshment concessions.

Litterbug Age

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sex and age have a strong bearing on whether a person is a litterbug, says Keep America Beautiful, Inc. The national anti-litter groip says men litter twice as much as women and that people between 20 and 35 litter twire as much as those between 35 and 50.

Many Newsman Visit Moonport

"One thing that always amazes our overseas visitors is the freedom they have to examine our equipment and facilities at close range," said U. Wright Kerns, coordinator of media tours at the Kennedy Space Center.

There are 529 campgrounds operating in the National Parks, according to the Interior Department.

Hot Food Can Help To Prevent Brain Damage

I-J Special Report

IRVINE — A new electronic system to detect respiration problems in premature infants and to automatically stimulate the infant's breathing has been developed at the University of California at Irvine.

According to Dr. Margaret J. Ingman, lecturer in pediatrics, "Most premature infants have periods of rapid breathing alternating with brief periods of non-breathing. This 'periodic breathing' is considered to be a harmless phenomenon provided the infant resumes breathing on his own and does not develop cyanosis (turning blue due to lack of oxygen).

"However, if the period of non-breathing is accompanied by cyanosis or slowing of the infant's heart rate, he usually does not resume respiration automatically. If he is not stimulated to resume respiration, he may die or suffer brain damage due to lack of oxygen."

The new system developed here is activated by a heart rate monitor which responds automatically whenever the infant's heart rate falls below 90 beats per minute. (Normal heart rate is 110 to 160 beats per minute.)

In addition to sounding an audible alarm, the system immediately delivers a mild electric stimulant three times per second to the infant's foot, Dr. Ingman explained.

"The intensity of this electric prompter is calculated to cause a brisk withdrawal reaction and the infant will usually resume breathing.

"We monitored eight premature infants at the Orange County Medical Center for a period of 266 hours. During that length of time, 558 instances of bradycardia (slowing heart rate) were detected. Our new apparatus stimulated automatic resumption of breathing in 84 percent of the instances. Manual stimulation was required in 11 percent of the instances, and in four percent of the cases, nurses alerted by the alarm supplied artificial ventilation with bag and mask."

Servicemen Face 'Operation Snip'

SINGAPORE (UPI)—The Singapore armed forces frown on longhairs. They have launched "Operation Snip" to force servicemen to trim long and unkempt hair.

About 160 youths were detained by military police for "unbecoming appearance and behavior" in public buses.

FINAL TRIBUTE TO A GIANT

Gay Hodges (seated at left), widow of sportcaster Russ Hodges, joins sports personalities, family members and other mourners at a graveside service for her husband, Russell Patrick Hodges, the voice of the New York and San Francisco Giants for 22 years. About 325 persons, including club officials, coaches and friends, were on hand today at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael after a funeral at the Episcopal Church of Our Savior in Mill Valley. Rev. Murray D. Hammond (right), church rector, conducted the graveside service for Hodges, 60, who died Monday.

Incumbents Get San Rafael Vote

Only One Charter Change

San Rafael voters held fast to the status quo yesterday. They reelected Mayor C. Paul Bettini by a runaway margin, also reelected incumbent councilmen John A. Miskimen and Fred Jensen, and turned down three of four charter amendments on the ballot.

Only the measure to consider persons living in annexed areas to be the same as city voters in terms of residency was passed, 5,074 to 1,741.

The only incumbent seeking reelection to the San Rafael Board of Education led the pack of nine candidates for the three open seats. Trustee Herman L. Childress received 5,021 votes. Newcomers elected to the board were Marilyn Bolger with 3,906 and Francis X. Kelly with 3,401 votes.

Unsuccessful board of education candidates were Charles B. Peek, 3,361; Richard E. West, 3,037; Donald R. Wellington, 2,254; John L. Semorile, 2,235; Philip E. Maley, 1,230; Jim Lamantia, 1,187.

Unopposed incumbent city officials elected were Clerk Marion A. Grady, 5,867; Treasurer Angela J. Soldavini, 5,876, and City Attorney Fred C. Robbins Jr., 5,651.

Turnout at the polls was 47.7 per cent, or 7,544 of the city's 15,812 registered voters, according to the county elections office which tallied the results last night. Turnout at the last city election in 1969 was 50 per cent.

Raznikov, on the ballot for the first time, garnered more votes than Bettini's previous competition, ex-Councilman Charles W. Aby. Aby received 1,150 votes while Bettini polled 5,603 votes in the 1969 city elections.

Bettini's election to a fourth term as mayor will give him his first four-year stint. Each of the previous terms was for two years. Voters in 1969 amended the city charter to make the mayoralty a four-year post, beginning this year.

In the council race, one-term veteran Miskimen topped the six-candidate field with 3,527 votes, while Jensen received 3,515. A close runner-up was longtime planning commission member Thomas R. O'Toole who received 3,341. Candidate George S. Burton drew 1,918 votes and Don J. Urquhart 593

All 27 School Member Veterans Are Reelected

Marin County voters returned every one of the 27 incumbents seeking reelection to their school district seats in yesterday's election to fill 50 seats on 18 boards.

Elections also were held for San Rafael city offices and on formation of two districts in unincorporated areas of Marin County. (See stories elsewhere on page 1.)

The only school district office-holder ousted was Reed School District board chairman Gordon C. Wright. He was the target of a successful recall campaign which saw Wright replaced by Dr. John J. Osborn.

HAROLD A. DRADY
Winner by one vote

Easily the closest race in Marin County was the Nicasio School District election to choose a trustee to fill the unexpired two-year term created by the resignation of trustee John L. Shepherd. The nod went to California Highway Patrol Officer Harold A. Drady, by a one-vote margin. He polled 35 votes to the 34 received by Duane T. Irving. Irving said he would not seek a recount.

Despite the recall issue, only 55.2 per cent of the eligible 5,907 voters in the Reed District visited the polls. The highest percentage turnout in Marin County was achieved by Bolinas-Stinson School District voters, with 75.8 per cent of the 904 registered voters balloting.

A nonschool election, involving proposed formation of a community services district for Sleepy Hollow, attracted 72.5 per cent of the 1,129 eligible voters, according to the records of the county elections department.

Countywide, slightly less than 35 per cent of the 85,108 eligible voters cast ballots on the various school district, city and special elections.

Heavy fields of candidates for school board seats in Dixie, Novato and the Marin Junior College District failed to draw even 45 per cent of the registered voters in any case.

Judge In Angela Case Not 'Bias'

By MARY LEYDECKER

An outside judge today ruled that "no showing had been made'' that Judge Alan A. Lindsay "entertains prejudice or bias" against Angela Y. Davis or Ruchell Magee.

Justice Winslow Christian made his decision not to disqualify Lindsay after a two-hour hearing today at the Hall of Justice in a half-empty courtroom.

Attorneys for Miss Davis refused to give oral arguments on their motion to disqualify Judge Lindsay, whom they had accused of being a racist, saying that they had not been given enough time to prepare.

Margaret Burnham, one of Miss Davis's lawyers, objected that only 24-hour notice had been given of the hearing, and claimed that this indicated that Justice Christian also had "racist and biased attitudes."

She had asked that the hearing be continued for two days.

Justice Christian, a District Court of Appeal judge, had been assigned to hear the disqualification motion after attorneys for the 27-year-old black

Sonoma Voters End ABAG Pact

Sonoma County voters yesterday elected to withdraw from the Association of Bay Area Governments and to lift the moratorium on mobile home parks.

In the county-wide proposition to leave ABAG for a new alliance of North Bay counties, the vote in favor was 29,512 with 10,576 against.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors called for the special withdrawal vote, with some saying they feared ABAG would become a powerful regional government. The new alliance, which has not yet been approved by the state Legislature, would include Sonoma, Napa, Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties.

The proposition to continue the moratorium on mobile home parks failed with 26,280 against and 14,601 in favor in the unofficial tabulation.

Supervisors had supported the moratorium, saying it was necessary until tax inequities could be solved. Opposition groups maintained that mobile homes are an answer to low cost housing and do, indeed, pay their way in taxes.

AF Officers To March In Peace Event

By FRANK FARRARA

The peace movement has spread into the ranks at Hamilton Air Force Base where anti-war sentiment has broken out into the open.

Two pilots, backing immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, announced yesterday that a chapter of the Concerned Officers Movement has been started at the base.

"We're not out to convert people, to change any minds, but to organize and mobilize the very large sector of anti-war opinion in the military . . . and provide a vehicle for that opinion," said Lt. Mark Renshaw, 26, one of the founders.

The group started about three weeks ago, has about 12 to 15 members and its immediate goal is to get support for the peace march in San Francisco Saturday, Renshaw said.

They say they are not pacifists, but are opposed to the war in Vietnam and elsewhere in Indochina.

"Essentially we all believe there is no justification in killing more Cambodians, Laotians and Vietnamese to save face and that seems to be the policy we have been following," Renshaw said.

The war in Southeast Asia "is the most socially destructive thing that has happened to us in decades; brutalizing the population, radicalizing the moderates and developing a schism in this country," he asserted.

Capt. Robert Lawson, co-founder, emphasized the move-

Controversial Park Plan Wins Adoption

By PAT ANGLE

A controversial long range, three-stage plan to turn the center of Sausalito's downtown into a series of parks, malls and walkways was adopted last night by the Sausalito City Council. (Another Sausalito council story, page 8)

The council voted 3-2 to approve William Spangle's park plaza plan, but said development should be undertaken only when the council is convinced it is financially feasible. Councilmen Robin Sweeny and Earl F. Dunphy refused to endorse the proposal and most of the overflow crowd of about 80 persons who attended the hearing seemed to agree with the dissenting council members.

Mrs. Sweeny questioned whether Sausalito could support what she said would amount to a "regional park" since persons from all over would use it. She could not approve the plan, she said, without more information on how it could be financed and its effects on the city.

The first stage of the plan calls for conversion of El Portal into a partial pedestrian mall, the closure of Park Street and expansion of Vina Del Mar Park into a parking lot. About 47 parking spaces would be removed in the first stage of development.

Stages two and three, sched-

Wright Ousted In Reed Recall Ballot

In Wright's place, the district's voters elected Dr. John J. Osborn, a heart specialist who had never before ventured into political combat.

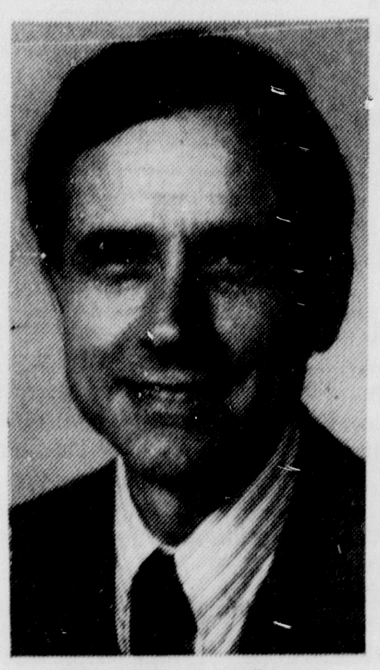
Newcomer Margaret E. Jones with 1,886 votes and incumbent Leo Souza with 1,794 votes topped the field of five candidates for the two regular openings on the board. Losers were Mark Noble, 1,017; Clayton D. Calender, 658; Marie L. McLeod, 575.

Despite the recall controversy and the five-way race for two other seats open on the district board, only 55.2 per cent of the registered voters cast ballots.

Wright was recalled by a vote of 1,967 to 1,235. Osborn received 2,025 votes as the only candidate to replace the ousted chairman.

Although Wright said, "I stand ready as always to support this community in whichever way I can be most effective," he added that he doubted he would run again for the school board.

Osborne today said, "This election was won because a great many cared deeply about the schools . . . It is not a matter of one group seizing control from another. It is a chance for the school board to operate as a body which is truly representative of all the diverse elements in the community.



DR. JOHN J. OSBORN
Takes Wright's seat

"Mr. Wright worked hard for the Reed School system as he saw its problems. He and the people he represents, like other segments of opinion, must continue to be heard in the formation of (district) policy."

The first tally made by the computer in the Marin County Civic Center showed the absentee vote running 93 to 46 in favor of recall, and Wright's fate was never in doubt from that point.

Special Fire District Is Defeated

A proposal that there be a special fire district to serve unincorporated areas of Marin County was defeated in yesterday's election. It took only about 17 per cent of the registered voters to kill it.

Only 2,999 of the 9,223 rural area voters balloted on Measure E, which would have set up a special district and relieved city taxpayers of part of the county tax load that now finances the Marin County Fire Department.

The vote against formation to serve areas not already in a fire district was 1,551 to 1,163, according to the computer tally at the elections center in the Marin Civic Center.

The decision came despite an announcement in March that fire insurance firms no longer would give preferential treatment on homeowners outside of but near existing fire districts.

Sleepy Hollow Votes Down Community Services District

Sleepy Hollow voters declared nearly three-to-one yesterday that they wanted their homeowners' association to continue wrestling with neighborhood problems rather than form a new taxing agency — a community services district.

Of the proposed district's 1,129 voters, 578 voted against formation and 202 for it. The turnout was 72.5 per cent.

A parallel measure to establish a tax rate of $1.15 per $100 assessed valuation to finance the proposed district and take over operation of the present Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District, which has a tax rate of $1.09, resulted in a 547 to 196 vote against the increase.

In casting ballots for the five men who would have become directors of the community services district had it been formed, the voters showed consistency. The five top vote getters were all leaders of the opposition to district formation.

The contenders in order of running for the directorships that never materialized were J. G. Ingels, 471; Alfred Nannizzi, 422; Richard B. Kreuzer, 373; Edward Simpkins, 369; Ralph B. Rogers, 307; Robert L. Flanders, 293; Frank J. Berto, 255; Medora-Vaux Toneff, 243; Gerald D. Patten, 212; Robert N. Foehr, 205; George W. Pasha III, 155.

Alfred A. Nannizi, credited with spearheading neighborhood action against a new district, said last night, "I feel the homeowners' association has done a good job of getting the things we needed in the past — and can do better in the future — without the aid of a legal taxing body."

J. G. Ingels, also an opponent of the district idea and leading vote-getter of the 11 on the ballot, whooped, "Oh, brother! That's fine," when informed of the results. "I'm sure the efforts of both sides will now be channeled through the homeowners' association," he added.

Merritt A. Robinson, president of the homeowners' association, was not on the ballot. A leading proponent of forming the special district, he took the defeat philosophically. "We'll have to work all the harder to achieve what we need. It was a hard battle . . . but it made it much clearer where we should go," he said.

School Plan Beaten

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate defeated, 51 to 34, today a proposal to require integration of the public schools in big city areas of the north on the same basis as the south.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Pope's Attacker

MANILA (UPI) — Bolivian painter Benjamin Mendoza y Amor was found guilty today of the attempted assassination of Pope Paul VI —the first case of its kind in modern history.

Mendoza, 34, showed no emotion as he stood at attention listening to the decision of Filipino Judge Pedro Bautista sentencing him to from two years, four months and one day to four years and two months in prison.

The hawk-nosed painter, his once crewcut hair now long and sporting a wispy goatee, was found guilty of attacking Pope Paul with a 13-inch dagger Nov. 27 when the pontiff arrived in Manila on a visit. The Pope was scratched by the dagger.

Egypt Alarmed

By United Press International

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today Egypt has requested an "official and urgent" clarification from the United States on reports it is planning to supply Israel with more Phantom jets.

The newspaper said "any boost of Israel's military capability would only lead to an escalation of the scale of the inevitable battle." There have been reports the United States was planning to provide Israel 12 Phantom fighter-bombers in addition to the 50 already promised.

In Jerusalem, military officials said a mine explosion under an army command car on a dirt track in Israeli territory near the pre-war border line with Jordan killed three officers and wounded four soldiers. The incident 40 miles southwest of Jerusalem caused the heaviest casualties in such an incident since the cease-fire started Aug. 8.

'Fragging' Report

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon says "incidents" involving explosives killed 68 Americans in Vietnam during 1969-70 and that most of them probably involved "fragging" in which GIs with grudges attacked their leaders.

Defense Department spokesmen issued the statistic Tuesday in response to a Senate speech by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield in which Mansfield deplored the death of a young army lieutenant from his home state of Montana.

There were 209 such "fragging" incidents in Vietnam last year, Mansfield said. His face pinched and his voice drawn, the majority leader said it was "a grim statistic of this war, and I shall not lose sight of it."

The Pentagon said 209 "incidents" involving explosives killed 34 men in Vietnam in 1970. It said another 37 died in 96 incidents in 1969. Most of the incidents probably were cases of fragging, but a few could have been accidental explosions, a spokesman said.

Queen's Birthday

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth turned 45 today, quietly observing the occasion with her family amidst preparations for a nine-day Canadian visit scheduled to start may 3.

The nation officially marks the queen's birthday in June with traditional pomp and ceremony. The date was chosen because the weather is better for outdoor ceremonies than in April.

One public observance today was a 41-gun royal salute fired by the Royal Horse Artillery.

CBS Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A House subcommittee has given the Columbia Broadcasting System 10 days to comply with a subpoena to give it the materials used to produce the controversial documentary, "The Selling of the Pentagon."

CBS asked for more time to consider the request Tuesday at a meeting between lawyers for the network and the special subcommittee on investigations of the House Commerce Committee, chaired by Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va.

The network told the subcommittee the demands for film, recordings, outtakes (unused film), transcripts, identifications of individuals in the film and other material raised "fundamental constitutional issues as to whether journalistic news judgments can be subjected to legislative surveillance."

Meanwhile, representatives of the National Broadcasting Co. appearing at the closed session of the subcommittee complied with a separate subpoena and provided a film copy and transcripts of another documentary, "Say Goodbye," a program dealing with endangered wildlife, produced by Wolper Productions.

Union Merger

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—I. W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers Union (USW), triumphantly announced Tuesday the union's executive board had approved a merger with District 50, Allied and Technical workers.

"We're still a young union and we're contemplating other mergers" said Abel.

The 1.2 million member USW, by adding District 50's 200,000 members, would replace the 1.3 million member United Auto Workers as the nation's second largest union. The Teamsters Union has 2 million members.

The merger must be approved by the executive committee of District 50 in Washington this weekend and by delegates at the union's convention in August.

Pakistan Denial

NEW DELHI (UPI)- Pakistan Radio denied today Indian press reports that East Pakistani rebel forces had reoccupied their provisional capital of Chuadanga and seized the airfield at the northeastern town of Sylhet.

The broadcast said the reports were "wishful thinking of Indian interventionists" and that Pakistan International Airways was still operating regular flights out of Sylhet.

The Pakistan broadcast also said Pakistan troops had firmly secured borders from infiltration from neighboring India.

Medicare Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Ways and Means Committee has approved a $1.5 billion package of improved Social Security benefits but cut back on free hospitalization for Medicare patients from 59 to 29 days.

The panel also rejected a Nixon administration proposal to have the federal government pay the full monthly premiums that 20 million people over 65 now pay for doctors' insurance. That premium, now $5.30, will go to $5.60.

The panel did limit future increases in the monthly premium to no more than percentage increases in Social Security benefits. Thus, a 10 per cent benefits boost would mean no more than a 56-cent increase in the monthly premium.

The committee Tuesday took action that would improve monthly cash benefits for widows, provide Medicare coverage to the seriously disabled under 65, raise the outside earnings ceiling for Social Security retirees, and add a cost-of-living escalator for future benefit increases.

Field Troops Probe A Shau Valley Under Air Protection

SAIGON (UPI) — Battalion-sized American reconnaissance teams and smaller South Vietnamese units probed the A Shau Valley beneath an umbrella of fighter-bombers today in preparation for a forthcoming Allied campaign in the Laotian border area.

Heavy North Vietnamese resistance was reported for the first time since the Allied scouting missions began in the valley more than a week ago.

As the Allied units carried out extensive reconnaissance missions preparatory to the drive in the 35-mile-long valley, Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, deputy commander of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, said the A Shau was "not an exclusive target."

"In this operation, we will go anywhere from the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) on down to the A Shau," he said. The area Giai mentioned takes in a 75-mile strip along the Laotian border.

Giai said the idea of the operation was to force elements of three North Vietnamese divisions and four independent regiments out of South Vietnam's northern provinces, Quang Tri and Thua Thien.

"The operation is designed to clear out everything from the DMZ to Hai Van Pass," Giai said. Hai Van is a coastal mountain pass eight miles north of Da Nang.

An Allied air observer reported seeing a battalion-sized U.S. unit (at least 800 man) in the valley, a Communist stronghold for more than 20 years. Military sources said more than one battalion-sized American unit was operating in the "reconnaissance in force" mission in the valley.

Giai said South Vietnamese forces in the valley were limited to company-size units and announced from his La Vang headquarters near Quang Tri that South Vietnamese Marines have reopened the old U.S. Marine fire support base Holcomb, 25 miles north of the A Shau Valley.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman in Saigon said there were "several regiments" of ARVN troops involved in preparation for the A Shau campaign which Giai said was "still in a reconnaissance stage."

Youth Confab Refuses To Ask Nixon To Quit

ESTES PARK, Colo. (UPI)—The White House Conference on Youth, beset by controversy from the start and by dissension among its delegates, rejected a proposal calling for President Nixon's resignation but passed one supporting the People's Peace Treaty.

The 1,500 youths and adults attending the conference faced its busiest session today with discussion scheduled on recommendations from 10 task forces which studied issues ranging from poverty and employment to the draft and foreign affairs.

Delegates, wearing Army parkas which were rushed in after a surprise spring storm dumped a foot of snow on the mountain area, learned Tuesday that a majority of them had voted against a proposal demanding the resignations of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Voting on that issue and 18 others was held Monday, but the results were not released until Tuesday. Fewer than half the conference participants took part in the voting.

While refusing to call for Nixon's resignation, the delegates who voted did reject a proposal that in effect would have supported the President's Vietnamization program. The youth delegates also supported the People's Peace Treaty, recently circulated by American and North and South Vietnamese students.

Delegates also voted in favor of a proposal urging the United States to establish a better relationship with Red China.

The conference, controversial since Nixon moved the site from Washington to Colorado, became more so during Tuesday sessions. Opponents earlier argued Nixon was shifting the conference out of Washington because of possible criticism that might be aimed his way during the meeting.

One delegate, Kendall Cooper, 24, a resident nurse from Kansas City, Kan., said Tuesday the conference failed to represent either moderate or conservative viewpoints.

"The all-American youth has not been represented," she said. Miss Cooper, who said she currently was working in the Panama Canal Zone, described herself as "neither a radical nor a reactionary."

Another delegate, Ann Schuster, 17, a high school coed from Lincoln, Neb., said she felt not much would come out of the conference because "we don't have the right people here."

Miss Schuster, repeating what some other delegates have said, indicated she thought more professionals in such fields as health, welfare and economics should be on hand.

Another delegate, Sterling Tucker, a black member of the Washington, D.C., city council, said his poverty task force felt "youth is an important natural resource, but our task force feels young people are not treated that way."

Elmer Winter, president of Manpower, Inc., a temporary employment agency with 625 offices throughout the nation, told members of the economy and employment task force that students "desperately need summer employment."

Winter, himself a delegate to the conference, said it was time to begin preparing for such employment.

Lisa Parker, 16, a student from Anchorage, Alaska, and a delegate to the poverty task force, said a health care division of her group had drawn up 11 recommendations based on the belief that "health care is a basic right—not something which should be subject to an individual's ability to pay."

Cambodian Crisis: New Cabinet Asked

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian chief of state Cheng Heng accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Lon Nol today but immediately asked him to form a new government, Radio Cambodia announced.

The brief broadcast also said the national assembly met this morning and unanimously approved the promotion of Lon Nol to the rank of marshal of the Cambodian armies and gave him the title of national hero.

"Considering the grave situation in which our country presently finds itself and in compliance with the wide spectrum of public opinion, the chief of state after consulting the chairman of the National Assembly and the council of the republic, decided today to request General Lon Nol to form a new cabinet according to the demands of the situation," the broadcast said.

The developments in the Cambodian political situation appeared to confirm statements made Tuesday by Lon Nol's brother, Col. Lon Non, who said the resignation was little more than a formality.

Lon Nol, who with Cheng Heng led the bloodless coup that overthrew neutralist Prince Norodom Sihanouk March 18, 1970, suffered a stroke Feb. 8. He spent some time in an American military hospital in Hawaii, but has not fully recovered.

In the meantime, Deputy Premier Sisowath Sirik Matak has run the government.

The prime minister's brother said Tuesday the resignations were required under the constitution because Lon Nol had decided to fire a majority of his cabinet. Lon Non gave corruption in the government as the major reason for Lon Nol's decision.

The country also has been beset with a number of other problems, including inflation. Since Sihanouk was overthrown, fighting has been going on and almost all resources have been used in battling the Communists.

Sewer Bond Issue Sold To B Of A

The San Rafael City Council, meeting in special session late yesterday, authorized the sale of $1,105,000 in sewer bonds to the Bank of America.

The bonds will finance sewer construction in the lower areas of the city where manholes spew sewage during storms.

Bank of America was the lowest of seven bidders, offering to purchase the bonds at 4.4746 per cent average annual interest. Other bidders and the per centages they bid were: United California Bank, 4.5159; Bank of California, 4.5294; Crocker Citizens Bank, 4.5561; Bateman, Eichler, Hill and Richards, 4.6014; Wells Fargo, 4.6847; and Security Pacific National, 4.6909.

VOTE

while Benjamin F. Walton trailed with 433.

"I'm very pleased with the results," Bettini said. "I never speculate on margins or total votes, but I felt that I would win."

He said Raznikov put up a spirited campaign but was defeated because "the people thought he didn't have the experience to be mayor. You can't expect to start right up at the top."

Raznikov was not available for comment, but his mother, Mrs. I. Raznikov of 12 Chateau Place, said that despite the outcome, she was delighted that he had made the race.

Bettini started with eight years on the San Rafael Board of Education and was chairman of the board from 1959-61, before running for mayor.

He defeated Aby in 1965 and 1969 and ran unopposed in 1967.

On the charter amendment measures, the city voters refused to give up their right of electing the city attorney, vetoing a proposal to make the post appointive by a vote of 4,002 to 3,002. A measure to do away with the requirement of three years' residency to hold city office lost by a vote of 3,976 to 3,062. Another proposal to kill the charter limitation of $1,000 a year to promote civic celebrations lost $3,780 to 3,038.

Youth Suffers Cuts In Wreck

A 19-year-old Petaluma youth suffered multiple cuts yesterday in a three-car collision on southbound Highway 101 near the Marin-Sonoma county line, according to the California Highway Patrol.

David M. Peters, of 1 El Rose Drive, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma after the 10:35 a.m. accident.

Officers said his car clipped the rear of an auto driven by La Rita C. Harrington, 38, of 4485 D Street, Petaluma and then smashed into a crane-trailer rig driven by Stephen C. Jones, 38, of Lincoln Village, San Joaquin County.

20 Days' Jail On Pot Violation

Chester Nicholas Krawczuk, 21, of no known address, was sentenced to 20 days in Marin County Jail yesterday for his conviction of possessing marijuana.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court gave Krawczuk credit for time already spent in jail.

Krawczuk pleaded guilty to the charge last month.

He was arrested in January after two Sausalito policemen, dressed in civilian clothes, picked him up while he was hitchhiking on Bridgeway. Police said Krawczuk told the officers he had some marijuana to share. A search revealed the pot in a plastic bag in his pocket.

Pot Case To Superior Court

Phillip David Harrison, 20, of Sleepy Hollow, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of possessing marijuana.

He is to be arraigned in superior court May 10.

Harrison was arrested March 27 when drug agents said they saw him with a plastic bag of suspected pot in Sausalito.

uled for completion after the year 2000, would turn the remainder of the parking lot into an open space park and develop a cove and pedestrian walkway along the shoreline.

Councilman Dunphy did not favor removing any parking in the city's largest lot "until there are no resident-serving commercial enterprises from city hall to Princess Street." He also thought any funds available for park purposes should be spent to develop the city's newly-acquired waterfront property near Litho Street, proposed site of a new city hall and library.

The presidents of the Sausalito Citizens Council, Chamber of Commerce and the Sausalito Businessmen's Association opposed the plan.

Opposition to the proposal was based generally on four issues; 1) The city does not know the cost of developing and maintaing the park area. 2) No alternate source of revenue has been found to replace the $100,000 the city would lose annually if the parking lot were closed; 3) Elimination of downtown parking would create hardships for downtown businesses and the residents who patronize them and 4) The residents who would pay for the development would be crowded out of the park area by visitors.

Councilman Wyman Hicks and Stephen A. Fraser and Mayor Alexander R. Imlay joined about two dozen persons in the audience and favored the park development.

"This is a wonderful direction in which to go," said Hicks who noted he has been working for public access to the waterfront for 25 years. "The waterfront should be made available to the people in larger and larger pieces," he continued, "not be given away to people who want to come here to buy things."

Fraser said he felt the development should be accomplished "as soon as possible" and said he would work for implementation of the first stage this year. But he added he believes the city should always maintain some resident space in the parking lot.

He agreed with businessmen that shopping centers do need cars to survive. Unless there is "another means of access to them" and pointed to the Golden Gate Bridge District's ferry which is to be located permanently at the foot of El Portal. "How many shopping centers have a ferry boat?" he asked.

Imlay said he was not frightened by the plan which he called "a logical extension of the city's general plan," but said he was not ready to put it in the budget "until I am sure it won't jeopardize our businessmen downtown."

One man in the audience drew the most enthusiastic applause of the evening when he suggested the park plaza plan be submitted to the voters before being adopted as city policy.

Restaurant Bid Wins Approval

Preliminary plans for enlarging Pat and Joe's Restaurant in Mill Valley won approval last night from the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee.

Zoning Administrator Howard R. McGill said the 75-seat restaurant at 71 Throckmorton Avenue will be remodeled and a second floor added to increase seating to 135.

The committee told the restaurant's owners to return with a plan for landscaping and exterior lighting before completing the job. The restaurant last week won a variance from off-street parking requirements from the city planning commission.

Bicyclist Has Leg Fractured

The California Highway Patrol said the youth rode his bicycle from a driveway at 406 Marin Drive into the path of a car driven by David L. Keith, 42, of 815 Spring Drive, Tamalpais Valley.

Discussion Set On Proposed Tax Plan

The proposed state-wide property tax for education and its effect upon the Marin Junior College District will be discussed tonight by the district board.

Meeting at 7 p.m. at the College of Marin testing office, the board also will continue discussion of its fiscal 1971-72 budget.

Youth Panel Will Ask Revisions

Marin County Youth Commission decided last night that a reorganization of the commission will be one of the topics discussed at a joint meeting with the Marin County Board of Supervisors next Tuesday at 9 a.m.

The youth commissioners want more youth representation on the commission and also want to change the method of appointment. At present, seven commissioners are youth and four are adults.

The Marin County Youth Commission also:

SELF-HELP — Endorsed the Bay Area Youth Self Help Incentive program, outlined by James Hasik of Novato, aimed at helping youth who are in trouble with the law.

YOUTH COLUMN — Issued a plea for more editorials and articles to be used in the youth column that is published weekly in the Independent-Journal.

RETREAT — Decided to hold a one-day retreat where youth commissioners can discuss goals and priorities for the coming fiscal year. The date and place of the retreat will be set later.

NEXT MEETING — Announced that the next regular meeting will be at 8 p.m. May 4 at the Civic Center.

Communist had challenged Judge Lindsay.

Lindsay came into the case April 1, after an earlier judge withdrew when challenged by San Quentin convict Magee.

He had been prepared to hear motions by Miss Davis's lawyers, asking that she be freed on bail and that charges against her be dismissed.

Miss Davis and Magee are charged with murder, conspiracy and kidnapping, stemming from the August shoot-out at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three other persons were killed.

Christian refused repeated requests today from Magee's court-appointed attorneys to discuss whether they should continue to represent him.

The 31-year-old convict has insisted he should act as his own lawyer.

Finally, one of the lawyers, Robert Y. Bell, read a statement prepared by Magee which accused both Lindsay and Christian of being prejudiced against him.

Christian readily agreed that he had participated in an earlier phase of the case and had ruled then that Magee was not qualified to represent himself.

He was partly swayed in that decision, he said, by the fact that Magee wanted to use his one peremptory challenge against a judge in the early stages of the case. The justice called this a "tactical error" which would not be made by an attorney.

Magee, in the statement read by Bell, said that Christian had relied on "racist IQ tests" in making the decision that the convict needed an attorney.

The justice said that Magee's challenge of Lindsay did not meet legal requirements for a challenge for cause like the one made by Miss Davis. He then gave the attorneys a chance to confer with Magee to see if the convict wanted to use his peremptory challenge at this time.

After a recess, Bell said he wasn't authorized to speak for Magee. The justice wouldn't allow Magee to speak and ruled that the challenge would not be recognized.

Magee also renewed his repeated motions today that his case be transferred to federal court and claimed again through Bell that the state court has no jurisdiction.

At the end of the hearing Miss Burnham said that she felt Christian's handling of the case showed a "desire to give us form but not substance" and she said that she thought Miss Davis and Magee had "diminished prospects for a fair trial."

Christian responded, "I'm sincerely sorry that you feel that way."

No date was set today for the next court appearance

PEACE

ment is not antimilitary and felt that servicemen have the right as citizens to speak out against the war.

"We are under oath to help to defend the constitution and we feel it's our patriotic duty to speak up and say what we think," Lawson said.

Participation by servicemen he felt would "lend a little bit of respectibility to the peace movement," he said.

Renshaw felt it was his patriotic duty to state his attitude about the war and "indicate a desire for an abrupt change of policy where abrupt change is needed."

The pair, who serve with the Detachment 21, said they have kept Col. Lee A. Sarter Jr.; base commander, informed of their activities.

Capt. Joseph W. Corfield, public information officer, said that Colonel Sarter met with the pair and told them of "the limits of free speech under the military code of justice," and that he couldn't object to their participation in the peace rally as long as they acted within the limits of the code.

Renshaw described the antiwar group as "moderate" and said it was "working within the organization," and observing the military code.

"We can't recruit on base, can't be part of a demonstration which might end up in violence and can't wear uniforms in peace parades," he said.

Renshaw, half way through a five-year hitch, said: "There comes a time when you have to decide whether it's more worthwhile to grin and bear it, swallow it, or speak up."

Lawson, who served a year in Vietnam, said the experience was disillusioning. At first, he said, he was offended by the "bureaucracy, waste and inefficiency." Then, he was "just appalled at the relationship between U.S. troops and the Vietnamese people." The troops don't see the average Vietnamese people, but the prostitutes, money changers and the enemy and a large number say "they hate gooks," he commented. "We aren't helping these people at all."

Lawson said there were soldiers in Vietnam with fairly long hair, bands around their heads and wearing peace medals who were "toting guns" and "doing a hell of a job."

Renshaw said the concerned Officers Movement, which is open to both officers and enlisted men, is nationwide and the base chapter has "a rough alliance" with other chapters in the Bay Area.

The military's attitude toward the movement is "they either hope it will go away, or fail to acknowledge it exists," he said.

Chapter members and other military men will march at the head of the peace parade in San Francisco Saturday.

Renshaw said after the parade the chapter will be planning a "counter display" to be held on Armed Forces Day which will emphasize the peace theme.

Details haven't been worked out, but "it won't be on the base," he said.

The group also will be speaking out for the rights of free speech,"which on some occasions have been violated," Renshaw said.

Car Flips Over Youth Is Hurt

A 16-year-old San Rafael yout received minor injury at 7:56 a.m. yesterday when his car overturned on East San Pedro Road at Balboa Avenue, police reported.

Wesley P. Howland III of 3 Lockwood Drive was treated at Marin General Hospital for scrapes and bruises on his right shoulder.

Howland told police that a white car cut in front of his eastbound car, causing him to swerve into the curb and overturn.

Youngster Improves

Jimmy Wilson, 6, of 3 Dean Court, Petaluma, was reported as improved and in satisfactory condition at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital with head injuries suffered when he was struck by a car Saturday. He had been listed in poor condition.

25 Drivers Sentenced On Drinking

Twenty-five persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for Drunken Driving.

Sentenced Thursday by Judge David Menary Jr. were:

Francis Marion Plymale, 49, of 30 Edwards Avenue, Sausalito, arrested April 5 on Highway 101, who was ordered to pay a $250 fine or serve five days in Marin County Jail.

David Brian Terrabone, 22, of 1112 Ruhlman Lane, Novato, arrested March 17 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $200.

Suzanne Cheri Gray, 23, of San Mateo, arrested April 11 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $200.

Two Suspects Booked On Pot

Two 19-year-old Mill Valley youths were booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of possessing marijuana, narcotics paraphernalia and being in a place where the drug is used after a routine traffic stop by Mill Valley police.

Timothy John Lojko, of 250 Edgewood Avenue, and Kevin Scott Ancic, of 465 East Blithedale Avenue were arrested about 2:55 a.m. after officers stopped their auto on East Blithedale, because it had a loud exhaust, and discovered a water pipe in the back seat.

A search of the vehicle revealed a small quantity of suspected hashish in the glove compartment and police said they found a quantity of suspected marijuana in Ancic's pocket.

Each youth was being held in lieu of $625 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Bound Over On Forgery Charge

Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of credit card forgery.

He is to be arraigned in superior court May 10.

Printing Ink Spill Cleaned Up

Approximately 800 gallons of ink was accidentally spilled about 11 a.m. yesterday onto the sidewalk and curb of Fifth Avenue, east of B Street.

The ink was forced out of the delivery pipe when a pump inside the Independent-Journal plant caused a reverse pressure on the ink, forcing it back up through the delivery pipe.

Crews from the Independent-Journal immediately cleaned the ink from the sidewalk and gutter, but not before some of it had been tracked around the sidewalk and street.

Innocent Pleas To Grand Theft

Daniel Patrick Smith, 22, and Donald Gilbert Kennedy, 27, both of Marin City, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of grand theft.

Jury trial was set for May 3.

The two were earlier charged with a felony count of grand theft in connection with the alleged theft of a camera from a San Franciscan's car April 4.

Patrolman Shot; His Gunman Dies

SANTA MARIA (UPI) —A California Highway Patrolman was shot and critically wounded Tuesday by a young man who scribbled a note saying "dope doesn't pay" before killing himself 20 minutes later, authorities said.

Officer Loren D. Scruggs, 35, a nine-year patrol veteran, had stopped two girls on a county highway near here when a youth parked in the opposite lane and casually walked over.

Authorities said the suspect asked directions to Santa Barbara and, as the two girls in the stopped vehicle looked on, pulled a small pistol and shot Scruggs in the temple.

Scruggs, married and the father of four, was taken to Sierra Vista Hospital where he underwent surgery to remove a bullet from his brain.

The two girls ran to the patrol car after the suspect fled and radioed to the dispatcher a description of the assailant and what type of auto he was driving.

Officers located the auto overturned about 10 miles from the shooting scene and found the body of Mark D. Steward, 22, in a nearby field. Authorities said Steward had shot himself in the head.

Sheriff's deputies said Steward, son of Selma City Treasurer Douglas Steward, scribbled a 16-line note on a brown paper shopping bag before he committed suicide.

The note read in part:

"Listen people. Dope doesn't help. Splitting doesn't help. Don't walk away from love. Care for people. ... I have no direction. No where to run. No where to hide. Later ..."

Broken Arm, Cuts When Car Overturns

A Los Ranchitos man suffered a fractured right arm and face cuts yesterday at 8:50 p.m. when his car, pulling a horse trailer, ran off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard on White's Hill and overturned.

The California Highway Patrol quoted Richard C. Bauman, 46, of 67 Ranchitos Road, as saying he swerved to avoid a car in his lane. He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Automatic Zoning Set In Petaluma

Plans for a zoning hearing on recently annexed lands were dropped last night when the Petaluma Planning Commission decided automatic zoning, setting 10,000 square foot lots, would be appropriate.

Assistant Planner Richard D. A. Anderson said the recently annexed land bounded by Casa Grande Road, Lakeville Highway and Old Lakeville Road would automatically be zoned for the large residential lots unless the commission took other action.

He said property owners could file for rezoning after the current moratorium on rezoning is lifted when planning studies for the area are complete.

The commission also approved the final map requested by Boise Cascade from Sonoma Vista Subdivision No. Four and granted a time extension on the tentative map of Foothill Manor Subdivision No. Four.

Earth Day Speaker Cut On Birth Control Issue

What a high school student in Novato hears about overpopulation during Earth Days, tomorrow and Friday, depends upon which school he attends.

Novato High School Principal Stanley V. Onderdonk has blocked the Rev. Charles Bates Gompertz, president of Planned Parenthood of Marin, from speaking at that school.

While at San Marin High School, on the other side of the city, Thomas A. Knight, executive director of Planned Parenthood of Marin, will speak to students Friday.

Gompertz said he had been invited to talk by the Ecology Action Club, but was told Monday by Onderdonk that he couldn't appear.

"I wasn't going to talk about birth control, but overpopulation," Gompertz said. However, when asked by Onderdonk if he would answer questions, Gompertz said he would.

Onderdonk said he was concerned that such questions would get into the area of birth control, and under the state education code such information can be presented to students only with parental consent.

Onderdonk said he learned Monday that students planned to invite speakers to individual rooms to ask questions.

There wasn't time to get parental consent, and so there was no choice but to cancel Gompertz's appearance, he said.

There are classes in family life education at the school and students attend with parental consent, he said.

Gompertz said the problem arose "on the matter of questions. I said I'd answer them and he said you can't do that."

Gompertz said he was "really bothered" because the students had been encouraged to set up their own Earth Days program and then discouraged.

"People wonder why kids get angry at the educational system and this is a classic example," said Gompertz. The combination of being encouraged and then discouraged bring frustration, he said.

Earth Days at Novato High School will include speakers at assemblies tomorrow and Friday, noon displays and closing comments by State Sen. Peter H. Behr (R-San Rafael).

Dennis Baldwin, Judy Nichol and Roger Bockrath of Survival Inc. will talk about recycling at 9:20 a.m. tomorrow.

Novato Planning Commissioner Beverly Ehreth will talk about hillsides and slides, and fellow Commissioner Gail Wilhelm will talk about creek and river pollution at 9:20 a.m. Friday.

Senator Behr will talkabout regional and state problems at 3 p.m. Friday. All talks will be in the boys gymnasium.

At noon each day there will be displays of a survival structure, camping equipment, bicycle information and biodegradable soaps. There will be a tree planting in the patio area at noon Thursday.

Minor Injuries In 2-Car Collision

Two persons received minor injures yesterday at 2:36 p.m. north of Point Reyes Station in a two-car collision, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Ellarene J.Young, 42, of 1041 Third Street, Novato, suffered face cuts while Joanne R. McDowell, 31, of Box 104, Tomales, complained of pain in the right arm and left knee. Both said they would see their own doctors.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred four miles north of Point Reyes Station when a southbound car driven by Mrs. McDowell collided with a northbound vehicle driven by Charles B. Young, 44, of the Novato address.

Laird: Red ICBM Threat Growing

NEW YORK (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today the Soviet Union had started building a new, extensive ICBM system which "must be of major concern" to the United States.

In view of this, he said, the United States might be forced to take "additional offsetting actions" if the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) in Vienna fail to produce an agreement.

In a prepared speech to the 85th annual convention of the American Newspapers Publishers Association (ANPA), Laird recalled that one year ago he told another meeting of editors that he feared the United States might find itself in a second rate strategic position by the mid-1970s.

"I regret to report today that nothing has happened in the intervening 12 months to lessen that concern," he said. "Quite the opposite is true."

Laird said that in December and January it appeared the Soviet Union was slowing its rapid deployment of intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) after installing about 400 more than the 1,054 land based ICBMs that the United States has.

He added that in February and March, a new type of missile silo had been detected in Russia that raised fears of a new ICBM program.

"More recent evidence confirms the sobering fact that the Soviet Union is involved in a new —and apparently extensive —ICBM construction program," Laird said.

"This new ICBM construction effort coupled with additional momentum in the strategic defensive area —all clearly planned months ago —must be of major concern."

Laird said the Russians also were "rapidly closing the gap" in submarine based missiles, an area where today the United States has had a clear advantage.

"We sincerely hope for convincing progress in SALT," Laird said. "But failing such progress I must tell you today that the renewed Soviet strategic weapons momentum may confront us with the need for additional offsetting U.S. actions."

Laird said he believed the American public might settle for nuclear parity with Russia. "But under no circumstances, in my view, would the American people be willing to settle for inferiority," he declared.

And he told the publishers he hopes for "trust and confidence of members of the press but that he intends to pursue programs he believes essential to U.S. survival "no matter the criticism it may evoke." "It is through the press that we must seek the understanding and support of the American people," Laird said. "Without that support and full understanding, the goal of lasting peace —so elusive to so many generations before us — will have no chance of success."

During a panel discussion on the third day of their meeting, publishers heard pointed criticism that their papers were concentrating on reporting surface events rather than digging for developing trends of which the events were symptomatic.

20 Kilo Grass Case Bound Over

Four of five persons accused in the sale of 20 kilos of marijuana to narcotics agents last summer have been bound over to Marin Superior Court.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Municipal Court took the case of the fifth person, Gerald Keith Smith, 22, of San Anselmo, under submission. The judge said he will decide within a few days if Smith, who is charged with selling marijuana, is to be bound over.

The five were arrested July 31 after narcotics agents arranged to purchase marijuana at a Tamalpais Valley store. The agents were then taken by one of the accused to a San Anselmo residence to complete the deal.

Ordered to appear in Superior Court May 10 were: Eric De St. Aubin, 36, of no known address, and Peter Lasoff, 25, of Mill Valley, both charged with sale of marijuana; Virginia Jane Lucas, 27, of San Anselmo, and John Albert Lucas, 28, of Sausalito, both charged with possession of marijuana and cocaine.

Explosives, Body Found In Hideaway

SANTA CRUZ UPI — A Black Panther captain was slain and buried in a remote mountain retreat used as a revolutionary bomb factory, authorities disclosed yesterday.

Besides finding a large quantity of explosives, investigators uncovered human remains which are believed to be those of Fred Bennett, a Black Panther captain who was last seen publicly in November.

Santa Cruz County District Attorney Peter Cheng said the case was being investigated by local, state and federal agents.

Bennet, 25, was lured to the remote hideout and shot through the head. His body was buried and bones crushed into the ground with a shovel.

The motive for the execution of Bennett, a Stanford University graduate student and frequent Panther rally speaker, allegedly was a disapproved romance with a woman Panther.

He was murdered about Jan. 6 police said.

The body was found several weeks later at the mountain retreat, which was surrounded by wire. It was unoccupied when raided by police.

Two other Black Panther members were being sought for questioning.

One was identified as a teaching assistant at the University of California at Santa Cruz who has a record of frequent arrests.

Another Panther sought for questioning is a former chemical engineering student at Stanford who was reportedly expert with electronics and explosives. He disappeared while awaiting trial on charges of assaulting police.

Guilty Verdict In Larkspur Case

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday found Paul Waldmar Brust, 25, of San Francisco, guilty of burglarizing Eubanks' Florist in Larkspur Dec. 30.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated five hours before returning its verdict on the fifth day of the trial.

Judge Henry J. Broderick ordered Brust to return to court May 26 for sentencing.

Hub Trustees Set Tax Vote

Despite reservations by some trustees, the San Anselmo School District last night agreed to hold an election in July on an 80-cent override tax.

The increase, if approved by voters July 13, would increase the operational tax rate from this year's maximum of $2.25 to $3.05 per $100 assessed valuation. A total tax rate of $3.44 was levied this year of which $2.06 was operational tax.

Last night's 4-0 vote, with trustee Eugene E. Jacks abstaining, culminated about four months of discussion by the board.

(Jacks, who won in his reelection bid to the board yesterday has opposed the election in the past.)

Trustee Mary Helen Olive, who two weeks ago also voted against going to election, last night switched her position to close ranks with other trustees.

"I still think it's a bad time for the election," she said today, "but if people want the opportunity to vote they should be given that opportunity."

According to Supt. W. Kenneth Lowry, the board following its vote set a special meeting for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Red Hill School to discuss election preparations and for further budget review.

"Both as a superintendent and as a private individual, I have to congratulate the board on their position," Lowry said. "It was reached after a great deal of soul searching."

He said the meeting was attended by about 50 persons, none of whom spoke in opposition to the election. There was applause after the board's vote, he said.

Lowry, in January, told the board the tax rate must be increased to cover deficit spending which has been eating budget reserves at the rate of $100,000 per year.

Should the tax increase election fail, he said, certain education and building programs will have to be reduced to balance next year's budget. Reserves now stand at $50,000.

The July election represents the first request since 1963 by the district for an override. If approved it will bring the operational tax in line with that of neighboring Fairfax School District, Lowry said.

Mrs. Olive said an important part of her switch in position stems for assurances the tax rate increase will suffice for another two to four years.

"It wouldn't make much sense to hold an election this year and then again next," she said.

"I felt the superintendent has worked hard to establish a new direction for the district and it is fitting that the district (voters) have the opportunity to communicate to him their support of his management and programs," she said.

Lowry said .50 cents of the override is needed just to keep existing staff and programs and the remaining .30 cents will be used only at the direction of the board. It could be kept in reserve or used for expanding or creating needed programs, he said.

Help Asked In Programs At Schools

The Fairfax School District board last night asked the staff to suggest programs to improve the schools in the district.

At its April 6 meeting, the board decided against grade changes at Central and Deer Park schools, making one for kindergarten through third grade and the other fourth through sixth grades, said Supt. H. Reginald Hammond.

The board wants to keep each school kindergarten through sixth grade, but asked for ideas on improving the program, Hammond said. These plans are to be submitted May 4.

The Fairfax School District board also:

AUDIT — Approved firm of Sleezer and Eckhoff conducting the annual audit at $750.

CALENDAR — Tentatively approved the 1971-72 school calendar of 177 days starting Sept. 13 and closing June 13. It will be given final approval if the Tamalpais High School District adopts the same calendar, Hammond said.

CLOSED MEETING — Held a closed meeting for 20 minutes to discuss charges against an employee, but took no action after the meeting.

Mill Valley Write-In Votes Out

An attempt to register a protest against the Mill Valley School District board through write-in of two opposition candidates foundered on the state Elections Code yesterday.

An informal organization of parents sought to promote write-in of Robert House and William Broderick in the election, in which incumbents Joseph E. Bodovitz and John Robinson were unopposed.

They learned to their dismay, however, that the votes would not be counted.

Peter C. Meyer, county elections officer, cited section 18603 of the Elections Code, passed by the legislature in 1968, which says:"No name written in on a ballot shall be counted unless a declaration of candidacy has been filed." He said House and Broderick could have qualified as write-in candidates by registering their names. Such registration may be made anytime until eight days before the election.

Mrs. Marjorie Mahl, one of the promoters of the write-in, said its intent had been to register a protest against the incumbent board members, with no expectation of electing the write-in candidates.

There was only a 17 per cent turnout of voters in Mill Valley.

Red Hill Plan Wins Approval

Preliminary plans for a five-unit apartment building on Tiburon's Red Hill were approved last night by the city's design review board.

Planning Aide Jeanne MacLean said the board asked applicants Peter Gonzales and Robert Hadley to submit more detailed plans covering parking, access, exterior lighting and landscaping, when they become available.

She said the owner of an adjacent apartment building asked the board to make sure a private driveway leading to his property would not be torn up by construction activities.

The new apartments will be built at 1212 Mariner Way, she said.

Three Change Pleas In Marijuana Case

Three of four men facing narcotics charges stemming from a 1969 raid in Inverness changed their pleas to guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

John Brad McCall, 23, of Mill Valley, and James Willard Clapp, 22, of La Habre, Orange County, both pleaded guilty to the sale of marijuana. Charges of possessing marijuana for sale and conspiring to sell marijuana were then dismissed.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered the pair to return to court June 1 for sentencing.

Craig R. Westling, 23, of Inverness, pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana for sale. Charges of selling and conspiring to sell the drug were dismissed.

The three were arrested in May 1969 when agents raided an Inverness house and seized what they thought was $100,000 worth of hashish. Tests later showed that the brick-like substance confiscated was marijuana mixed with something like molasses.

Agents said, however, that the men were selling the substance as hashish.

A bench warrant was issued last week for John Lipinsky. 23. formerly of Inverness, the fourth man facing charges stemming from the raid.

Westling yesterday also pleaded guilty to a separate charge of possessing marijuana when he was arrested at his home March 23, 1970.

Judge Henry J. Broderick set sentencing of Westling for June 16.

Sentencing In Reduced Charge

Lawrence Tracey Williams, 46, of Novato, has been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court to 20 days in jail for his conviction of misdemeanor drunken driving.

Judge Peter Allen Smith also placed him on probation for two years.

Williams was arrested Dec. 17 on Highway 101 after a high speed chase which ended when he rammed another car near Hamilton Air Force Base, according to the California Highway Patrol.

He was originally charged with felony drunken driving, but pleaded guilty to the reduced misdemeanor charge in February.

Action On Ross Budget Is Delayed

Ross School District board has delayed action on a revised budget proposal of $569,672 for next school year, a 7.9 per cent increase over this year's budget, according to Supt. Thomas A. Anderson.

The new proposal represents an increase of $45,031 over this year's budget of $526,641 with a tax rate of $3.28 per $100 assessed valuation.

According to Anderson, most of the meeting Monday night was taken up by general discussion of the second budget draft. The first proposal of $523,896 did not include salary increases, he said.

Action on the budget is expected to be taken at the adjourned meeting at 7:45 p.m. Monday at the Ross School Library, Anderson said.

Other items postponed to the Monday night meeting are the individual salary and fringe benefit recommendations for classified personnel and adoption of the proposed school calendar year.

Adoption was delayed following a request by the Ross School District Certificated Employees Council for time to study the proposal and make recommendations, Anderson said.

The board also voted to request the County Superintendent of Schools contract Sleezer & Eckhoff for the annual audit of district books.

Unruh Hired By Land Developer For Ecology Aid

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Jess Unruh, who unsuccessfully campaigned for governor as a conservationist, has been hired as a consultant by a major land developer of rural recreational subdivisions.

N. K. Mendlesohn, president of North American Towns, Inc., and former developer of controversial California City in the Mojave Desert, said Tuesday Unruh would work as a part-time economic and environmental consultant. He did not disclose the salary arrangement.

Unruh, Democratic speaker of the Assembly for seven years, was defeated last November in his bid to unseat Gov. Ronald Reagan. His campaign was partly based on protecting the natural environment.

Mendelsohn, who plans to develop 25,000 acres of land in southern Shasta County, said Unruh will work on "problems of the environment and economic feasibility."

Takes 10 Lashes As Punishment For Child Abuse

NORTH LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Ethridge Eugene Thomas, 23, took ten lashes on the steps of City Hall Tuesday rather than serve 20 days in jail.

Thomas admitted beating Patricia Smith, 4, with a belt March 6 at the home of the girl's mother. Authorities said Patricia suffered only bruises. Thomas said he punished Patricia because she did not clean up her room while he was visiting her mother, his girl friend.

Municipal Judge Ray Daines handed down the sentence and fined Thomas $200. The judge told him he could either spend 20 days in jail or take 10 lashes.

COMPUTER CENTER FOR LUCAS GREEN — Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies proposes to construct this 123,000-square foot facility west of Highway 101 at Lucas Valley Road. The center would have three stories facing Highway 101 and two stories on the side fronting Los Gamos Drive. Completion is tentatively scheduled for 1973.

Marin May Get Computer Plant

A three-story, 123,000-square foot computer center employing 500 persons will be built by Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies on its recently purchased Lucas Green property north of San Rafael.

Plans were unveiled last night by Fireman's Fund executives at a dinner hosted by the Marin Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau at which a group of Marin County officials and businessmen was told that the computer facility is being tentatively scheduled for completion in 1973.

Fireman's Fund president Louis W. Niggeman, a Kentfield resident, said original plans to request annexation of the 38 acres at Highway 101 and Lucas Valley Road to the City of San Rafael were being deferred "in order to review the possibility of remaining within the county and determine which course would be in the best interest of the community and the company."

The decision whether to ask for annexation is expected next month, following meetings with representatives of Marinwood and Terra Linda community services districts and other organizations opposing or favoring the annexation. In either case the company would request rezoning of the property, which is not now zoned for administrative and professional use.

Construction on the computer center is expected to begin after the company's decision on requesting annexation. The building would be located at the west side of the property, with three stories facing Highway 101 and two stories on the side fronting Los Gamos Drive. Architects for the project are Page, Clowdsley and Baleix.

It will be constructed of textured pre-cast concrete, with bronze-tinted windows and will have extensive landscaping in a park-like setting. Usage of the remainder of the 38 acres has not yet been determined, but Niggeman said land studies are being made and it is expected that some of the land will be needed for future expansion.

He said Fireman's Fund decided about a year ago to move part of the facilities from headquarters in San Francisco to somewhere else in the Bay Area and since many of the employees live in Marin this seemed to be the logical place to look for a site.

Executive vice president Stuart D. Menist, also a resident of Kentfield, said two separate surveys showed that many Marin residents now working outside the county would prefer to work in Marin.

The commercial fish catch in Peru is more than 7 million tons a year.

Strawberry Delay Asked

The Strawberry Recreation District Board has asked for a delay in a hearing on a 330-unit apartment project in Strawberry until it can evaluate the development's impact on the district.

Clerk Jeanne Heick said the board last night told its attorney, Stephen H. Kaufmann, to request the Marin County Planning Commission to delay the hearing which had been set for Monday.

The development, proposed by Sea-Port Development Co. of Sausalito, would cover 24 acres east of Highway 101 between Belvedere and West Strawberry drives.

Mrs. Heick said a representative of the firm was to have discussed the development with directors last night but did not attend the adjourned meeting.

In other business, the board told Kaufmann to prepare a five-year lease with the Strawberry Swim Club at a sixfold increase in rent.

The new lease, which will run until Nov. 30, 1976, will be for $3,000 per year. The club currently rents the district's swimming pool for $500 a year.

Mrs. Heick said the new lease allows the club to increase monthly dues from $7.50 to $8.50 to cover the higher rent.

The board also hired Maureen Callon, of 178 Glen Park Drive, San Rafael, as the summer swimming program director. She will be paid $500 for the season, Mrs. Heick said.

Routine Procedure For Manson At San Quentin

Convicted murderer Charles Manson will be processed routinely when he arrives at San Quentin Prison, a prison official said today.

Associate Warden James W. L. Park said no special arrangement is being made for Manson, sentenced to die for the Tate and Labianca murders in 1969.

"We're making no special precautions," he said. "We're prepared to process him in a routine manner. We have no reason to anticipate any particular problems."

Manson, who is now on trial in Los Angeles in another murder case, must be moved to the prison before April 29 — within 10 days of the pronouncement of his death sentence, Park said. Only a court order can change that procedure.

Park said Manson probably will be brought to the prison by the Los Angeles sheriff's office, check in and then return to stand trial.

Park, who said he has not been notified when the hippie cult leader will arrive, said he did not know whether the Los Angeles sheriff was planning any special transfer arrangements.

Group Alarmed By Development Plans

A group of Sausalito residents who want to halt development of a heavily wooded area in the city's hills were told by the city council last night to discuss their ideas with the city manager and the developer. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 6)

Dr. Stephen L. Davis presented the council with a petition signed by about 230 residents calling for preservation of an area known as "The Glen' at 61 Cazneau Avenue. "This is the last stretch of undeveloped live creek in Sausalito,' he told the council. "And this land is about to be massively developed as a housing tract, with most of its trees cut down and its beauty lost.' '

The petitioners asked the city to acquire the land as a park, either through a bond issue or a city-wide assessment district and also want development and tree cutting halted until the issue is studied.

Developer Fred De Cook, who plans to build five houses in the glen, agreed last night to cease work in the area for30 days, to give residents time to see what can be accomplished. He declined to name the purchase price for the property.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said he had learned an assessment district could be set up within a few weeks to finance the project and agreed to meet with DeCook and Davis to discuss the matter.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

CLUSTER HOUSING — Passed an ordinance permitting planned unit development (housing clustered on a parcel, with resultant open space around the units) in single-family residential areas.

PARKING FINES — Passed a resolution raising fines for violation of city parking ordinances: expired meter, overtime parking, improper parking and parking in a red zone will be raised from $2 to $5; meter violations with overtime parking, from $4 to $6 and parking in a red zone from $2 to $7.

BUS PLAN — Approved — in principle — a proposal by Marin Transit Systems to operate a tour bus service from downtown Sausalito to other scenic areas of Marin County, such as Muir Woods and Stinson Beach.

USE PERMIT — Granted a 30-day extension on a conditional use permit to the Mobile Oil Co. to allow the firm more time to submit final plans for reconstruction of a service station at Second and Main streets.

CITY SHARE — Indicated the city would be willing to pay abut $2,000 of a $4,800 cost to improve an unpaved portion of Cazneau Avenue, if residents will come up with the remainder of the funds needed.

MEETING — Set a special meeting to consider agenda items not completed last night for next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in city hall. A budget study session will follow the special meeting.

Assault Reports By Petalumans

Two Petaluma residents were assaulted yesterday, according to police.

Pat Melahcea, 437 Garfield Drive, said she heard noises in her garage at 11:20 p.m. and saw two teen-age boys there when she investigated. She said one of the youths struck her left eye with his fist before they fled into a nearby field.

Mel Giambastiani, 1325 Glenwood Drive, said he had an argument with a man in a bar and that the man followed him home last night. After several minutes of arguing, he said the man drew a hatchet from behind his back and threatened him. Giambastiani said he and his wife, Irene, managed to take the hatchet from him as he fled.

Zoning Hearing

The Sausalito Planning Commission will continue public hearings on proposed amendments to regulations in zones which will be included in the central waterfront area at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The hearings will focus on regulations in resident-commercial zones.

Ferry Limit Asked For Bridge District System

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Harbor Carriers, operator of the Tiburon commuter ferry and of bay sightseeing cruises, yesterday urged the Legislature to bar the Golden Gate Bridge District from operating ferries midday on weekdays and on weekends.

Even with the lucrative weekend tourist business, the bridge district expects an annual loss of $1.3 million on its planned ferry system.

The plea by the president of Harbor Carriers, Albert D. Elledge, however, apparently was a tactical error. His proposed bar to district ferry operations went much further than one suggested by a member of the special subcommittee hearing the district's transit plan.

The milder prohibition was suggested by Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Salinas. He moved that the transportation subcommittee go on record opposing any excursion and sightseeing operations by the bridge district, but subcommittee chairman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, ruled his motion out of order until testimony was completed.

Wood did not offer his motion again, and told newsmen that Harbor Carriers had "lost points" by urging a broader ban on district ferry operations. He said he would not support the ban urged by Elledge.

(Bridge officials assured the subcommittee last week that their ferry plans were only for point-to-point transportation, and included no excursion or sightseeing operations.)

Claude Greerty, lobbyist for Elledge's company, testified that "we only want to remain in business — that's all." Questioned by Foran, Greerty conceded that weekend ferries would relieve bridge traffic, but insisted that ferries still were"basically for sightseeing."

Elledge added that if there had been a demand for more ferry service, he would have met it. "I don't think ferryboats are the answer," he said.

Harbor Carriers' objections came in a three-hour hearing on the district's transit plan for the next decade. The plan calls for spending $331 million for an interim ferry and conventional bus system and phased development of a bus rapid transit transit system using tunnels in downtown San Francisco and a second deck on the bridge.

Criticism of the plan also came from the Greater San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, whose spokesman said the district should be replaced with an agency representing Marin, San Francisco and "possibly Sonoma" counties. This would remove Napa, Mendocino and Del Norte counties.

Donald M. Van Dyke of Novato, a member of the chamber, criticized as "unfortunate" the fact thet Rep. Foran's law partner, Stephan C. Leonoudakis, was a director of the bridge district. Foran, reddening, twice asked Van Dyke if he thought "that has anything to do with anything?" but Van Dyke refused to answer.

A third chamber spokesman, Vincent J. Roggeveen, who earlier this year proposed a scaled-down commuter bus system for the district, gave a dissertation on how the district could be reorganized. Roggeveen, an associate professor of transportation planning at Stanford University, suggested that the bridge board be directly elected.

He also suggested that maintenance costs of the bridge come from state gas taxes, but Foran noted this was "another major political problem." Gas taxes already maintain state bridges, but Southern California politicians strongly object because most of the bridges are in Northern California, he said.

Roggeveen's testimony was scored by Margaret Azevedo, Marin County planning commissioner and chairman of the citizens panel that advised the district on its plan. "We're interested in what works, not what looks good on paper in a textbook," she said. The district was "very politically responsible," she said.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, said the committee should insist that the district continue to support Marin County Transit Systems, the Marin City-based bus corporation. He said the company "should be given every possible opportunity to grow into a profitable enterprise."

Testifying in favor of the bridge district's plan, mostly in arguments made in previous hearings were Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum and spokesmen for the Marin Council for Civic Affairs, the transportation committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin and the League of Women Voters of Central Marin.

William L. McCracken, general counsel of Greyhound Lines-West, in a statement prepared for delivery to the subcommittee, also supported the plan, "particularly the implementation of its interim bus program which is intended to replace Greyhound in Marin."

Foran said that a third hearing would be held on the plan at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Capitol.

Business And Education Session

Industrial and Educational leaders from throughout Marin County will meet tomorrow at the College of Marin to exchange ideas on closer cooperation between business and education.

The workshop, to be held at 3:45 p.m. at Olney Hall, is sponsored by the Marin Industry Education Council and is aimed at determining what contribution industry and the schools can make to each other.

Among items to be discussed is a listing of speakers from industry available to discuss their professions with students.

Artwork by Don Graulich of Woodacre, entitled "Mixed Media," will be on display from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday through Thursday until May 7 at the Marin Fellowship of Unitarians, 240 Channing Way, San Rafael.

Psychological Look At The My Lai Tragedy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — My Lai massacres of women and children occur because soldiers feel they have the collective permission of their own people, the Western Psychological Association convention was told today.

"The conscience of the individual is stilled by a process of sanctioning, by an implicit agreement as to who the bad people are," said Nevitt Sanford, director of the Wright Institution.

"General miitary policy legitimatized the killing of Vietnamese," he said. "Our attitude toward Asians has never been favorable, and if the Asians seek to be Communists, then we see the devil."

Sanford was discussing social destructiveness, meaning actions by groups of people who murder, torture and enslave.

"Uusually it's because they believe that it's right," he said.

Bagley Introduces Bill To Pay For Beach Sewage System

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to help pay for treating sewage from Stinson Beach State Park has been introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The Stinson Beach County Water District is about to build a joint sewage system with the Bolinas Community Public Utility District at a cost of over $2 million.

Bagley's measure, citing the "undue burden" upon the small community of paying for state park sewage, would authorize the Parks and Recreation Department to share the cost. Amount of the state subsidy was blank in the bill as introduced, but Bagley's office said it would be about $200,000.

A similar measure was carried two years ago by former Sen. John F. McCarthy, but it lost because of opposition from the department. Bagley's bill, unlike McCarthy's, would finance the department's cost from the general fund, not from department funds.

Assemblyman Bagley also introduced the following bills:

STUDENTS — Appropriates $6.2 million to the Educational Opportunity Program at the University of California for low-income students who do not meet grade requirements but show promise. It was asked by the Associated Students of the University of California.

PROBATE — Simplifies uncontested probate proceedings by providing for filings with court clerks instead of with judges. Pending amendments will provide for administrative handling of probate proceedings, eliminating the need for hiring an attorney, and will require probate of a will within three years of death.

CREDIT — Authorizes the state to issue revenue anticipation notes when the state runs out of cash next fall.

WELFARE — Makes new welfare regulations effective in 30 days instead of immediately to allow time for court appeal of new regulations before they are implemented.

Tamalpais High Plan Due On 'Sounding Board'

The proposal to test the Tamalpais High School District reorganization plan at one high school instead of all three, will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

David D. Ring, president of the Tamalpais High School District board of trustees, Frank L. Miller and Robert W. Corlett, both trustees, and Dr. Surjit Singh, chairman of a committee which studied the plan, will be on the panel.

Supt. Wilbert D. Hawkins and Philip H. Pease, president of the district teachers' association, accepted the invitation to be on the program, then decided not to appear, said Moderator Kitty Oppenheimer.

Questions phoned in, will be answered on the broadcast tomorrow. The program will be repeated by tape-recording at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Youth Conference

John W. Brewer, Marin County probation officer, is a delegate to the 1971 White House Conference on Youth at Estes Park, Colo. The conference, which ends Friday, is aimed at better communications between young people and adults in both government and non-governmental positions.

Sex Film Club Sues Police For 'Harassment'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Owners of a nightclub featuring sex films and nude dancers filed a $4 million lawsuit against a dozen San Francisco police officers Tuesday charging them with harassment and attempts to drive them out of business.

Attorney Michael Kennedy, representing owners of the Outer Limits nightclub, charged police with making 23 "harassing raids" on the spot in the last year. He charged "unlawful, illegal, fascistic tactics by certain policemen who decide to take the law into their own hands."

Kennedy said the club has paid out more than $70,000 in "exorbitant" bail charges since the raids began last April 28.

He accused the officers of conspiracy to bring high-bail felony charges against the owners and operators—all of which have since been tossed out of court.

Harmony Among GOP Governors

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —Republican governors have come out of a five-month cooling off period with a restored feeling of unity with the Nixon administration.

The open grumbling and even hostility towards the role of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew during the 1970 election campaign, which cost the GOP a net loss of 11 governors, has vanished.

But there were new rumbles of discontent from the liberal wing of the party toward Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, new national GOP chairman who has supplanted Agnew as the bare knuckle fighter ready to square off against any Democratic critic of the administration. Dole's speeches and literature from his party headquarters are causing uneasiness among Republicans in some of the liberal eastern states.

The final official product of the spring meeting of the Republican Governors Association was a statement drafted at a private luncheon Tuesday which welcomed the visits of both Nixon and Agnew and their support of revenue sharing and welfare reform.

"An examination of the last 70 years of American history bears witness to the fact that Richard M. Nixon stands above all his 20th century predecessors in dedication to effective federalism," the statement said.

Cyclists Will Perform Noise Test In Pastoral West Marin

A dozen motorcycle riders will cavort over the Anita Gambonini Ranch in West Marin Saturday morning to show county supervisors how much racket the motorcycles create.

On the basis of this field test, supervisors will decide whether or not the Marin Motorcycle Association should be allowed to use the Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road for riding.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Arnold M. Baptiste, and possibly Michael Wornum, will meet the cyclists at the ranch at 10 a.m. Saturday. Chairman Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis said they had other commitments.

Arrigoni and Baptiste will report their findings to the board of supervisors at 1:45 p.m. next Tuesday.

The decision to visit the scene came late yesterday after a lengthy debate between motorcycle enthusiasts and owners of an adjoining ranch who plan a subdivision of secluded homes.

Attorney Thomas Elke of San Anselmo, representing the adjacent landowners, said his clients had invested $980,000 on the property, creating a dam and a mile-long lake. Benjamin P. Bonelli and the Pacific Bridge Co., headed by William Swiegert, bought the property more than six years ago. They declared that the hills on their ranch make sound reverberate, and motorcycle riding on the neighboring Gambonini Ranch would kill their development.

Motorcycle enthusiasts, headed by Gerald M. Diaz and Merle Greenblat of the Marin Motorcycle Association, replied that the closest riding trail on the Gambonini Ranch would be a half-mile or more from the closest home on the neighboring ranch.

They said mufflers and other strict controls imposed by the association members make motorcycle riding quite compatible with horses, cows and people.

Russell Sanford, legislative advocate for the Motorcycle Associations of California, reported that Marin has more than 16,000 motorcycles and more than 20,000 cycle enthusiasts.

Motorcycle spokesmen asked for a legal place to ride, pointing out that they have as much right to pursue their hobbies as golfers, swimmers and horsemen.

Another Bombing At Fresno's Induction Center

FRESNO (UPI) —A bomb exploded in the front door of the Fresno armed forces examining and induction center Tuesday night marking the second time the center has been hit by a bomb within the past six months.

The blast occurred about 11:20 p.m. and police said the device used was unknown. There were no injuries.

Last Nov. 1 a bomb ripped through the front of the induction center and minutes later another explosion rocked the front of the Fresno Guide newspaper, located across the street.

Legal Aid Space Plea Is Rejected

The Legal Aid Society of Marin County, which is looking for an old building in a low-rent area for use as headquarters, made an unsuccessful pitch yesterday to the county board of supervisors for space in the Old Courthouse Building in downtown San Rafael.

David C. Phillips, chairman of the society board, told the supervisors its lease on a small building at 612 D Street in San Rafael expires May 23 and the rent will be raised from $300 to $400 a month.

Supervisors decided that the old courthouse cannot be used because utilities are in bad shape and maintenance is a big problem.

Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — Reappointed Richard Harding to another four-year term on the Marin Redevelopment Agency; and named Kevin Dearth of Novato to the Ad Hoc Motorcycle Committee, a 10-man group which will investigate areas and rules for cycle riding.

STATE CUTBACKS — Protested against bills introduced in Sacramento which would cut state reimbursements to counties. One is state aid for legal defense of indigents, and another is the $15,000 annual state aid for the county veterans service office.

FAIRS — Protested Gov. Ronald Reagan's budget for 1971-72 which calls for a 10 per cent cut in operating funds for county fairs and a 65 per cent cut in capital outlay funds which are used by counties to improve their fair sites.

FLOOD PLAIN — Asked the county counsel to draw up an interim ordinance that would designate Novato Creek and its tributaries as a "flood plain area" and regulate developments in that area. A public hearing on that interim ordinance will be held on May 18.

PARK GRANTS — Authorized the parks and recreation director to apply for federal grants for park acquisition and development for the coming fiscal year.

BELLO BEACH — Transferred a surplus 1951 county fire truck to the Bello Beach Volunteer Fire Company, a newly formed group at Muir Beach.

STATE COMPENSATION — Received a $72,000 refund from the State Compensation Insurance Fund because of the county's fine safety record for the past three years.

Supervisors Will Take Budget Woes To Capital

Marin County supervisors will head for Sacramento, probably next week, to seek some relief from the biggest budget headache in the history of the county.

The county's basic tax rate, which is at a record $2.575 per $100 assessed valuation, is due for another meteoric rise this year, largely because of costs beyond county control.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell yesterday listed these major increases in costs that can be expected for the 1971-72 fiscal year:

1. Security will cost more at the Civic Center with about 30 men added to the security force at $500,000 more next year plus another $200,000 for overtime.

2. The trial for Angela Y. Davis and Ruchell Magee, estimated conservatively to take 100 days, will cost the county about $980,000.

3. Based on a number of bills proposed in Sacramento, including the Governor's tax shift program, Marin County could face up to $2,000,000 per year in increased county welfare costs. Mitchell said that under the Governor's tax shift program, the state would pay for old age security and aid for the blind, but more of the responsibility for Aid to Families with Dependent Children will be shifted to counties.

4. Higher wages, even if held to 5 per cent would mean $1,663,000 in added cost.

The county supervisors have control of the last item, but the first three, involving more than $3.5 million in extra cost, are beyond the control of the county, Mitchell pointed out.

"We should go talk to the people in Sacramento before we go into this year's budget," said Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

Chairman Louis H. Baar suggested that the supervisors have a long chat with Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr, both R-San Rafael, to see if the county cannot get some state aid.

Marin County has been unsuccessful so far in convincing the state that the cost of the Davis-Magee trial and the increased security at the Civic Center and Hall of Justice should be borne, at least in part, by the state. If all the cost is shifted to the Marin taxpayers, they are likely to revolt, said Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste.

"The whole problem is that your board is being boxed in," warned Mitchell. "You are going into a budget session with very little control over the budget unless your legislators can overturn the present trend."

Jobs For Welfare Recipients On Tap

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A program proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to place welfare recipients in jobs with private industry will begin operation this summer as a series of "demonstration projects," a state official said Tuesday.

Gilbert L. Sheffield, director of human resources, told a Town Hall luncheon that the administration "hopes to launch demonstration projects using this concept by the middle of this year."

He said the projects would begin in three counties, but he did not name them.

The employment program, part of Reagan's welfare reform package, involves contracts between local governments and the state.

Social workers would shift the emphasis of their casework "from social services to employment services," Sheffield said, and would be under the jurisdiction of local state employment office managers.

"The guts of the program is to use the existing resources, going into broad and sometimes disconnected social services which do not have a precise goal, and transform them into employment services aimed directly and specifically at getting recipients jobs," Sheffield said.

Various approaches to the problem of getting welfare recipients jobs would be tested in the pilot projects and those that work best would be applied statewide, he said.

Sheffield said able-bodied welfare recipients who cannot finds jobs in private industry would work on public projects "of transitory nature." The goal would be to "move them from these public service jobs into self-sufficient, salaried jobs as rapidly as possible."

Persons long conditioned to welfare who were placed in public jobs, however, would learn to "develop work habits, job discipline and an ability or skill that would enable them to more readily achieve employment in the private sector," Sheffield said.

"Such a public work service program would involve female welfare recipients and a series of day care centers would be set up to take care of their children," he said.

Shortage Of Dentists Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Financial problems may cause a shortage of dentists in the future, the president of the American Dental Association said yesterday.

Dr. John M. Deines, of Seattle, speaking at the dental group's annual convention, said the country "should be building new dental schools." However, instead of that, he said, many existing schools "are in serious financial difficulty."

"There can be no doubt that the current financial crisis in dental education will severely retard efforts to meet growing dental manpower needs," Deines said.

He said the ratio of dentists to the population is expected to be maintained during the 1970s, but he said the number of patient visits is increasing.

He called on the federal government to help dental students pay for their education.

"Unless adequate federal funds are appropriated for dental student loans and scholarships, the already critical situation of many dental students will worsen," he said. "Many of those aspiring to enter dental school will have to give up that ambition."

Pit River Indians Win Court Round

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —U.S. District Court Judge Philip Wilkins has agreed to appoint additional attorneys to defend 35 Pit River Indians charged with trespassing on a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. campground in Shasta County.

Aubrey Grossman, a San Francisco attorney representing the Indians, said another three or four attorneys probably will be appointed. Grossman had waged a lengthy battle in both federal and state courts to have more attorneys named. He has been the Indians' sole attorney.

Wilkins also said he would announce a trial date next Monday.

A group of Indians set up camp on the PG&E property at Four Corners claiming it was part of Northern California land illegally taken from their tribe during the Gold Rush days. Law officers made the arrests as they forcibly removed the Indians from the property.

Mystery Sinking Of Indians' Boat Off Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Alcatraz Indians' 35-foot supply boat, the Clearwater, sank at its mooring on the island Monday night, the Coast Guard reported today.

The vessel had been used to ferry Indians and their supplies to and from the mainland.

The Coast Guard said it sent a helicopter and other search craft to the area this morning after debris was reported in the water to look for survivors.

Indians said no one was injured in the sinking, but gave no explanation for it, the Coast Guard said.

Monster of Vietnam Is 17 Years Old Today

Today is an anniversary — not one that we exactly want to celebrate, but one that should be noted.

It was 17 years ago today — April 21, 1954 — that the United States began flying French troops from Paris to reinforce the French defense of Dienbienphu against an attacking force of Ho Chi Minh's Vietnamese liberation army.

That was the beginning of our involvement.

IT WAS A DEPARTURE from the United States' previous policy of keeping hands off Southeast Asia. It was a departure from the anti-colonialist stand taken during World War II, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt declared that Vietnam must never be returned to France.

It was not returned to the French. After losing at Dienbienphu they pulled out, first negotiating a supposedly temporary partition of Vietnam along the 17th parallel, with Bao Dai, their puppet emperor of Annam, as chief of the new state of South Vietnam. A little over a year later, all French influence vanished when Bao Dai was deposed by overwhelming vote in a national referendum and Ngo Dinh Diem, his prime minister, was made chief of state.

BUT THE UNITED States, which had begun its involvement on behalf of the French by flying their troops to Dienbienphy, remained involved on behalf of the government of Bao Dai — and after him, of Ngo Dinh Diem.

WHEN Diem was overthrown by a palace revolt, the U.S. continued its presence in behalf of a series of successors, down to the present government of Nguyen Van Thieu and Nguyen Cao Ky.

And the involvement grew. From merely furnishing arms and money during President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration, it grew to sending 16,000 "military advisers" during the incumbency of President John F. Kennedy. And while Lyndon B. Johnson was in the White House, it grew to a full-scale American war, with more than half a million American troops fighting in the jungles of Vietnam.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER refused to send troops despite pressures within his own administration. His secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, propounded the "domino theory" that South Vietnam must not be allowed to fall to the communist lest all the other Southeast Asian countries tumble in succession like a row of dominoes. And his vice president, Richard M. Nixon, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors only a few weeks before that U.S. airlift of French troops began:

"If in order to avoid further Communist expansion in Asia and particularly in Indochina, if in order to avoid it we must take the risk of putting American boys in, I believe that the executive branch of the government has to take the politically unpopular position of facing up to it and doing it, and I personally would support such a decision."

The then-vice president may therefore be said to have been sort of midwife at the birth of U.S. involvement in Vietnam 17 years ago today. As President, he has reduced the involvement from 550,000 troops to 284,000, and says he will withdraw another 100,000 by the end of this year.

The monster that grew from the airlift has started shrinking a little. But it is still a frightful monster as it reaches its 17th birthday.

CAPITOL REPORT

Democrats' Package Proposes Major Reshuffling Of Taxes

By ARTHUR YOUNGBERG
California News Alliance

Ah, the tax burden we all carry; if only the load could be lightened a little! One man's relief, though, is often another's millstone.

The state Legislature will soon have to face up to big decisions on tax increases. In the offing is a major upheaval in the way Californians pay taxes.

CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING provisions in bills now before the Legislature:

— Substantial income tax credits for renters.

— Higher individual income taxes.

— Payroll withholding.

— One per cent increase in the state sales tax.

— Increased bank, insurance and corporation taxes.

— Elimination of the oil depletion allowance.

— Higher taxes on capital gains.

— Higher inheritance taxes.

— Higher license fees for all motor vehicles.

— Reduced business inventory taxes.

And . . . a new, statewide property tax for schools.

ALL OF THESE except the statewide property tax for schools are part of the Democratic tax package sent to the Legislature last month by Assemblyman Joe A. Gonsalves of La Mirada, head of the powerful Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee. It is an ambitious and costly plan — totaling $2 billion more in taxes each year after 1971.

Home owners would be the biggest beneficiaries from Gonsalves' tax-shift program, receiving $1.1 billion in property tax relief starting this fall when the first county tax payment is due.

Homes occupied by their owners would be totally exempted from property taxes, but the land they are built on would stay on the assessment rolls. The portion of a duplex, condominium or cooperative housing occupied by the owner would also be exempted from taxation except for the land.

Renters would get tax relief totaling $290 million in 1971-72 through special state income tax deductions. Apartment buildings would not be exempted from property taxes.

Elderly home owners with low incomes would also get a property tax break. The state would reimburse seniors 62 and older for their entire property tax bill if their income was under $2,300 a year. Elderly home owners with incomes from $2,500 to $5,000 would be reimbursed for a percentage of their property taxes.

The Democrats' plan would raise $1.4 billion in new tax reveneus in 1971-72, of which $242 million would go to the state Department of Education to help ease the financial plight of local school districts.

The state would take over the administration of the four major welfare programs — Aid to the Aged, Blind, Disabled and Families with Dependent Children. County costs would be limited to 50 cents on the tax rate.

WHERE WOULD ALL the money come from? The $1.4 billion total for 1971-72 adds up this way:

— $808 million from personal state income tax increases including payroll withholding starting Jan. 1, 1972, and a reduction in the capital gains exemption from 50 to 15 per cent.

— $69 million from higher taxes on insurance company premiums.

— $88 million for higher vehicle license fees.

— $97 million from higher taxes on bank and corporation profits; elimination of the oil depletion allowance.

— $13 million from higher inheritance taxes.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Athlete Backs Two Coaches Who Quit

I am backing Coach Stan Tobiason and Coach Don Zile in their recent resignation from our track team. I myself feel that it would be most difficult to run a track team with someone else telling me whom I may or must run in any given meet.

Mr. Don Kreps said he didn't want to hurt the team in any way, but he did want Steve Levintow to be reinstated and entered into competition against Terra Linda on April 15.

He did hurt the team, in morale. There is a lot of mixed emotions and anger boiling up inside some of us. And worst of all we have lost two good and very qualified coaches, Coach Tobiason has been with me in both cross-country and track for all my four years at Redwood, and though I may have not always agreed with him (as most athletes don't always agree with their coaches) I feel I learned a great deal from him and I respected him. Coach Zile I've only known for this season. He's well qualified and informed about track, he can tell you what you do wrong and help you correct it in any event pertaining to track.

Replacing them with Mr. Paul Bosque, assistant principle (sic), isn't my idea of a good decision on Mr. Kreps' part; we need a good coach, not a fine administrator.

I hope Mr. Kreps will take a look at the situation our team is in and see what he can do to bring back to the team coaches Tobiason and Zile.

Must Officers Abide By Emily Post?

The police and narcotic agents in Marin County are doing an excellent job in apprehending the increasing number of dope pushers and with the help of most of our courts they are putting these characters in jail.

"A case in point." In the I-J of April 14, there was an item which stated that the charges in which four men were arrested in a drug raid at a motel had been dismissed, even though they had a large amount of narcotics in their possession at that time.

This took place in the court of Judge Joseph G. Wilson and his reason for dismissing these pushers, of all things, was that the narcotic agents had not knocked on their door and identified themselves.) Could be that Judge Wilson had the law on his side, which protects the civil rights of these characters. But if that was his reasoning, then I say it is about time that this law should be rewritten so that this interpretation cannot be taken again.

Going from the sublime to the ridiculous: If some of our courts appear to function according to rules and dictates of Emily Post in order to safeguard the civil rights of these law breakers, the courts should insist that the narcotic agents send a letter to the suspects, stating date, day and time they will knock on the door, so that the pushers can flush the drugs down the toilet and have their guns ready for the agents.

Grand Jury Should Probe Water District

How low will the Marin Water District sink? At one time, I had considerable respect for them, probably out of naive innocence. But the times they are a changing. From what the I-J reports, the general manager of the district has apparently lied on two occasions (to the I-J and to a young ecologist) about Phoenix Lake pollution problems. The district was found granting special favors of taxpayers land and thus money to a few influential business men (golf club and hunting club affair). Then, the district attempted to renege on a promise made six months ago to seek voter approval for any further financing of the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct. When that effort was thwarted by Assemblyman Bagley's refusal to submit the bill, the district appeared to recant and agree to go before the voters for funds. However, that wasn't the end of the funding problem. Assemblyman Belotti, R-Eureka, introduced the water district's bill for them, reportedly at the urging of lobbyist Robert Beckus.

My reactions to all this is — Who pays lobbyist Beckus's salary? Can the district directors be subject to a recall election? Is the grand jury taking a long, hard look into the legality and ethics of the water district operation? I only hope that the rest of Marin County citizens are as outraged as I am at this sham on representative government.

Track Team Member Blames Principal

I am a sophomore member of the Redwood High Trakk team. I would like to express my opinions on the recent resignation of our track coaches (Stanley) Tobiason and (Donald) Zile.

I and the majority of the team members feel we have lost a fine coach, promoted by the actions of Steve Levintow and Mr. (Donald) Kreps. I feel the team will suffer from the loss of our two coaches . . .

I personally feel that Steve Levintow is not dedicated to track, and would only like to stir up last year's hasslement of the coaching staff, and use it as a means of joining the team. I also do not see why Mr. Kreps must feel so inclined to help this undedicated person and attempt to run the coaching staff as a means of supporting his position. Mr. Kreps said that his concern is the welfare of the team. If it is, why is he killing it?

It was a month before our first meet that we started practice. I hear it wasn't until a month later that Steve Levintow attempted to come out for track . . .

I come to practice daily so as to be entered by the coach in the upcoming meet. Only once did I see Levintow out practicing. Steve Levintow, in his moments of weakness, went selfishly crying to Mr. Kreps, and Mr. Kreps being the good man that he is, stuck up for poor helpless Steve, and in the process overthrew the coaching power, and forced the coaches to quit . . .

SCOTT COCHRANE

So. Coaches Resign At Student's Whim

Wonderful, isn't it, that two talented and dedicated track coaches should resign in deference to the whims of a student — or is it?

New Relations With China Full Of Potential For Good

WASHINGTON — It is hardly possible to overstate the potential for good which can flow from the new move to improve U.S.-Chinese relations.

It may well lead to the most significant salutary single event of the decade of the Seventies — a new balance of war-restraining power among all of the principal nations in the Western Pacific — mainland China, the United States, Russia, and Japan.

What is happening is that Premier Chou En-lai and President Nixon are acting to escalate peace in Asia.

That's the potential of the steps which are now being taken by both sides — nothing less.

They're coming at the right time, in the right way, in the best climate.

THESE STEPS are meaningful because they serve the enlightened national interests of both countries and are coming into being at a moment when both sides need each other.

This is why minor incidents are of major importance. The presence of the United States table tennis team in Peking, the invitation to the Chinese tennis players to compete at Forest Hills are signs of larger contacts to come.

And they are coming rapidly because the time is propitious. These are the reasons:

The United States needs Peking's help to end the Vietnam war under the best possible circumstances.

Communist China needs to feel that in the United States it has at least a neutral friend because it fears Russian military power on its far-flung western borders.

PRESIDENT NIXON and President Johnson before him concluded that the prospects of peace would be enhanced whenever China was ready to become an open participant in the world community. The American people are ready for mutual diplomatic recognition.

With the end of the violent phase of the Cultural Revolution, the government of Mao Tze-tung is more stable and the mainland economy is improving. This means that Peking can come out of its self-imposed cocoon and apparently it is ready to do so.

These are the main reasons why hope for improved relations, which Mr. Nixon expressed two years ago when he unsuccessfully sought to resume the ambassadorial talks in Warsaw, are now beginning to be realized with a rush. Both sides have been getting ready to make happen what is now happening. This explains why, when the American players arrived in Peking, Premier Chou En-lai did not say, "isn't table tennis a great sport?" He said: "This opens a new page in the elations between the Chinese and American people."

WHAT, THEN, is the potential of what has now begun so auspiciously?

It will enhance the prospects of peace in the whole Pacific.

It will improve the often tense and uncertain relations between Red China and Japan.

It may induce North Vietnam to seek a new negotiated settlement of the Vietnamese war as Hanoi sees Peking and Washington working together.

It will promote a two-way trade in nonstrategic goods which will benefit both countries.

And, contrary to the judgment of some, improved relations between China and the United States may not alarm the Soviet Union. Mr. Nixon has gone out of his way to affirm to Moscow that he seeks no anti-Soviet alliance with Peking and that the whole thrust of U.S. influence will be against armed conflict between China and Russia.

There is a possibility that Moscow and Peking will be competing for American friendship.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Everybody's Against Babies At Washington Conference

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — It was a great week for the Pill. The Commission on Population Growth and the American Future held two days of hearings in the capital without attracting a single witness who would admit he was for population growth.

A survey by the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago found that only 27 per cent of active Catholic priests in this country believe all artifical contraception is morally wrong.

And there came in the mail a book entitled "The Baby Trap," by a long-haired blonde non-mother who makes the traditionally bewailed state of childless marriage out to be one long and fun-filled trip to Europe on money that otherwise would have been banked for diapers and braces.

More than any government-sponsored inquiry so far, the population growth hearings demonstrated how broad the public awareness of the danger of too many people has become.

Yet Robert H. Finch, the former secretary of HEW and now counselor to Mr. Nixon, entered a formal statement of government policy endorsing an end to population growth in America. The average family size should be brought down to two children, he said.

A spokesman for the United Methodist Church said the population should be leveled off "at the earliest practicable time."

A HARVARD DEMOGRAPHER said upgrading women's professional opportunities would give them something prestigious to do besides bear children.

A conservationist from the Sierra Club said man should adjust his thinking to putting the human race into the biophysical world instead of dominating it by his numbers and accompanying pollution.

A black woman stated again the feelings of some blacks that population control is aimed at reducing mainly the nonwhite growth rate, but left no doubt that she was for population control anyway.

The director of the family life division of the U.S. Catholic Conference spoke out against abortion, which was no surpirse, but even he devoted himself to the hows, whys and whens of population control, rather than whether. And even within the clergy of his own church he would find argument, as the Chicago study showed.

ALL TOGETHER, the witnesses at the Washington hearing proved their points with political statements, statistics and moral indignation. It was left to Ellen Peck, who did not testify but who wrote "The Baby Trap," to lay down a more self-centered but no less convincing case against babymaking. She did it in 245 pages. I can summarize it in three words: It's no fun.

Mrs. Peck is 28, taught junior high school before starting a column of advice to girls becoming women, and set the theme of her book in the title of its opening chapter when she quotes William Saroyan — "In the time of your life, live . . ."

But it is not all so selfish sounding as that She covers how manufacturers and the media gang up to glorify babies and motherhood, how husbands are disenchanted when they have to share their wives' time and affection with their children, how women usually, but not always, deteriorate physically and socially after becoming mothers, how not to have babies (birth control and abortion) and how to explain the decision to abstain from motherhood to friends and relatives. Then she returns again to the freedom a woman enjoys when she is not bound by children.

All this will infuriate a lot of women who already have become mothers, which is a condition hard to remedy. And Mrs. Peck might seem too much of a swinger for a presidentially suggested commission to solicit her testimony. But when the Commission on Population Growth holds its later hearings in Los Angeles, Little Rock, Chicago and New York, it might consider inviting her. She can offer the priests, politicians and gynecologists an attractive sales pitch, as when she concludes: "You're doing good for the world by not having children; You're doing good for the world by not having children; you can take credit for that, even if you decide to remain childless purely for reasons of personal advantage. Personal advantage and the larger social good do coincide, in this case."

Airport Over The Freeway? New Policy Makes It Possible

If the recently announced change in policy on freeways by the state Division of Highways is carried out, they will no longer resemble freeways.

They may be high-rise apartment houses, office buildings, airports or parking lots. Oh, yes, they will still be freeways, but they will be money-making freeways.

In the past, the highway commission has leased land under overpasses for such things as parking lots. This was done so that it would benefit the communities. Usually the rent was for such a nominal sum that it hardly paid for the bookkeeping involved.

Under the new policy, the land under overpasses and the space over freeways can be rented from the division of highways if it makes enough money to help pay for the freeways.

IMAGINE WHAT COULD happen in Marin county.

In downtown San Rafael, as the need for parking becomes more acute, the state will lease the land under the overpasses for parking. Then if land becomes more scarce, it would lease the space above the freeways for high-rise office or apartment buildings. It would resemble New York City where the subways run under and through buildings without disturbing them.

The freeways going through the heart of the city might not be any more than a series of high-rise office and apartment buildings.

IT IS CONCEIVABLE that a wide ramp over a straight stretch of freeway could be used as an airport for small planes.

During the Vietnam War, STOL planes have come to the forefront. These planes, named for Short Take-Off and Landing, have just that ability. They can carry 15 to 20 passengers at a much cheaper cost than helicopters.

This could solve the commute problem to the San Francisco and Oakland airports. STOL planes have been advocated as the best method of travel between smaller cities. Daily trips between Marin County, Sacramento, Santa Rosa, San Jose and other short distances would solve a commute problem that the larger airlines cannot do with the big planes.

The advantage of a runway right over a freeway would be that it probably would give the commuter a place to park his car. Then he could take an elevator to the upper deck where his STOL plane was waiting.

Everybody would benefit. The cars would not have to travel so far on the freeway. There would be less smog from them. The commuter would not have to leave the center of the city to catch a plane for short distances to other communities or the airports. The state would make money from the use of the space over the freeways.

In fact San Francisco might even consent to a freeway through that city if it was completely covered by buildings.

Riles: Local Schools Can Solve Issue

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Wilson C. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, said yesterday the U.S. Supreme Court's decision on school bussing "clarifies the situation once and for all."

"I think the people are ready to go along with integration as long as its feasible and reasonable," said Riles, the first Negro to hold statewide office in California.

Riles said he had no plans for his department to get involved in integration efforts.

The nation's highest court Monday validated bussing, pupil pairing and other racial balancing devices to eradicate school desegregation.

Riles told a news conference he "expected" the ruling and said it was consistent with the court's landmark 1954 decision outlawing separate but equal schools to preserve segregated classrooms.

He said it is now up to local school districts to draft integration plans that are compatible with parents and the court's rulings.

"Let's let local schools try to work something out," he said, adding that he didn't expect his office to interfere with local racial balancing matters.

"I don't see any need for my department or the state to do anything," said Riles. "Let's rather give local people a chance to solve it."

Riles also said he thought the Supreme Court's decision invalidated the remaining provisions of the antibussing law passed by the legislature last year. The act has been partially struck down by the state Supreme Court.

The state court said schools may assign pupils to specific schools for integration purposes but may not force them to go there on a school bus.

Riles said the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling upholding the right of states to bus or use other racial balancing devices eliminated this provision.

He said the invalidated act caused "needless hostility" throughout the state, which he described as a "multi-ethnic society."

"We ought to have a chance to get to know each other," Riles said and indicated he thought the best place to start is in the schools.

Statewide School Tax: Robin Hood Or Sheriff?

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Take from the rich and give to the poor."

This philosophy, which made a legendary hero of Robin Hood and a villain of the sheriff of Nottingham, is the basis of SB 801 and AB 1406 in the California Legislature.

These identical bills embody the state Department of Education's plan for equalizing the amount per child available for education in the more than 1,000 school districts within California and taking some of the burden off the taxpayers in the poorer districts.

Through a statewide property tax of $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation for school support, plus contributions from the state general fund, it would provide $767 for every elementary school pupil, $874 for every high school pupil, and $917 for every community (junior) college student.

Of the $3.75 tax rate, $1.87 would go to elementary schools, $1.50 to high schools, and 38 cents to junior colleges.

THIS WOULD BE quite a godsend to some districts, such as Ophir Elementary School District in Placer County, which in fiscal 1970 was able with a $2.35 tax rate to provide only $297 per pupil for what the state classified as "current expenses of education" (not the whole per-pupil cost, since it doesn't include everything).

On the other hand, it would be no help to the taxpayers of Vista Del Mar Elementary School District in Santa Barbara County, who in the same year paid a tax rate of only $1.23 to provide $1,065 for "current expenses of education" of each pupil.

To the school board and taxpayers of Ophir District, SB 801 and AB 1406 look like Robin Hood. To those of Vista Del Mar, they look more like the sheriff of Nottingham.

WHAT THE BILLS are all about is "equalization" — a word that appears frequently, but with little meaning, in the present school finance statutes.

The amount of money a school district can spend per pupil varies greatly because of great differences in assessed valuation. In fiscal 1969, according to figures prepared by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, the lowest per-pupil assessed valuation in any elementary district was $125; the highest was $1,156,872.

There are numerous state apportionments, each on a different complicated formula, intended to equalize this. But they don't do the job — which is why Ophir District had to tax its residents at nearly double the rate of Vista Del Mar to spend one-fourth as much money per pupil.

THE SYSTEM PROPOSED in the state Department of Education's bills would not put all districts on equal footing, either; but it would come much closer.

The statewide tax would replace an equal amount in the school district's local tax. Those districts now levying less than the amounts in the statewide tax would have to raise the minimum. Those levying more would have to reduce taxes if they are not spending more per pupil than the law sets up. If they are spending more per pupil, they could either reduce expenditures to the state level or adjust local taxes to make up the difference.

This would mean that Ophir could more than double its expenditure per pupil while reducing its tax rate. But if Vista Del Mar wanted to continue to spend more than $1,000 per pupil, it would have to levy a local tax to make up the excess above $767.

THE PLAN IS NOT likely to fail in the legislature because of the cries from the wealthy districts who see Robin Hood disguised as the sheriff of Nottingham, however.

If it fails, it likely will be because of opposition from the governor's office.

This is because the $3.75 statewide tax rate would not completely fund it. In addition, it would require $400 million more from the state general fund for next year than the schools received from that source this year. And Gov. Ronald Reagan has come out flatly against any increase in state taxes.

No Welfare Cutoff — Yet

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —U. S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli said yesterday he would not — for the present — enter an order cutting off all federal welfare funds immediately to the state of California.

Zirpoli said he felt himself "bound by the scope" of a stay issued by the U. S. District Court of Appeals, although he said he did not agree that the Court of Appeals had ruled on the issues he had asked it to decide.

Zirpoli last year ruled that California was in violation of the law for failing to adjust welfare benefits for families receiving aid to dependent children for increases in the cost of living.

He issued an order cutting off millions of dollars in federal welfare funds if the state did not do so within 60 days.

The state appealed the ruling to the Circuit Court, estimating the Zirpoli decision could add up to $3.1 billion "to the tax burden of California citizens."

The state called the federal requirements "a bureaucratic ritual". Negotiations between the state and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have been carried on since.

Zirpoli noted that in his decision last year he had rejected state requests for a stay, but "recognizing that there was substantial ground for differences of opinion respecting the correctness of the portion of the order requiring the immediate increase...certified this question for immediate appeal..."

Zirpoli said he did so believing the Circuit Court would rule only on whether the federal funds cutoff he ordered should be immediate, not whether it should have been ordered, a point on which he felt there was no ground "for differences of opinion."

He said the Circuit Court's Dec. 18, 1970, order, which stayed the entire matter, was a "procedural trap" he fell into because the state, in arguing the appeal, attacked not the timing of a cutoff in federal funds, but his authority to order one.

"As indicated earlier, there is no question about this court's authority and power to enjoin the receipt of federal funds and this question should not be the subject of a certification, a stay or an interlocutory appeal," he said.

"Nonetheless, this court feels bound by the scope of the stay order issued by the Court of Appeals."

Zirpoli warned, however, that if the parties try to modify the Appeals Court stay or take it to the U. S. Supreme Court, he will "enter an order enjoining forthwith in some manner the continued illegal expenditure of federal funds by the state of California."

He accused California of "flagrant disregard" of the U. S. Supreme Court, the California Supreme Court, the Department of Health Education and Welfare, and Congress.

All these bodies, he said, over the last 18 months have told California directly or indirectly "that it is not in compliance with federal law...yet...the state has refused to take any meaningful corrective action, while at the same time it continues to accept federal monies."

Hardline Stand On El Paso Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon Administration today strongly opposed any type of "forgiveness" legislation that would nullify the Supreme Court order requiring El Paso Natural Gas Co., to divest a competitor it acquired illegally in 1957.

"A legislative overruling of the court's order would do serious injury to the public interest in effective competition in the natural gas industry and, more broadly, to the entire program of antitrust law enforcement," Assistant Attorney General Richard W. McLaren declared.

McLaren, the Justice Department's antitrust chief, made the administration's views known at Senate Commerce Committee hearings held in Seattle to assess the consumer impact of the divestiture order in the 14-year old case.

Chairman Warren D. Magnuson, D-Wash., said government and business leaders from the Northwest had pleaded with him to introduce legislation nullifying the order on grounds it would lead to economic chaos and an engergy supply crisis in the Northwest.

The Supreme Court four times has ordered divestiture by El Paso of Pacific Northwest, a pipeline company it acquired. The court's most recent order remanded the case to a Federal Court in Denver to work out details.

McLaren said the Justice Department "strongly opposes the enactment of legislation which would relieve El Paso of the obligation of divesting properties acquired from Pacific Northwest and remedying the injury to competition resulting from the merger.

He said the department's proposed plan would require the setting up of a new company to receive the divested assets of the pipeline company it acquired.

El Paso delivered $578 million worth of gas to local distributors across the West last year, about $122 million of it through the pipeline acquired from Pacific Northwest.

"We believe that this would be the most effective way to put (the) new company in a position where it could compete for new increments of demand in the California market," he said.

HERE'S AN EASY version of the popular Italian cannelloni which uses a canned sauce instead of the "from scratch" method used by more authentic Italian cooks. It also uses spinach for a texture and color contrast.

Serve A Shepherd Stew

The spring lamb harvest this year promises to be an excellent one which should mean good buys and especially those lamb shanks. Here is a cost-conscious lamb stew.

SHEPHERD STYLE BEAN STEW

1 pound dry navy beans
2½ quarts water
1½ pounds lamb shank
1 onion, diced
1 teaspoon powdered ginger
Few grains pepper
1 cup shredded cabbage
1 cup diced carrots
½ cup diced celery
1 cup canned tomatoes

Put beans and water in a large pot. Bring to a boil and cook two minutes. Remove pot from heat and let stand one hour. Then add lamb, onion, ginger, pepper; cover, bring mixture to a boil, reduce heat and simmer gently for two hours. Add cabbage, carrots, celery and tomatoes; continue simmering till vegetables are tender, about 1½ hours. Remove lamb, cut meat off bones and return lamb to stew. Salt and pepper to taste. Makes six servings.

Glass fiber fabrics are easy to suds, rinse, and use again without ironing.

THE SPRING LAMB time is a good time to make this cost-conscious shepherd stew. It combines lamb shanks, vegetables and navy beans and is spiced with ginger, pepper and onions for full flavor. This recipe will serve six.

Try A Streamlined Recipe For Italian Cannelloni

Sunny as Southern Italy itself is this updated version of famous cannelloni. You still have a three-part symphony of pasta, filling and sauce, yet by using seasoned canned tomato herb sauce you eliminate one whole lengthy step of preparation.

The spinach gives interesting texture and color contrast as well as flavor to the cannelloni — makes them look handsome, too. Use a light hand with the dough, to assure its tender freshness.

As for the filling, double up on the cheese and you add depth.

Keep the Italian feeling of this special dish by serving it with just warm crusty bread, a big green salad, followed by fresh fruit for dessert.

TOMATO HERB SAUCED CANNELLONI

1 (10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
3 eggs, slightly beaten
3 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
Double Cheese Filling
1 (15-ounce) can tomato herb sauce
½ cup water
⅓ cup red wine (or water)
¼ pound thin slices Mozzarella cheese

Heat spinach over very low heat until thawed, then cover and continue heating 5 minutes. Drain well, pressing out all water. Combine with eggs; pour into center of flour mixed with salt in mixing bowl.

Blend, then knead about 5 minutes until dough is well mixed and forms a smooth ball. Roll out dough, half at a time, to 1/16-inch thickness on floured board. Cut dough into 3x6-inch rectangles; cook 4 or 5 at a time in boiling water 5 minutes. Drain well, pat dry; cover until all are cooked.

Spoon some of Double Cheese Filling down center of each cannelloni; roll up. Place seam side down, slightly apart in bottom of buttered 3-quart baking dish. Combine tomato herb sauce, water and wine; pour over all. Cover. Bake at 400 degrees 15 minutes. Uncover, arrange Mozzarella slices slightly overlapping down center of casserole; continue baking 10 minutes or until bubbly. Makes 8 to 10 servings of 2 cannelloni each.

DOUBLE CHEESE FILLING: Mix together 1 pound ricotta cheese, ⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon sweet basil, 1 tablespoon finely minced onion and 1 teaspoon salt. Makes abut 2 cups.

Are You A Versatile Cook Using Fresh Asparagus?

There is nothing that compares to the distinct flavor of asparagus. No other vegetable resembles it in shape or flavor.

To most, asparagus means elegance, served on special occasións. As to flavor, adults love it and children barely tolerate it.

The market is supplied by the Salinas Valley and Sacramento Delta into late June.

After the asparagus stalks are severed from the crown of the plant manually, the cut stalks are brought into the packing house. Here an assembly line of workers sort the asparagus by the diameter of the stalks. The sizing terms are: jumbo, large, standard and small. Each respective size is placed into a crate. "Jumbo" is almost an inch in diameter and the size graduates downward so that small is about a quarter of an inch. The pencil slim stalks in the retail markets are called "extra fancy" and "fancy." Large asparagus is higher priced than the small size. Which size has the best flavor is a personal preference.

Western asparagus comes all but ready to pop into the boiling water. It is washed during the chilling process at the packing house so there is virtually no grit. Just bend the stalk to snap off the tough portion. Leave it whole or cut into diagonal slices.

Buy asparagus that is cold and with the butt end moist. Keep the stalks cold and moist until ready to cook. "Standard-sized stalks run about 15-16 stalks to the pound and would serve three generously.

Asparagus is low calorie. One cup of cooked fresh aspragus is 35 calories with a fair source of Vitamins A and C.

One of the quickest ways to cook asparagus is to put two cups of water, ½ teaspoon of salt in an electric frypan or regular skillet. Bring the water to a boil. Fill the bottom with a layer of asparagus. Put the lid on and cook over medium heat. Check for tenderness in about four minutes, but it may take a couple more minutes.

Most western asparagus will be tender crisp with green color and delicious flavor within five minutes. There is no set time because each batch of asparagus will vary. Also try the quick-fry method for cooking asparagus called Fresh Asparagus Cantonese in the recipes. The garlic can be left out and a tablespoon of sherry or soy sauce added just before removing from heat.

FRESH ASPARAGUS CANTONESE

2 tablespoons oil
1 clove garlic, pressed
2 pounds fresh asparagus, sliced on diagonal
salt and pepper

In frying pan heat oil almost to the smoking point. Stir in Garlic Then add asparagus. Cover. Then, like popping corn, shake pan rather vigorously for 3-5 minutes. Asparagus should be tender crisp. Season with salt and pepper.

ASPARAGUS VINAIGRETTE

3 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup vinegar
¾ cup salad oil
Pepper to taste
1 bunch fresh asparagus, cooked and chilled
Pimiento

Combine all ingredients except asparagus. Shake or beat dressing until blended. Pour over asparagus in shallow dish and marinate in refrigerator for several hours. Garnish with bits of pimiento. Makes 4 servings.

ASPARAGUS-HAM ROLL UPS

1 pound asparagus
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon bottled steak sauce
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
4 slices cooked ham
4 slices processed cheese
4 frankfurter buns
Foil

Cook asparagus; drain and chill. Combine mayonnaise, steak sauce, and instant onion. Arrange cheese on ham slices; spread with mayonnaise mixture. Top with a few spears of asparagus. Roll up like a jelly roll. Place in frankfurter buns. Wrap in foil. Bake in 375° F. oven for 10-15 minutes until warm. Serve. Makes 4 servings.

SUGGESTIONS

On a bed of iceberg lettuce, put cold, crisp cooked spears garnished with crumbled bacon, grated hard-cooked egg and a cherry tomato cut in half. Serve with Italian or French dressing.

Combine cooked asparagus with sauteed chicken livers and green onion slices.

Cooked asparagus tossed with pieces of walnuts sauteed in butter and a dash of garlic salt.

They're Singled Out For Volunteer Efforts

Instead of honoring a single volunteer, the Volunteer Bureau of Marin selected four volunteers as its "Volunteer of the Year" at its annual meeting yesterday.

The bureau's executive director, Mrs. Marion Kelley, explained, "Our award has multiplied this year in proportion to our activities. We have grown and the number of people who keep our operation going has increased."

Award winners are Mrs. Eugene Demings, a general volunteer; Col. Deane Gough, volunteer administrator of the new Wheels for Marin transportation program; Robert R. Beebe, volunteer for the Department of Public Social Services; and Planned Parenthood of Marin, the first agency to be honored.

Mrs. Eugene Demings, a 50 year resident of San Rafael, is "the prototype of one of our greatest assets, the general volunteer", said Mrs. Kelley. In the past five years Mrs. Demings has been "on call for spot jobs". Her specialty is clerical work, handling mailings, filing, typing, answering the telephone. She works two mornings each week for the Red Cross and does one or two other jobs wherever she's needed, often at the Volunteer Bureau.

Mrs. Demings was once offered a paid job for a position she was temporarily filling as a volunteer. She says, "I had to turn it down. I couldn't face giving up the pleasures of being a volunteer. I really love the behind the scenes glimpses I have of the different agencies and the dedicated people who work for them."

"WHEELS FOR Marin is one of our most exciting ventures to date", says Mrs. Kelley, "and without Col. Deane Gough, volunteer administrator, we couldn't keep the wheels rolling."

Wheels for Marin is a county wide coordinated program, launched a year ago by the Volunteer Bureau for transporting elderly, ill and handicapped persons for medical, psychiatric and dental care they would otherwise be denied. The program assists some 350 patients a month, using 45 volunteer drivers and two donated full time vehicles (most of the volunteers use their own cars).

Colonel Gough, who started as a volunteer driver, now spends every weekday morning handling administrative and detail work of the program.

He recruits and trains drivers, maintains the vehicles, handles reports and correspondence with agencies, patients and doctors, prepares the agenda and minutes for steering committee meetings, and sometimes fills in as a driver.

After 30 years in the Army, the last 12 as a transportation officer, and eight as a math teacher, Gough says,

"I find more genuine satisfaction in this than either of my two other careers. People are being rehabilitated by our program and this is a rewarding thing for all of us."

ROBERT BEEBE gives the people of Marin 32 hours of his time dvewy week and loves doint it. For the past year he has been a volunteer employee in the department of Public Social Services, working in the eligibility control and validation section.

Beebe and his wife have lived in Marin County for 30 years. He retired from the railroad in July of 1969 and worked in his garden and on building projects at home until leisure began to pall. Mrs. Mary Boden, who directs volunteers for DPSS, was asked to put out a call for businessmen who would come and look at department procedures with an eye to discovering ways to cut costs and increase efficiency.

"This and the training and supervision of new volunteers have been Bob Beebe's main jobs for the past year", says Mrs. Boden, "and by now he is one of our most valuable volunteers." Additionally Beebe is now coordinating the Kappa Kappa Gamma Phone Pal Project within the department.

The Board of Supervisors have appointed Beebe a member of the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee. He is serving on two of its subcommittees; public information and quality of services rendered by DPSS. He recently received a special award from the supervisors for outstanding services to the community.

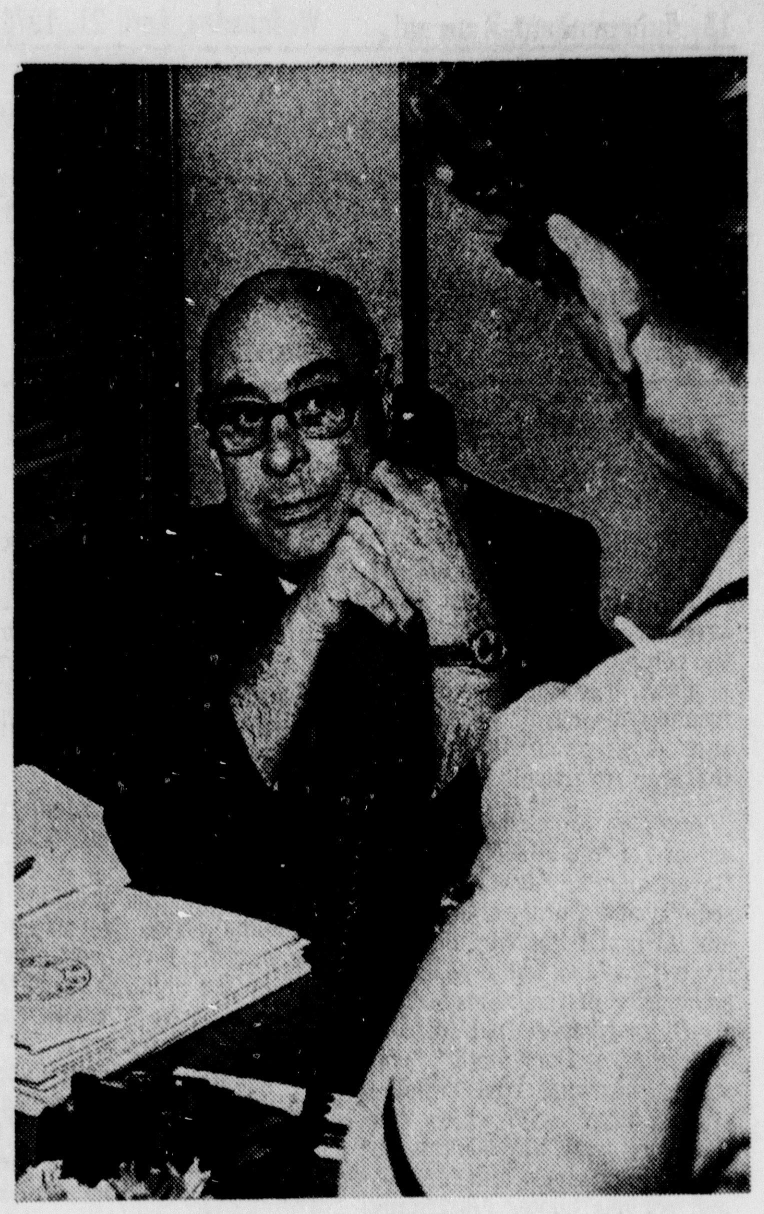
"The Volunteer Bureau refers about 80 volunteers a month to various agencies", says Mrs. Kelley. "Part of our job is to be concerned with what happens to the volunteer after leaving here. Planned Parenthood of Marin has a particularly outstanding Volunteer Program. A sophisticated training course and a professional approach in the way they Treat volunteers are a large part of their success."

PLANNED PARENTHOOD volunteers work a four hour shift in the office once a week. Their duties include greeting patients and identifying their needs, selling birth control supplies to enrolled patients, making appointments for visits and pregnancy testing, answering the telephone and either referring questions to staff or providing general non-technical information about the agency's programs.

"Being a volunteer here requires dedication and committment,'' says Mrs. George Lawrence, volunteer coordinator and herself a volunteer. "We have about 25 general volunteers (an additional 33 are nurses and lab technicians) ranging from young married women without children to grandmothers, and they all share this dedication."

Mrs. Terence Grew, orientation chairman, says that the goals of Planned Parenthood's training program are to familiarize the volunteer with all phases of the agency's activities as well as the more specific training for their own job. Training consists of four three hour a week group sessions and then two or three sessions on the job with a trained volunteer. Initial training is reinforced by monthly volunteer workshops, where any new procedures are described and volunteers can discuss problems.

LINDA BELDON, a new, enthusiastic volunteer at Planned Parenthood likes her job because, "We're providing a service that couldn't be done by anyone else. We're doing our part to solve the population problem but, more important, we're helping people with their personal problems and I'm glad to be a part of this.''



VOLUNTEER — Robert Beebe has been singled out for an annual award by the Volunteer Bureau of Marin for his donation of 32 hours a week training and supervising volunteers for the Department of Public Social Services at the Civic Center. Here he pauses to talk with Mary Boden, who directs volunteers for DPSS.

SKILLED AND reliable volunteers such as Mrs. Eugene Demings, left, are what keeps much of the agencies' clerical work going smoothly, and Mrs. Demings has been singled out as a Volunteer of the Year. HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Isn't the Government Report On Obscenity Free Advertising?

DEAR HELEN:

It always amuses me when I read a story about a girl being arrested for "soliciting," and the complete name and address is given. If she gets out on bail (usually the case), you can be sure business improves with that free advertising.

Now I've come across another case of free advertising. The Government's Report on Obscenity and Pornography is in our library. I thumbed through it today and found a list of some fifty of the "most offensive" magazines, names and addresses of the "adult" book stores carrying the wildest stuff, ratings as to which was the worst and why — this on books, magazines, and films — and copious quotes illustrating what's dirty, and what has "redeeming social value."

All an interested person need do is refer to this book and he's on his way to pre-graded pornography. He can even get quite a bit of it in the report.

I realize the commission came out against censorhip, but must they all but sponsor "pay dirt"? — LAUGHING, KIND OF

DEAR LAUGHING:

A report isn't a report unless it names names and gives examples.

I'm laughing-kind-of too, for I suppose you realize you just gave the book you condemn a heap of free advertising. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I was a widower for several years, then met this woman and married her. She left me after three months to return to her mother whom she evidently couldn't live without.

I happen to know that my mother-in-law is running a business under my wife's name so that she can collect Social Security at the same time.

I want my wife and our expected child back. Should I threaten to turn the mother in if she doesn't make her daughter return to me? I've dug up enough on "Mamma" to give her a good scare. — LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME:

If threats are your way of winning back a wife, I don't wonder that she left. Change your tune or you'll always be a soloist. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This is in answer to "Ardent but Annoyed," whose husband has the "paws that repulse." Mine, too.

I would love a kiss or an occasional embrace, but no: He grabs, pokes, pinches. I feel his only interest is in my body, not me, and I'm constantly embarrassed in front of the children or friends. I've tried to explain, but he says there's something wrong with me. Why can't men see that this turns basically warm women cold? — W.B.

DEAR HELEN:

I just had to tell "Ardent but Annoyed? she is not alone. Don't get me wrong. I think children should be brought up in a home where they can see their parents love each other, but they are quick to know the difference between really caring and just the sex urge.

A husband who holds your hand, gives you a loving pat, has something nice to say to you and makes you feel sheltered in his arms will find he has created a passionate, happy, eager partner, after the bedroom door closes, or when they are alone.

I hope my husband reads this and understands a little better. He, too, has felt rejected at times, because he simply can't understand that women respond to gentleness. — HOPEFUL

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent Journal.

EXCHANGING VOWS in a redwood grove at Samuel P. Taylor Park, Robert Burkhart and Kerry Mertle were married Saturday in Renaissance style attire. A string quartet played Bulgarian and Macedonian folk music during the ceremony. Kerry is the daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Mertle of San Rafael. The couple will live in San Rafael after an Hawaiian wedding trip.

Hems Hover At Knee-Lengths

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI)—The leg fanciers appear to have won. The French winter ready-to-wear fashion collection this week sticks to short lengths and virtually banishes midi-maxis in favor of knee-hovering hemlines.

"Hot pants," under warm capes and coats or in luxurious fabrics for evening, proved they were not just a passing fad by making an appearance in the 21st biannual ready-to-wear exhibition of some 725 French designers and manufacturers this week.

The leg, in fact, hidden by midcalf and ankle-flapping clothes for a couple of seasons, made a comeback and was back in view. Ready-to-wear designers, following the cue of Paris high fashion that hiked skirts for spring last January, compromised with hemlines hovering from top of the kneecap to just below.

SOME MANUFACTURERS said it was the anti-midi mood in the United States and Canada that forced the French to make what may be the fastest fashion retreat in costume history and one of the biggest French retreats since Waterloo.

The shorts in view in the ready-to-wear exposition halls at the Salon de Versailles and private showrooms were the only dizzy note. Paris clothes have calmed down to sober, classic coats and dresses and even suits, which have not been in such profusion for years.

The long trouser suit also won out over knickers and gauchos and was prominent in almost every collection. Some houses tried long, full trousers gathered at the ankle. Only a few houses catering to young girls stuck to their principles and displayed midi dresses, maxi coats and knickers and even brought back some mini dresses.

WHAT THE high fashion houses will do in their winter collections next July will exert even more influence on the perpetual Paris battle over whether women should have the choice of any length.

Some deluxe, ready-to-wear designers announced they decided to end the "anarchy" in fashion by forming their own organization, "Gep," and laying down a "party line" as to length, and even styles. The member designers staged their own show at the Hilton Hotel, and all the models, true to the rules, had the same styles and colors.

The "Gep"-regimented line included long trouser suits for both day and evening, suits with long belted jackets, fitted coats with belts and fox or beaver collars and hembands, cocktail dresses at the knee, long evening gowns and shorts worn with matching jackets, capes or suits.

The general look of the ready-to-wear shows is a narrow silhouette with a natural, belted waistline and shoulders wider than usual through capelets or turned up shoulder taps like a Buck Rogers suit. The new fabric is Scotch plaid, often shaggy and rough, for capes, coat linings, coats, trousers and dresses.

Thick, quilted cotton also joined the winter fashion lineup. The big coat style is the "secret agent" trenchcoat, often with short, detachable capelet.

The muddy colors of the past season also have been abandoned by the Paris ready-to-wear, with yellow, apricot, orange, bright blue and kelly-green coats sparkling in many collections. Wide, decorative zippers abound on coats in the shows often were printed or embroidered. Geometric and "art nouveau" prints still are with us.

The World War Two look of Yves Saint Laurent's high fashion shows last January had little effect on the French winter ready-to-wear, except for some square-shouldered blazer jackets, long curly hair, bright lipstick and platform-soled shoes.

Cosmetic Industry Racing To Improve Ahead Of Law

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Consumerism is having an effect on the cosmetic industry. It is racing to make voluntary improvements before public demands for them become expressed in new restrictive laws.

The principal industry organization, the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association has formally asked the Food and Drug Administration to set up two procedures under its authority to police cosmetic products.

One would require producers of such items to register with the agency in Washington. The other would require producers to supply the agency with lists of ingredients for each product sold to the public.

The only catch is that the latter information would be kept confidential and would be used only by government officials. Presumably, the government could then issue warnings and take action on the basis of the information, but the lists could not be released to the public.

This may not sound like much of a step forward in view of the increasing need of the public for information that relates to personal allergies. But it is a major breakthrough for an industry that sells beauty, miracles, the "natural look" and other promises with mysterious, secret formulas.

Critics of the industry, including some females, insist that disclosure of actual ingredients would reveal that many expensive products contain little more than cheap emulsifiers, waxes and perfumes.

Others say that most buyers don't really want to know what lies underneath the pretty, nice-smelling substances as long as there is no danger of getting an allergic reaction from them.

For many years, the industry has successfully resisted efforts to require cosmetics to be tested for safety before they can be sold publicly. Most manufacturers already do test for their own protection. to cut down the chance of being sued for injuries.

Few buyers realize that the government does not have power to require such testing and can take action against a cosmetic product only after it has compiled evidence of personal injury.

Although injuries are a serious matter — hair dyes have been the most dangerous — the proportion of injuries to total sales is extremely small. So the issue has not received much publicity.

Apparently, the industry has decided that the best way to fend off perennial attempts to require pre-market testing for safety and demands for disclosure of ingredients on labels is to move ahead in other ways. Its recent petitions were approved by Association directors after many discussions with members over a long period of time.

The Association is also trying to get industry approval for a set of voluntary guidelines to assure product quality through adherence to certain manufacturing practices. Keeping products free from bacterial contamination has been a constant problem, especially for skin lotions.

The chief crusader for more control over cosmetics is Rep. Leonore Sullivan (D-Mo.), the author of bills in each Congress for pretesting products for safety.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, April 21, the 111th day of 1971.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus. Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson was born April 21, 1893.

On this day in history:

In 753 B.C. Rome was founded by Romulus, according to ancient legend.

In 1954 U.S. Air Force planes began flying French troops from Paris to Indo-China to reinforce the beseiged bastor at Dienbienphu.

In 1967 the Greek army took over control of the government.

A thought for today: French novelist Andrew Maurois said, "Housekeeping in common is for women the acid test."

Ross Boy, 9, Hurt In Crash

A 9-year-old Ross boy was injured Sunday at 2 p.m. when his bicycle collided with a car at the intersection of Meadow and Laurel Grove avenues in Kentfield, it was reported yesterday.

Eric Van Meurs, of Skyland Way, was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruised head and shoulders and possible concussion.

The California Highway Patrol said he was riding his bicycle south on Meadow Avenue when he turned left onto Laurel Grove and collided with a westbound auto driven by Robert M. Dorinson, 20, of Laurel Grove Avenue, Ross.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

South Must Reply Upon The Diamond Run for Slam Count

Everybody in the world suffers from a sense of insecurity. Everybody, that is, except certain bridge players. These placid souls simply draw trumps at the first opportunity, relying on that procedure and on a kindly Providence to shield them from all harm. It doesn't work, but at least they remain placid.

RUFFS HEART

South ruffed the second heart and drew four rounds of trumps. Then he took his three club tricks, reserving the diamonds until the end.

East, who was not an agent of the aforementioned kindly Providence, had saved all of his diamonds and defeated the slam with the jack of diamonds. "Nice try," East remarked admiringly to South. "If there had been a fifth suit, I'd have wondered whether to save the diamonds."

"No need to apologize," South replied graciously. He hadn't quite understood East and didn't like to make a fellow bridge player unhappy. South needn't have worried since his faulty line of play had actually made East very happy.

ONLY TWO ROUNDS

South should make the slam by drawing only two rounds of trumps and then taking the top diamonds. If the six missing diamonds happen to divide equally, there is no danger in testing the diamonds before drawing all of the trumps.

If the diamonds happen to divide unequally, South's best chance to dispose of his fourth diamond is to ruff it in the dummy. And if South wants to adopt such a plan, he must keep a trump in the dummy.

TOP DIAMONDS

After taking the top diamonds and ruffing the fourth diamond, South returns to his hand with a club and draws the rest of the trumps. The slam is then safe and South can recover from his temporary feeling of insecurity.

Aid To Users Of Closed Bridge

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Aid will be provided for persons who suffered losses as a result of the closure of the Antioch Bridge, Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, has announced.

He said Monday that persons with claims for damages should file their claims with the U.S. Northern District Court by May 5. He said they could send claims to his office at the state Capitol by April 30.

The bridge was put out of commission last Sept. 4 to Jan. 18 as a result of being hit by a ship.

ART REVIEW

Flexibility In Machine Study

By KAY KSANDA

Every month at the Art and Garden Center in Ross, the Marin Society of Artists presents a show with a different theme and what it hopes is a pertinent look. Considering this month's theme, "The Machine Aesthetic," the paintings, graphics, sculpture, and one rope hanging are not as mechanical as one might expect.

Of the 608 artists, only 38 are represented in this show which is dominated by the medium of assemblage. The premise for the artist is to create an idea within the theme, translate it into a conveyable medium, then craft it with design and technique.

One of the obvious problems is: what can be done with wheels that has not already been done to death?

A macabre answer from Suzanne Gomberg is a real skull resting on the innards of an old ticker tape machine. A radio voice inside the machine reads off the quotes, while the machine silently squats on its reams of shiny black tape. Titled "Machinator" the entire assemblage-sculpture is encased in an orange plexi-glass cube.

Next to "Machinator" is a long wood-metal assemblage. Although the idea is familiar, the collage-wall hanging of found woods, copper wheels, and iron scraps framed in copper, gleams with tints and resins. The untitled work by Joyce Valprey effects harmony and beauty.

There are some strong paintings, unusual collages and a few graphics. A sparkling large graphite by John Harte titled "Barbary Coast," is a representation of a player piano's workings designed within the Pompein ornamentation of the once-famous building. Created in circles, squares and rectangles, the semi-abstract patterning has humor as well as balance and freshness.

Along the same wall is a pristine embossed design called "Geometrics," by Eleanor Bender. In modern terms, where composition is not considered, it has purity in its use of white with white in milky richness.

Phyllis Taplitz's woodcut "Odessey" is a small, but dramatic surprise in clear blues, reds and yellows leading like roads to the hot rectangle of what seems to be a factory.

Fred Herschleb's watercolor-collage titled "Hello, Hello, Or The Time They Dug Up The Phone Cable" is a powerful painting combining a marvelous ideas with excellent design and craftmanship. From the severed cables spew "K's, E's, K's, A's," letters that tumble and jumble to the ground of tinfoil. Broad flat geometric planes of blue, grey, and alizrian crimson shape the picture.

Award winners are "Barbary Coast,'' graphite by John Harte; "The American Scene," collage by Phyllis Taplitz; "Machinator," sculpture by Susan Gomberg; "Cosmic Blues," a striking two-dimensional plexiglass hanging by Nelcy Tarics; and "Hello, Hello . . .," watercolor by Fred Hershleb. shleb.

Honorable mention should go to the hanging committee for their sculpture blocks and walls of sepia, black, and white. The show will run through May 2, daily from 1 to 4 p.m.

Four School Budgets To Be Studied

Four different plans for use of existing school facilties in the Sausalito School District and the budgets each proposal would require will be considered by the district board at a special meeting at 7 p.m. today in Bayside School.

The four proposals are: 1. All grades at Martin Luther King School including moving of portables to King and dividing school into sections for older and younger chldren; 2. Grades 1-8 at King, with kindergarten at Manzanita School; 3. All grades in existing facilities at King and 4. Kindergarten through fifth grades at Manzanita with remaining grades at Bayside.

Although Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg did not have exact cost figures for implementing each plan, he has prepared four budgets for operating the district next year, each one incorporating one proposal.

The total district budget needed for plan one would be $957,035, according to the superintendent, while the second plan would mean a $951,673 expenditure. The third plan would require a $922,048 spending program, he said, and the fourth proposal would require a 1,247,455 budget.

Yellowstone In 'Bad Shape' For Confab

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., says Yellowstone National Park is in such bad shape that a major part of the celebration marking its 100th birthday next will probably will have to be held somewhere else.

Melcher said accommodations and conditions in the park are such that an international conference on national parks — a feature of the centennial — will probably be held at nearby Grand Teton National Park.

Zone Board Adopts A Budget

The Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board has adopted a $407,000 budget for 1971-72, most of it earmarked for improvements along Novato Creek.

Charles E. Murphy, Marin County flood control engineer, estimated the budget approved by directors Monday night will carry a tax rate of 23 cents per $100 assessed valuation, up 3.5 cents from the current rate.

The budget is $103,800 higher than the current budget, but there is $234,000 in carryover funds, leaving $172,900 to be raised by taxes, Murphy reported.

Directors decided that $325,000 should be designated as "Novato Creek Project Reserve" for any needed creek improvements.

The Army Corps of Engineers is working on a plan to cover both Novato and Warner creeks.

Murphy said the corps' project calls for improving Novato Creek to Highway 37, but provides only for dredging beyond that point.

Directors supported interim zoning in the lower Novato Creek area, so development can be controlled to avoid problems in future creek work, Murphy said.

Controversial Pastor Due Seminary Job

A clergyman charged before a Senate subcommittee with allowing his church to be used as an arsenal for Black Chicago street gangs, is expected to be appointed lecturer at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Trustees will vote May 4 on the administration's recommendation of Rev. John R. Fry, 46, as visiting lecturer. Fry will teach for one year at the school, if approved, and will not be a member of the seminary's regular teaching staff, according to Michael F. Hughes, vice-president for development.

He will teach social ethics at the castle seminary, oldest and largest graduate school for the clergy in the West.

Fry, a white minister, resigned April 5 from his postion as pastor of Chicago's First Presbyterian Church and the following day 23 members of a black street gang he worked with were indicted on federal charges of defrauding funds intended for a training program for ghetto youths.

Before a 1968 Senate subcommittee he was charged by witnesses as having allowed the Blackstone Rangers — now known as the P. Stone Nation — to store arms in his church.

Governing bodies of the Presbytery of Chicago and First Church labeled the charges unfounded along with others claiming Fry condoned drug parties and encouraged extortion.

"He is a brilliant man and a popular teacher,'' said Dr. Arnold B. Come, seminary president, and a friend of Fry. Come said the seminary received a grant for Fry to teach there from the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

He said Fry will spend about half of his time teaching and the other half studying and writing. He currently teaches part time at the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago.

Astronomy Meeting Speakers Slated

Dr. Garrison Sposito, physics professor at Sonoma State College and Dr. Richard H. Gammon, currently doing postgraduate astronomy study at the University of California at Berkeley, will be guest speakers at 6 p.m. Saturday at a Bay Area astronomy meeting at San Rafael High School.

The meeting, sponsored by the Star Observers of Marin, is open to the public.

17th ANNUAL

'Rhubarb Revue' To Open Friday

The 17th annual "Rhubarb Revue" will roar into the Tamalpais Valley Community Center Friday, complete with musical and theatrical satires of most of today's burning issues, including women's liberation, the generation gap, hippies and doctors.

The event - the oldest continuing show if its kind in Marin - is sponsored by the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club and will run for four consecutive weekends with shows scheduled this Friday and Saturday and April 30 and May 1, 7, 8, 14 and 15.

The revue will be presented at 8:30 p.m. each night in the Tamalpais Valley Community Center, Marin Avenue and Tennessee Valley Road, according to publicity chairman Jack Adams.

Directed by Bernie Healey, who has directed about six of the shows in past years, the revue will feature 18 individual acts, including skits, singing and dancing.

Adams said the revue received its name during a heated discussion over what to call the show, which began in 1955. "As the meeting was about to $reak up, one club member shook his head and said: 'What a rhubarb!" he recalled, "and that became the name."

Proceeds from the revue will benefit the improvement club's building fund and help pay for the newly-completed community center, according to Adams.

Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Robert M. Glessner, 432 Live Oak Drive, Tamalpais Valley.

High School Vocalists To Give Show

The Vocal Message, members of the vocal methods class at Novato High School, will present a musical variety show, "One Night of Love, Act II," at 8 p.m. Friday at the old gymnasium at the school.

Performances also will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Proceeds will go to the music department's scholarship fund and children under 12 will be admitted without charge, reported John W. Enders, choral instructor.

The audience will be seated at tables in a caberet atmosphere and student singers will impersonate noted singers, Enders said.

Scholarship Winners To Perform

Winners of scholarships offered by the Marin County branch of the Music Teachers Association of California and a member of the Young Artist Guild will present a concert Saturday at 8 p.m. in the choral hall in the Fine Arts Building of the College of Marin.

Scholarship winners in four categories performing in the first half of the program will be lower elementary, Stephen Moyer, 10, Mill Valley; Dan Hill, 9, Mill Valley; Jimmy Walker, 9, Corte Madera.

Jet Noise Bill Envisages Hike In Air Fares

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Airline passengers would foot the bill for a five-year program to reduce jet aircraft noise proposed Monday by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

The Senator said the legislation could result in at least a 50 per cent reduction in noise which unnecessarily plagues up to 10 million people.

The Cranston bill would require noise suppression equipment to be installed in some 2,000 commercial jets by the end of 1974.

The legislation would authorize $1 billion in federal loan guarantees to help airlines finance the program and a 1 1-2 per cent fare increase to enable them to repay the loans.

In addition, the bill would authorize a $35 million research program to develop noise dampers for jet engines.

Coors Reports Big Collection

The Adolph Coors Co., which has been buying back aluminum cans in Marin for 13 months, announced it collected 2.4 million pounds of cans in 11 western states in the first three months of this year.

Coors' purchaser in San Rafael, Golden Gate Distributing Co., 1942 Fourth Street, takes all aluminum cans, regardless of manufacturer, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Mondays and Fridays.

Since it began its cash for cans program last year, Coors reported, it has bought back almost 200 million cans and paid out $865,231.

The program is not restricted to Coors cans. Coors pays 10 cents a pound — about 23 cans — for the returned cans and announced in February that all of the company's beer bottles are returnable for one cent each.

Pleads Innocent To Charge Of Stabbing

Robert J. Rector, 36, of San Francisco has pleaded innocent in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon said a preliminary hearing would be held tomorrow at 9 a.m. Rector was arrested April 11 after Icalee Fears, 34, of 217 Petaluma Boulevard South, Petaluma, said he stabbed her in the abdomen during a quarrel.

1970 IN MARIN

94 Per Cent In Felony Convictions

By MARY LEYDECKER

Ninety-four per cent of the felony crimes disposed of last year in Marin Superior Court ended with convictions, the third highest rate in the state, according to statistics just released.

Figures provided by the Bureau of Criminal Statistics of the Department of Justice also revelaed:

1. Marijuana offenses and burglary were the most numerous types of felony charges in Marin.
2. The overwhelming percentage of defendants in superior court were Caucasians.
3. More than two-thirds of the defendants were sentenced within six months after they were charged with crimes in superior court.
4. The highest number of persons in Marin's history, 38, were sent to state prison.
5. The most common sentence, however, was probation with some jail time.

Marin Asst. Dist. Atty Gary W. Thomas said that the statistics showed that only Ventura (97.2 per cent) and Kern (96.6) per cent surpassed Marin in conviction rates in 1970.

Out of a total of 311 defendants in Marin Superior Court whose cases were concluded last year, 293 were found guilty either through their own pleas or after a trial.

By far the greatest number, 260 pleaded guilty at some point in their court proceedings.

The 18 cases which ended in dismissal included only seven in which the defendants were actually acquitted. The other 11 were dismissed either on a motion by the district attorney, for lack of evidence, transfer of the case to juvenile court or in three cases, because the defendants had died.

(The figures do not reflect felony cases dismissed at the municipal court level.)

Only two homicide cases were handled last year in superior court, and both defendants went to state prison.

Marijuana accounted for 86 cases, in which 75 of the defendants pleaded guilty, six cases were dismissed and one person was acquitted. Of those convicted for marijuana offenses, there was an even split (39) of those who did jail time and those who didn't.

One youth was sentenced to the California Youth Authority, but no one went to state prison last year from Marin for a marijuana conviction.

For the 66 persons convicted of burglary a jail sentence was the most common penalty. Six burglars were sent to state prison, however, and four were committed to the California Rehabilitation Center for drug addiction treatment.

In addition to the marijuana cases, there were 35 felony cases involving opiates, dangerous drugs and other drug offenses. All ended with convictions.

The racial breakdown of the 293 persons convicted of felonies included 251 Caucasians, 30 Negroes, 9 Mexican-Americans and one other race, which was not specified.

No breakdown as to sex was available.

The time defendants waited for their cases to be disposed of ranged from less than a month for 25 persons to more than two years for one defendant charged with a marijuana offense.

About two-thirds of the defendants, however, were sentenced within three months to one year after they were charged in superior court.

In addition to the 38 persons sent to prison last year, five youths were sent to CYA from superior court. Robbery was the crime accounting for the most prison sentences, with seven persons sentenced to prison.

Six were sent to prison for burglary convictions.

A total of 214 defendants received probation, with jail terms included for 135 of these. An additional 25 persons received jail sentences without being placed on probation. Seventy-nine persons were placed on probation without getting jail sentences.

A total of seven persons were committed last year for drug addiction and two defendants were turned over to state mental hospitals.

Marin had cases involving all the types of crimes listed by the justice department ranging from assaults and other crimes of violence through such offenses as forgery except for one category - no one was charged-with bookmaking in Marin last year.

Giants' Win Streak Ends; Bonds Hurt, Out Of Lineup

ij Sports

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A difficult struggle has ended for Reggie Cleveland.

The 22-year-old Canadian righthander of the St. Louis Cardinals literally "sweated out" his first victory in the big leagues Tuesday night, a 2-1 win over the San Francisco Giants.

Cleveland sat nervously in the Cardinal clubhouse as veteran reliever Moe Drabowsky struck-out the final two Giant batters with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to end a nine-game San Francisco win streak.

"I was really sweating it out in the clubhouse," Cleveland said after the game. "It's been a long wait for that first win."

Cleveland held a 2-0 lead over losing pitcher Juan Marichal until the eighth inning when Tito Fuentes singled home San Francisco's lone run of the evening.

Frank Linzy replaced Cleveland and ended the eighth inning threat, only to load the bases in the ninth. Drabowsky, still strong at age 35, came in to blow his fastball past Rookies George Foster and Fran Healy to save Cleveland's victory.

"I've always had trouble getting my curve ball over the plate," Cleveland said. "But tonight it was breaking hard for strikes. I think I simply lost my concentration in the eighth inning, and I'm happy that Moe did such a great job."

The loss could be costly to the Giants, who will have to do without speedy outfielder Bobby Bonds for awhile. Bonds sprained his right ankle when he jammed his foot against the first base bag on an attempted pickoff by Cleveland in the third inning.

Doctors were to decide today how long Bonds must sit out. X-rays were taken Tuesday night. Ken Henderson, almost fully recovered from a sprained thumb, will replace Bonds in the starting lineup.

While young Cleveland savored his first major league win against six career losses, the Giants' ace Marichal absorbed his first defeat of the season compared to three wins.

Joe Torre, who has hit safely in all 14 Cardinal games, drove in the first St. Louis tally in the fourth inning with an infield hit. He scored moments later on a double by Ted Simmons.

A pair of the league's best righthanded starters were scheduled to take the mound today in the final game of the Giants' current homestand. Gaylord Perry (3-0) was slated to face Bob Gibson (2-1) of the Cardinals.

A'S WIN, 4-0

'Catfish' Stings Angels

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The Oakland Athletics have served warning they expect to prove thorny obstacles to the California Angels by taking the first game of the opening series between the clubs Tuesday night.

"Taking the first one gives us a chance to sweep the series," Oakland manager Dick Williams commented after the 4-0 victory.

The victory ended the Angels' seven-game winning streak and also a two-day stand at the top of the Western division. Oakland took over first place with the victory.

The game was highlighted by the three-hit pitching of Jim "Catfish" Hunter and the hitting of Sal Bando, who had two homers and drove in three runs.

"My arm was not as limber as it will be later in the season," Hunter said. "I kept throwing a ball on my first pitch and getting myself into trouble."

It was Hunter's first win after two losses but Williams said he saw signs in his hurler's last outing that he was rounding into the form that made him an 18-game winner last year.

"Hunter's a major league pitcher and you wait," said Williams. "In the first few innings he didn't have his velocity or control but he's a knowledgeable pitcher and got out of trouble."

Bando credited coach Irv Noren with correcting a flaw in his swing that snapped him out of a batting slump.

"I had gotten one hit in 17 times at bat before I beat out a dribbler," Bando said. "But in my last two times at bat in the second game against Chicago I hit a homer and a double."

The third baseman in his last six times at the plate has hit three home runs, a double, a single and walked.

"Noren noticed I was dropping my bat and locking my elbow," Bando said. "As soon as I corrected that, I started hitting."

Angels manager Lefty Phillips said there was nothing wrong with his team that a few hits wouldn't correct.

"We have been fortunate in getting the pitching in our first 13 games. Now we need more woodwork. I hope the hitting comes around."

The loss went to starter Tom Murphy to make his record 1-2. Murphy allowed five hits in five innings but three of them came in the fourth to bring him the loss.

'Bench' Is A Key Factor In Bucks-Bullets Series

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Five men will start for both the Baltimore Bullets and the Milwaukee Bucks when the two teams square off tonight for the first game of their best-of-seven series to determine the championship of the National Basketball Association.

But as all good fans know there is an important aspect to any championship team that is not found among the starting five. That part of the team is called the bench.

Milwaukee Bucks' coach Larry Costello is very aware of this fact and he says that the key to Milwaukee's beating Baltimore four out of the seven games is the bench.

"We've got to get help from our bench if we're going to make it," Costello said.

Tonight's game will be televised by ABC (Channels 7 and 11, 6 o'clock).

The help Milwaukee is going to have to get must come from three men — Dick Cunningham, Lucius Allen and Bob Boozer.

Cunningham and Allen have played admirably all season spelling Lew Alcindor or, in Allen's case, either Oscar Robertson or Jon McGlocklin.

Boozer, on the other hand, has had his ups and downs. He has been good and not so good when he has filled in for the two Milwaukee forwards, Bob Dandridge or Greg Smith.

But what has given Costello and all Milwaukee fans hope has been the play of the 33-year-old Boozer in the playoffs.

In the fourth game of the Milwaukee-Los Angeles series, Boozer scored 16 points on 8 baskets in 10 attempts, pulled in 7 rebounds and blocked five shots. He followed that performance with 11 points and 9 rebounds in the final game against the Lakers here.

Boozer could play a significant role in the Bucks' quest for a championship since Baltimore's front line matches up pretty well with Milwaukee's.

At center Wes Unseld has been effective in the past against Alcindor. Especially in Lew's rookie year, Unseld occasionally gave him fits. This year, Unseld has been strong on the boards pulling down an average of almost 19 a game during the playoffs while averaging 12.9 points.

Alcindor has averaged 26.4 points during the playoffs and has pulled down 16.4 rebounds per game.

John Trevsant will play opposite Smith and Smith has a slight edge in scoring — 12.2 points in the playoffs to 8.6 points for Tresvant. Smith also has a slight edge in playoff rebounding 8.7 to 7.7.

At the other forward, Baltimore's Jack Marin has the edge over Dandridge. Marin has averaged 21.2 points per game in the playoffs to Dandridge's 18.8. Dandridge has pulled down 9.5 rebounds per game to 9.9 for Marin.

In the backcourt Earl Monroe averaged 23.7 points per game to lead the Baltimore attack and Fred Carter averaged 14.4. Kevin Loughery, the third Bullet guard has also averaged 14.4.

McGlocklin hit at a 16.5 clip during the playoffs for Milwaukee and Robertson at a 16.2 pace. Allen averaged 7.2 per game.

Statistically both teams seem pretty even, but in championship playoffs those statistics very often don't mean a thing. It may very well come down to which man can come off the bench and do the job. Both the Bullets and the Bucks have good men sitting on the bench, but the nod has to go to Milwaukee.

Marin '9' Is Back In Third

Barely 24 hours after they defeated Santa Rosa Junior College to move into first place in the Camino Norte Conference baseball race, the College of Marin Tars are back in second.

Glenn Yamamoto belted a pair of home runs, the second a three-run shot in the 10th inning, to lead the Bear Cubs past the Tars, 10-7 yesterday in Santa Rosa. Marin thus fell back to third place, behind Santa Rosa and league-leading West Valley J.C. of Campbell.

Yesterday's game was almost a complete reversal of Monday's affair at Kentfield, in which the Tars prevailed, 10-8. In that one, pitcher Chris Roland got the win, and yesterday he was tagged with the loss as he worked the final three innings in relief of starter Gerry Goodrick.

Marin shortstop Steve Hendrickson doubled home Dee Fedrick in the ninth inning to tie the score after Roger Offenbach brought the Tars within a run in the seventh with a triple that scored Jim Peters. But Yamamoto, who got the Bear Cubs on the scoreboard with a bases-empty homer in the third, hit

San Marin Erupts

The San Marin High School Mustangs were overdue to explode at the plate. In four Marin County Athletic League baseball games prior to yesterday they had a total of 11 hits, and only two of them were for extra bases.

Well, explode they did, thumping three home runs yesterday to rack up their first league win of the season, 9-7 over San Rafael High at Albert Park.

In other MCAL contests, Novato ran its first place record to 5-0 with a 4-2 decision over Marin Catholic, and Drake edged Redwood in the ninth inning, 3-2. Terra Linda and Tamalpais were postponed until today because no umpires showed up for the game in Mill Valley.

San Marin posted five runs in the first inning and got four more in the third to hand the Bulldogs their fourth straight loss after an opening game win. With a strong wind blowing out to left field, Jack Burnam cracked a two-run homer and Steve Burden belted one good for three runs in that first inning seige. Dave Ilchert got the third inning rally going with a leadoff circuit shot. Ilchert and Burden had two hits apiece.

The Bulldogs were no slouches themselves as they muscled up for three doubles. Gary Nelson slammed two of them and a single for a perfect afternoon. Leftfielder Holt Green and third baseman Jim Thorne each had a pair of singles for San Rafael.

In Novato it was a pitching duel between lefthander Mike Lamb of the Hornets and righthander Tom Olson of Marin Catholic. Only seven hits were recorded by both teams, but the Wildcats of Kentfield committed a couple of costly errors in the first, when Novato scored two times to take the lead for good.

First baseman Steve Pond had a hand in both of Novato's other scores doubling home a run in the third, and scoring on a single by Lamb in the sixth.

Lamb got the win, and he deserved it, as he struck out 10 batters and didn't walk anyone. Olson also went the distance.

Drake pitcher Lex Rzepelia went the distance, surviving a harrowing bases loaded situation in the top of the ninth to get credit for his team's second MCAL win of the year. He allowed a run but got out of the jam with a pair of strikeouts and a pop up.

Pitch-Hit-Throw Contest Slated

Registration in the San Rafael area for the nationwide Major League Baseball Pitch, Hit and Throw competition for boys 9 through 12 is going on and will run through May 20.

Competition will be held May 29 at Albert Park, according to Gary Frugoli, recreation supervisor of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department.

Each boy competes with boys his own age in three events — pitching for accuracy, hitting for distance, and throwing for accuracy. Winners are determined on the basis of total scores.

Champ Bowler Don Carter In Comeback

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Former world champion bowler Don Carter plans to go back into competition on the pro circuit, it was announced today.

Carter, who last year was voted the greatest bowler of all time, has been bowling league games in nearby Canoga Park in an attempt to get his game back into top form. He hasn't won a pro tournament since 1962.

With his right knee healed from an August 1970 operation to repair damaged cartilage, the 33-year-old man with the strange-looking "push away" style says he's ready to go.

"I've never felt better," he said. "I've adjusted my pushaway and suddenly I'm in full control."

Carter will compete in the $50,000 Bellows-Valvair Open in June in Anaheim, Calif.

MONTEREY (UPI) — Veteran Formula A driver Frank Maitch of Australia has joined the field for the $35,000 L&M Continental Championship road race May 1-2 at Laguna Seca raceway. Maitch is the third foreign driver to enter the speed classic.

THERE GOES ANOTHER AARON BLAST

Hank Aaron gets a little closer to the 600 home run mark with this swing against the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Atlanta slugger hit his 598 homer last night in the first inning to give the Braves a 2-0 victory over the Pirates in Pittsburgh. Story on page 24.)UPI Telephoto)

Speier Gets My N.L. Rookie Vote

Chris Speier is on his way to Rookie of the Year honors in the National League. It may seem a bit early to vote Speier the 1971 crown since the baseball season is only a couple of weeks along and has a long way to go.

But Speier is a young man who has fulfilled every prediction made for him. Indeed, the 20-year-old shortstop sensation of the Giants has made extravagant predictions now seem conservative.

"HE CAN run, hit, field and throw and does all of it pretty well," said Charlie Fox during the spring training. The manager of the Giants should have said Speier does it all extremely well.

"If we're wrong about this young man," said Horace Stoneham during spring training, "we know nothing about the game of baseball." The president of the Giants never previously said that about a raw rookie with only one year of minor league experience.

"I GOT TO BET on this fellow," said Jack Schwarz last winter, long before spring training started. "Speier's a throwback, a breed of baseball player not common anymore. He reminds me of old timers like Frankie Frisch and Bill Jurges."

Such salutations might have puffed another rookie so full of self esteem that he would begin pinching himself to make sure it wasn't all a dream. Not Speier. Not for a minute did the 6-1, 175, whiz kid from Alameda doubt that he was destined for major league stardom. And he never doubted that he would take the shortstop job away from Hal Lanier in spring training.

"I CAME to camp to make the big team," said Speier, "not the Phoenix roster."

Speier never played for Phoenix, the Giants' AAA farm club in the Pacific Coast League. Ordinarily a rookie whose only previous pro experience had been one year in AA baseball at Amarillo in the Texas League would have been delighted with a promotion to Phoenix, especially when he was merely a non-roster invitee to the Giants' 1971 spring training camp.

BUT SPEIER, as Schwarz sensed when he signed the young man in the winter of 1969, was no ordinary ball player. "I don't think anything is going to stop him," said Schwarz. "He's a very determined fellow."

In 28 spring training games Speier hit .295, demonstrated that he could turn over the double play with either Lanier or Tito Fuentes as his second base DP partner, and made only three errors.

But could he make the DPs in games that count? A back muscle spasm kept him out of the Giants' road opener at San Diego April 6. Thereafter, he was in 15 double plays, 12 of them on the all-important pivot relay. Furthermore, he hit .298 (14-for-47). His errors were minimal (2).

AFTER THE first two weeks of the 1970 season, the DP production of the Giants was six in 13 games. This year after 13 it was 20, with Speier's fast release of the ball on the pivot primarily responsible.

Utah Stars Lead ABA Playoffs

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Stars need only one more victory to move into the American Basketball Association championship playoff round.

The Stars took a 3-1 lead over Indiana Tuesday night when they trimmed the Pacers 126-99. The series now moves to Anderson, Ind., for the fifth game Thursday night.

Utah was never threatened in game No. 4 as the Stars moved out to a 33-13 lead after the first quarter thanks to the shooting of Willie Wise, who scored 11 of his team's first 20 points. Zelmo Beaty paced the Stars with 22 points and Wise finished with 19 while Billy Keller led Indiana with 20.

The Eastern Conference final playoff between Kentucky and Virginia resumes tonight at Louisville. Virginia leads the Colonels 2-1 in the best-of-seven series.

Rancho Cotate Record: 5-0

The Rancho Cotate High School Cougars stretched their North Bay League II record to 5-0 with a 15-2 win over Analy High yesterday afternoon.

It was the fourth victory in a row for winning pitcher Dane Jacobson. Jacobson struck out 5 and allowed five hits in going the route for the Cougars.

The Rancho was sparked by a host of strong bats including Gary Disharoon who slammed a fourth inning triple and went a total of 2 for 4 at the plate.

Rancho Cotate will try to keep the momentum going Friday when it takes on El Molino in a game to be played in Rohnert Park.

Petaluma Nine Edges Napa

Petaluma High School's hard hitting third baseman Mark Ross smacked a first inning home run that drove in two runs for the Trojans as they defeated the Napa Indians 4-3 yesterday in North Bay League 1.

The Trojans scored again in the second inning and in the sixth. The Indians committed five errors, two of them resulting in Petaluma scores.

The Trojans have a bye Friday and don't resume action until Tuesday when they take on Santa Rosa. Petaluma now boasts a 3-2 league record.

STANLEY CUP PLAYOFFS

Hawks, Canadiens Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Dennis Hull had to demonstrate that brother Bobby isn't the whole Stanley Cup Show for the Chicago Black Hawks and Jacques Lemaire had to prove he still has the old scoring touch for the Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night as the Clubs won their first semifinal round games.

Bobby Hull scored six goals in Chicago's opening round for-game sweep over Philadelphia, but hasn't been able to beat goalie Ed Giacomin in the ranger series. Dennis Hull, however, upheld the family honor with two goals as the Hawks shut out New York 3-0 to even their best-of-seven series at 1-1.

Lemaire, used sparingly in the first five games of Montreal's seven-game triumph over Boston, rammed home three goals in the Canadiens' 7-2 mauling of Minnesota to take a 1-0 lead in that series.

Chicago received perfect goaltending from Tony Esposito as the Hawks avenged last Sunday's overtime loss to New York. Cliff Koroll, who scored the Hawks' lone goal in the opener, gave Esposito the margin he needed when he whacked in a rebound off Giacomin's pad with 2:06 left in the first period.

Dennis Hull tallied Chicago's other two goals, his first of the series. Dennis skated down ice with Koroll on a two-on-one breakaway and beat Giacomin at 14:06 of the second period. When the rangers lifted Giacomin in the final minute of game in favor of six forwards, Dennis drilled the puck into an empty net just 15 seconds shy of the final buzzer.

Coach Billy Reay, who keeps saying "I just hope we're ready," found his Hawks more than a match for the Rangers.

"Still, I didn't think there was a great deal of difference between the teams in either game," said Reay. "It was a great team effort both nights. They have a little more experience and depth and have been using six defensemen.

Reay cautioned that "these are physical games because they're so emotional" and that he was glad Chicago didn't lose the psychological edge the club had after pinning Philadelphia four straight while New York was beating Toronto in a seven-game series.

Lemaire used the seventh game of the Boston series as a spring-board for his scoring spree against the North Stars. The veteran center, who scored 28 goals during the regular season, assisted on three goals in that game.

"I just had to prove myself and these three goals gave me the chance," said Lemaire. "I wasn't used much against Boston, but I prefer the wide open style of play and there's lots of room to skate against Minnesota."

The Montreal forward equalled a playoff record shared by four others when he scored all his goals in one period. His first goal at 11:07 of the second stanza gave the Canadiens a 2-1 lead and he added goals at 16:33 and 18:51 to climax Montreal's four-goal period.

Marc Tardif added two goals, while Frank Mahovlich banged home his eighth goal of the playoffs and Guy Lapointe netted his first of the post season games.

Minnesota grabbed a 1-0 first period lead on Danny Grant's goal, but couldn't score again until Bill Goldsworthy beat rookie goalie Ken Dryden at 17:12 of the third period.

Montreal plays host to Minnesota in the second game Thursday. The Chicago-New York series switches to Ranger Ice the same night.

Penn's Harter To Oregon U.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dick Harter, head basketball coach at the University of Pennsylvania, who led the third-ranked Quakers to 28 straight wins before losing to Villanova in the NCAA quarter-finals, has resigned to become head coach at the University of Oregon.

Harter, 39, coached the Quakers to a 26-0 record this season in regular play, the first time the Penn squad ever compiled an unblemished basketball season record.

Hank Feels No Pressure Of 600

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Hank Aaron, the superstar baseball takes for granted, doesn't feel any pressure on the threshold of becoming the third man ever to hit 600 homers.

He's too busy thinking about becoming the first man to hit 715.

"I'm a long way from it right now but I think I'm better than even money to hit 715," Aaron said Tuesday night after his sixth homer of the season — and 598th of his career — gave the Atlanta Braves a 2-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Only Babe Ruth at 714 and Willie Mays, who has five this year and 633 in his career, are ahead of him.

The so-called 600 "barrier" — which was difficult for Mays to reach in 1969 when he hit only 13 all year — doesn't seem to bother Aaron. "I don't think going for No. 600 adds any pressure," he said.

The incredible thing about Aaron's career is that despite his splendid play, he has seldom captured the imagination of the fans. They just take his excellence for granted without getting excited about it. Aaron also has had the disadvantage of not playing in a world series since 1958 and he's also spent his entire career in two cities — Milwaukee and Atlanta — far from the communication centers like New York and Los Angeles.

Aaron homered in the first inning off Bob Moose after Ralph Garr beat out an infield hit to produce the only two runs of the game and support Phil Niekro's six-hit pitching.

In other games, Philadelphia blanked Montreal 1-0, Chicago edged Houston 3-1, Cincinnati nipped New York 3-2, Los Angeles beat San Diego 6-2 and St. Louis edged San Francisco 2-1.

In the American League, Boston edged Cleveland 4-1, Washington beat New York 7-2, Chicago routed Milwaukee 7-1, Minnesota beat Kansas City, 5-4, Detroit topped Baltimore, 7-6, and Oakland blanked California 4-0.

Johnny Bench's fifth homer of the year — a two-run blast in the eighth inning off reliever Danny Frisella — gave Cincinnati its victory over the Mets. Pete Rose hit his first homer in the first inning for the Reds' first run. Duffy Dyer's pinch single produced New York's only two runs in the seventh.

Rookie Roger Freed drove in the only run of the game with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and Chris Short pitched a three-hitter as Philadelphia blanked Montreal. Rookie Ernie McAnally went seven innings in his first start and suffered the loss.

Ferguson Jenkins pitched a six-hitter and Ron Santo hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning as Chicago beat Houston to snap a four-game losing streak.

Richie Allen's two-run single and Bill Russell's two-run infield hit highlighted a six-run third inning that carried the Dodgers to victory over San Diego. It was the Padres' seventh straight loss.

Redwood In Track Triumph

Redwood High School's track and field team, with new coach Russ Hill at the helm, pounded Marin Catholic, 90-48 yesterday, moving the Giants' record to 3-1 in Marin County Athletic League play.

The meet, a makeup of a rainout several weeks ago, was highlighted by triple winner Don Nelson from Marin Catholic, who took the 100 and 220-yard dashes and long jump.

Redwood's only double winner was Joe Clark in the 180 low hurdles and 120 highs.

PREP SWIMMING

Terra Linda, Novato Win

With Rick DeMont and Thom Guthrie contributing double wins, the Terra Linda High School swim team smashed San Rafael High School 79-16 in a Marin County Athletic League meet yesterday at Terra Linda, while Novato belted rival San Marin 65-30.

Guthrie took the 100 and 200-yard freestyle races, while DeMont took the individual medley and backstroke for the Trojans.

Dave Behrans and Roger Rechsteiner nabbed two races and John Summerfield improved his 1971 best diving score to pace the Hornets to the victory over the Mustangs.

With the win, Terra Linda closed out its league season with an unblemished 10-0 mark, while San Rafael is currently 4-4 with two meets to go. Novato raised its mark to 6-3, and San Marin dropped to 2-6. Both Redwood and Drake were idle yesterday.

A protest lodged by San Rafael coach Bill Ranney against the Redwood swim team was approved by League Commissioner George Corson. The protest concerned the eligibility of transfer student Dave Drake for MCAL dual meets, and caused the removal of all points scored by Drake in the 1971 season. The loss of these points will take away the Redwood win against San Rafael.

All other Redwood meets are unaffected by the ruling. The Giants' won-lost mark with these additional losses is reduced to 4-4.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Time For Spring Chores Once Again

Spring boating chores in this day and age of fiber glass and aluminum boats are a far cry from the old days of wooden boats when there was a lot of scraping, sanding and painting.

However, there are still quite a few fitting-out techniques dating back to the wooden boats that can still be applied to modern plastic or metal runabouts. For example, when a deck cleat or some other kind of fitting works loose, don't just screw it back on, but refasten it with a nut and bolt that goes right through. Use a hardwood backing block on the inside. The fitting will probably never work loose again.

But it's still possible that you may have some sanding to do. For instance on mahogany trim or interior woodwork, and if you use a mechanical device make sure it is a belt sander rather than an orbital, oscillating or rotary gadget. The belt sanders don't leave scratches or marks that will show through a fine paint or varnish job.

Household detergents are great for washing the inside and outside of a boat and general spring cleaning chores. But there are some household products to avoid.

Don't use putty or plastic wood to fill cracks or gouges. They strink and weather very badly. Get the recommended marine fillers for the job — they are tried and true.

There are many and varied problems to fitting out or "summer-izing" the modern small runabout, its engine and accessories. That's shown by some of the quesgions I have been asked:

Q. My boat trailer has been sitting outside all winter. Is there anything I must do before I use it?

A. Definitely. Dismantle, wash and re-lubricate the wheel bearings . . . or have it done at a service station. To set out on even a moderate trip without doing it is asking for trouble. The cost is only a few dollars.

Q. If I fiber glass the blade of an oar, must I carry the covering all the way up to the handle!

A. No. As long as the shaft is well protected with varnish so that no water is able to soak into the wood and get under the fiber glass covering. The swelling would force it off. Cgvering oars or paddles ia a good idea. It prolongs their life indefinitely.

Q. My canvas top has shrunk so badly that the snap fasteners won't meet. Can it be stretched?

A. The experts I've contacted say no. It is possible to have extra material stitched on so that it will fit again. Everybody seems to think you stored it wrongly, or it wouldn't have shrunk. It should have been left on the boat.

Q. Oars or paddles are a nuisance to carry in a boat. Any suggestions?

A. Make the "pair" into a single item by slipping a rubber band cut from an old inner tube over each end. Then, depending on your boat, you can devise some kind of hook or peg just under the gunwale that the rubber bands can be slipped over.

Q. My friend made a bracket to carry an extra (smaller) outboard on his boat, both as a spare and to troll. Can such brackets be bought?

A. Yes. We avoid trade names in this column, but there are at least three competing brands sold by marine dealers. See yours.

Tars Host Santa Rosa Trackmen

With hopes of beating Santa Rosa Junior College for the first time in recent history, College of Marin's track and field team will host the Bear Cubs tomorrow at 3 p.m. in a dual meet on the Tars' field in Kentfield.

If the Marin cindermen win the meet, which might go down to the final event — the mile relay — it would end their dual meet season with an even 4-4 record. Their most recent victory was last Friday, 87-44 over Skyline J.C. of San Mateo.

The Tars will be led in the Camino Norte Conference meet by Ted Cain who is involved in some of the top 10 Northern California J.C. times. He's ranked sixth in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles, 54.8, and seventh in the 440, 49.3. He anchors the Tars' mile relay team which has a best of 3:22.4, ninth best in the state.

Room For Growth In Home Products

BY ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We need advice on American Home Products. We have 139 shares at an average cost of $37 and have an option to purchase 75 more at $58. Should we sell and take the profit, exercise the option or what? — L.M.

A. Unless you need additional income, I would not sell your commitment in American Home. Although at present levels you have an approximate 106 per cent profit, there is still considerable long-term growth mileage left in this issue.

Company sales and earnings have grown at compound average annual rates of 10.3 per cent and 9.6 per cent, respectively over the past ten years with no slowdown apparent. Even in 1970 when economic conditions were generally unfavorable for corporate profitability, American Home turned in a 9.8 per cent gain in per share income on an 8.5 per cent rise in net sales.

If you wish to increase your position in this stock, I would by all means take advantage of the option you mentioned - at $58 a share you would be buying American Home at around 24 per cent below current market quotes.

Q. I hold 10 Florida Turnpike Authority Revenue 4¾s of 2001. A while back you discussed another toll revenue bond which was in arrears. I now wonder if there is any danger for my bonds? — A.T.

A. Because in most cases turnpike authorities meet bond interest and sinking fund requirements solely from toll revenue, there is a wide latitude in safety margins from one turnpike issue to another. The ailing bond previously discussed here was Series C Chesapeake Bay Bridge & Tunnel. In 1970 revenues of $7.6 million were collected, which, after expenses, covered only 62 per cent of annual interest requirements for all series.

The Florida Turnpike Authority Revenue bonds are another story altogether. Collections last year of $24 million covered interest obligations by 377 per cent after expenses were met, a substantial improvement over a decade earlier when coverage was only 199 per cent.

Prices Fall Second Day On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices closed lower for the second consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday. Turnover was fairly heavy.

The setback was largely attributed to an extension of Tuesday's profit taking which interrupted a two-week upswing. However, also unsettling investors were a Commerce Department report of a decline in March durable goods orders and a statement by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that the Soviet Union had started building a new, extensive ballistics missile system which "must be of major concern" to the United States.

Last month's decline in new orders for durable goods—a leading economic indicator—was the first drop since last October, when the strike at General Motors Corp. was substantially responsible for a 4 1-2 per cent decrease in orders.

Of the 1,688 issues crossing the tape, declines led advances, 827 to 553. A turnover of around 17,000,000 shares compared with 17,880,000 shares traded on Tuesday.

Diebold, Inc. was weak in the wake of a disappointing earnings statement.

Prices were weak in moderately active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Graphic Arts, Salin Printing Combine Their Operations

Two Marin County printing firms, Graphic Arts of Marin, Inc. of Sausalito and Salin Printing and Advertising of San Rafael, have combined their operations under the Graphic Arts name.

BERNARD MOSS of Graphic Arts will continue as president and Lothar Salin, who has headed the San Rafael firm for the past 21 years, will become executive vice president. Offices will be maintained in both cities, with Salin remaining in the San Rafael area. All other personnel will be retained.

Graphic Arts now expects to have access to greater production capacity and versatility in creative work, general job printing and publications. It is likely that plant equipment will be concentrated in one location.

OVER LAST WEEKEND, the motorcycling Greenblats, Merle (Sandy) and Marilyn, moved their triving two-wheeling Marin Motorsports from 1560 Fourth Street to 1101 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael.

The Greenblats, who have occupied the Fourth Street store for the past five years, no longer need worry about curb parking to display their Hondas, Triumphs, Kawasakis and Husqvarnas. Johnny Ribeiro Builder constructed a 12,000-square foot building for them on a one-acre site, with enough room to show off the various models and also test them.

PLANNED SECURITY PROGRAMS in San Rafael has moved from Mission Avenue to 304 Reynold Johnson Building at 1299 Fourth Street.

This represents an expansion in marketing the company's payroll deduction retirement plan and managing director John Hyams will be taking on additional sales representatives.

RICHARD TURNER of the KTIM Turners has returned to the San Rafael radio station as sales manager. For the past five years he has been manager of KTIM's sister station KBLC at Lakeport.

A PROGRAM OF WORKSHOPS on employee relations techniques is being initiated under the joint sponsorship of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, Dominican College and Gary Nelson and Associates, San Rafael.

The first series of three sessions, for retailers only, will be held in Room 207 of the library at Dominican College from 7:30 to 10 p.m. on the next three Mondays - April 26, May 3 and May 10. Registration is $20 and should be made with the Marin County Chamber office. It is limited to 30 persons.

A SERIES OF THREE free lectures on investments sponsored by Waldron and Co., Northgate Industrial Park will be held tomorrow night, Thursday, April 29, and Thursday, May 6, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Bank of Marin's Community Room, 1 Mitchell Boulevard at the Northgate park.

Terrence H. Howard of Santa Venetia, director of research for Waldron, will conduct the series and answer questions. Reservations should be made with Miss Brose at the Waldron office.

A CREDIT GRANTER SEMINAR, sponsored by the Credit Bureau of Marin County will be held tomorrow from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Edgewater Inn, Corte Madera. The course is conducted by Walter Collins on material produced by Glen D. Ruddy, a credit consumer consultant.

Cost is $20, including tuition and several manuals. Registration should be made with the Credit Bureau of Marin County, San Rafael.

RALPH W. GOUSHA JR. of Novato has been appointed an agent for the Redwood Empire district of Prudential Insurance Co.

Banker Proposes Tough Penalties For Polluters

OAKLAND (BW) — Banker Fortney H. Stark Jr. has suggested enacting a felony pollution law — with penalties up to five years in prison —for use against top corporate officers whose industries cause pollution.

"Throw a few chairmen of the board in jail for polluting the air and water, and you'll see pollution disappear quite rapidly," Stark said.

"You'd also probably see some pretty drastic prison reforms."

Stark, president of Security National Bank, delivered the luncheon speech at the 20th annual educational symposium of the California Environmental Health Association.

He singled out General Motors Chairman James M. Roche as an example of an industrialist who "totally misunderstands what is happening in America today.

"In a recent article in U. S. News & World Report, Mr. Roche tries to convince us that 'corporate responsibility' is a catchword of enemies of free enterprise, and that American business is already fulfilling its responsibilities by providing jobs and making money for its shareholders.

"After reading the article, I had the distinct impression that Mr. Roche doesn't feel that eliminating auto pollution is one of General Motors' responsibilities because it would cost too much."

Stark said most corporations are so profit-structured that they fail to see the wisdom of spending money to clean themselves up.

"People like Mr. Roche say, 'I won't change unless everybody does, because I'll lose money.' This is a man who made $795,000 in 1969, or $379 an hour and controls a budget of $24 billion a year, an annual budget larger than any state in the nation and every country in the world except the U. S. and Russia.

Stark said corporations working cooperatively could halt pollution in a surprisingly short time if they wanted to.

"The corporations of America have tremendous power and know-how, and when high corporate executives say their hands are tied because of their responsibility to their shareholders, they're not telling the truth."

He said, "Top corporate officers consider themselves the ultimate of good citizens in private life, but as long as their companies continue to poison the environment, they would just as well be classified as criminals.

"Pollution is a lawless act, an act of violence against our natural resources. Up until recently, this violence has been countenanced by public opinion, just as other lawless acts in our history, such as killing Indians, have been socially acceptable.

"The reckless destruction of our environment can no longer be tolerated by large segments of our society, so we start looking for ways to prevent it, and we are confronted by seemingly impregnable, depersonalized institutions.

"If it's a crime to pollute, whom do we charge? Maybe we should charge those in command. They're responsible for it.

"Felony pollution. That would be an interesting sort of charge, especially with penalties up to five years in prison."

Stark noted that "in 99 per cent of the cases, business is the negative force in defeating ecology laws through lobbying and public relations activities. Its role has been to protect itself from laws that might cause expense or siphon public money into other endeavors such as rapid transit.

"Business lobbyists have retarded new, creative legislation by their unwillingness to accept new ideas. This self-serving approach will eventually be self-defeating.

"If the public gets aroused — which it is — there's no way that corporate lobbyists can win the war, regardless of how many dollars they spread among legislators, because in the end it's the people who elect or defeat the legislators, and the people are getting angry. When they get mad enough, the legislators will listen to them instead of the lobbyists."

German Investment Abroad Goes Up

BONN (UPI)—West German investments abroad since 1952 have reached about 20 billion marks ($5.4 billion) but only one-half of it was outside Western Europe.

A report by the Ministry of Economics said the largest area of German investment outside Europe was Brazil, which received 1.45 billion marks ($392 million) during the last 19 years.

Tiburon Closer To Joint Police Plan

The Tiburon City Council on receiving a report last night on the implications of a joint police force for Tiburon and Belvedere, instructed its staff to cooperate with Belvedere city staff in selecting a consultant to advise both city councils.

The report by the cities' joint police study committee stated that a common force would give both cities as good service for the same money, or better service for more money than separate police forces now cost.

The report also called for a determination of such matters as the governing body for such a joint force, how to apportion functions and facilities and location of equipment.

The council discussed hiring a consultant for $1,000 to $2,000 and paying for it out of the Tiburon funds, unless Belvedere offered to pay part of the expense.

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood suggested getting an officer from the state commission on Peace Officers' Standards and Training which would not cost the city anything.

The council asked that the two cities' staffs study hiring consultants or getting one from the state and report back at its May 10 meeting.

The Tiburon City Council also:

HORSES — Received a draft of an ordinance requiring a use permit to keep a horse, but turned it over to city staff to reword. The proposed ordinance included horses but did not mention ponies or donkeys, nor set standards for shelters for the animal and how close these stables could be to nearby homes.

PATHWAYS — Asked staff to get a definite proposal from Brown Heldt Associates of San Francisco on designing the walkways from Main Street to Mar East. This proposal is to be presented at 7:30 p.m. next Monday at city hall.

LEASE — Accepted the city manager's proposal to offer Fred Zelinski a three-year lease on the city hall instead of the five years lease which Zelinski has asked. The city now pays $575 per month on a lease that expires July 1. Zelinski wants $700 per month on a five year lease.

LOT SPLIT — Approved a lot split for Ralph C. Noah for a lot at 6 Rolling Hills Road.

TOWN HOUSES — Approved both the tentative and final maps of Vistazo Towne Houses. The final map is not to be recorded until owner Philip V. Abend of 1410 Vistazo puts in the landscaping according to a plan approved in 1963.

BOTTLES — Authorized staff to prepare an ordinance for its May 10 meeting prohibiting the local sales of non-returnable bottles and containers.

PICKUP — Set May 3 to 7 the free pickup of rubbish in the city.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. next Monday in the city hall.

Opposition To Span Approach Traffic Pattern

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — City traffic engineers have opposed a federal plan that calls for barring intra-city traffic from the controversial Doyle Drive approach to the Golden Gate Bridge.

The National Transportation Safety Board said in a special report that the mingling of crosstown and bridge traffic on the drive was a hazard. It said such a traffic flow could have been the cause of an auto collision last July that killed ten persons.

The report urged that only motorists crossing the bridge be allowed to use the approach.

Norman Bray, a city traffic engineer, said Tuesday the only alternative would be to divert downtown traffic into already overcrowded city streets.

Assistant planning director Ed Murphy said the barring of downtown traffic was "pretty drastic."

"If the federal board says there are alternative routes for the crosstown traffic, I wish they'd tell us where they are," he said.

Senate Approves Refuge Measure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate voted yesterday to designate the Farallon Islands a state game refuge to outlaw the shooting of animals and birds and catching of fish within one mile of the islands.

The measure by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, was sent to the Assembly on a 28-0 vote. There was no opposition.

The measure specifically names the Southeast Farallons, including Maintop Island, the Middle Farallons, the North Farallons and Noonday Rock as being within the refuge boundaries.

Tiburon Council Creates Honorary Historian Post

The Tiburon City Council last night created the honorary post of city historian and an historical committee.

It then named Louise Teather of 2340 Paradise Drive as historian for an indefinite term, to serve at the discretion of the council.

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood had suggested such a post in March. The council created it after consulting with the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society.

Mrs. Teather was asked to nominate appointees to the committee whose task will be to:

Identify all currently available literature, photographs, and other items relating to the history, architecture, geography, geology and ecology of the area;

Serve as the city's official source of information about these subjects.

Boy, 4, Hit; Leg Fractured

Fred J. Tuck, Jr., 4, of 202 McAllister Avenue, Kentfield, suffered a fractured left leg yesterday when he was hit by a car in front of his house, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Officers said he apparently ran in front of a westbound car driven by Randy A. Cook, 15, of 6 Stadium Way, Kentfield, at 5:55 p.m.

The child was taken to Marin General Hospital and then transferred to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco for treatment.

FINANCES IN A MESS?
Don't feel like the Lone Ranger, most people need some help. This ad is unusual, we don't loan money and are not selling business opportunities. It is just that we feel there are times when sitting down with a successful person who is not emotionally involved in your problems, but can study them, can be the answer or at least the start to solving your situation. I have a formula for climbing out of debt and starting to build financial security that might be the answer you have been looking for. If you and I think we can help you there's a small fee based on how much I have to do. No obligation on either person's part. You may not think I can help you or I may not think you're willing to be helped. One interview will tell us and it will take 15 to 30 minutes. Call my executive secretary, Mrs. Marty Conley, for an appointment. 454-8232.

STARS ABOVE

Berenice's Hair Is Hard To Find

BY SHERMAN WALKER

Berenice's Hair (Coma Berenices) is a constellation that was known to the ancients but is so dim that its beauty can only be appreciated when viewed through binoculars or low-power telescope.

At lectures, it is always amusing to show someone where to point the binoculars, then hear their exclamation of surprise and delight when they catch sight of this constellation. It is a smoky or hazy place in the sky, roughly about the size of the bowl of the Big Dipper.

To find Berenice's Hair, face southward and look at the region of the sky that is four-fifths of the distance up from the southern horizon to overhead.

Some 25 or 30 of these stars can be counted when viewed through fairly good binoculars. When seen through a large telescope, this small space in the sky contains hundreds of nebulae and other objects of great interest to the professional astronomer.

It is remarkable that a star group such as this would be known and named by the ancients, but these people watched the stars more than we moderns and without the interference of electric lights.

"When Shepherd Watched Their Flocks by Night," they were in the darkness for long period and their eyes were well adjusted to the conditions; besides, they had to look at something and the stars were a handy subject for observation and discussion.

Challenge To Laws On Abortion Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court, by a 5-4 vote, upheld today the District of Columbia's abortion statute against a challenge that it was unconstitutionally vague.

The challenged language—similar to that in laws of many states—says that an abortion is legally permissible only if "necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health."

In an array of six opinions expressing a variety of views, the Court emphasized that the vagueness issue was the only one considered.

The reason for confining the ruling within narrow bounds was that Federal Judge Gerhard A. Gesell relied on the vagueness rationale when dismissing the indictment of Dr. Milan Vuitch, a Yugoslav immigrant who has been crusading for more liberal abortion policies.

Challenges of abortion statutes in several states are on the Court's docket.

The majority opinion by Justice Hugo L. Black, reversed Gesell's ruling that the law was too vague.

Black said Vuitch's attorney had suggested other reasons why Gesell's action should be affirmed—for instance, that the law was an invasion of privacy.

But Black said while there were some references to such claims in Gesell's opinion, the Supreme Court viewed it as holding simply that the statute was void for vagueness.

Black pointed out in his discussion of the vagueness issue that the District of Columbia statute—enacted in 1901—did not outlaw all abortions, only those not performed under the direction of a competent, licensed physician, and those not necessary to preserve the mother's life or health.

Gesell held that the law placed on a defendant doctor the burden of proving that he made the right medical judgment.

Black took the opposite view. He said the law placed the burden on the prosecution to "plead and prove that an abortion was not 'necessary for the preservation of the mother's life or health'."

"Placing such a burden of proof on a doctor would be peculiarly inconsistent with society's notions of the responsibilities of the medical profession," Black's opinion said.

It was also argued that "health" was imprecise, since the law did not indicate whether it included varying degrees of mental as well as physical health.

Black said other lower courts had construed the law to permit abortions "for mental health reasons whether or not the patients had a previous history of mental defects."

"We see no reason why this interpretation of the statute should not be followed," he said. "Certainly this construction accords with the general usage and modern understanding of the word 'health,' which includes psychological as well as physical well-being."

Justice William O. Douglas dissented as to the constitutionality of the law. Justice Potter Stewart expressed doubts but said if the statute were construed to remove all criminal liability from a licensed physician, it would pass muster in his view.

San Franciscan Loses Appeal On Draft Status

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today upheld selective service regulations which prohibit a draftee from making a conscientious objector claim between the time his induction notice is mailed and the date he is ordered for induction.

The Court, by a vote of 6 to 3, affirmed the conviction of William Ward Ehlert in San Francisco who was sentenced to two years in jail for failing to submit to induction.

Ehlert contended that his draft board should have reopened his case when he made up his mind he was a conscientious objector after receiving his induction notice.

In a majority opinion, Justice Potter Stewart noted that the general counselor of the Army had assured the Justice Department that such claims could be raised after a draftee was inducted.

"We are assured," Stewart said, "that present practice allows presentation of such claims, and that there thus exists no possibility that late crystallizers will find themselves without a forum in which to press their claims."

Douglas commented: "the stories of sudden conversion are legion in religious history. And there is no reason why the selective service boards should not recognize them, deal with them, and if sincere, act on them even though they come after notice of induction has been received."

Selective service regulations state that a registrant's classification may not be reopened after the induction notice has been mailed unless a change in circumstances occurs "over which the registrant has no control."

Ehlert wrote his draft board that he had been "unable to make a decision of such moment until faced with the absolute necessity to do so."

The government said that to reopen the classification of a man ordered to military service would require his removal from that month's draft call and unfairly expedite the call of another man.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Survey Shows Younger Persons Favor Some Population Controls

As the concern about overpopulation grows, many young married couples are planning for the future. A survey conducted among 1,059 students and faculty at Cornell University revealed that 84 per cent believed that family size should be limited. Of these, 26 per cent wanted three or more children, 39 per cent were willing to settle for three. Thirty per cent favored two children and only 5 per cent one or none. Their religious persuasion was not mentioned but 50 per cent favored the "Pill" over all other contraceptive technics to space children and to limit family size. Voluntary sterilization (either of man or woman) was considered undesirable. It was here that many old myths and fears about sterilization were noted. Considering the intellectual level of those surveyed, this was unusual.

ABORTIONS WERE considered to be as undesirable as voluntary sterilization. The survey was done two years ago and we wonder if the respondents have changed their minds since many states have legalized abortion.

The early Greeks and Christians considered abortion a crime if it was done after the pregnant woman felt life. The latter refers to the first movements of the fetus, appearing from the 16th to the 18th week of pregnancy. Stricter laws abolishing abortions were passed 100 years ago in this country. In 1869 Pope Pius XI declared all abortions to be an excommunicatory sin.

BUT SINCE THEN the worm has turned, because of appeals and court actions. Among the decisions is a woman's right of privacy in matters of sex, including the right to decide whether or not she will bear children. Apparently this is a woman's privilege. At any rate, many states now have laws liberalizing abortion and New York has abortion on demand.

WINTER HEATING

Mrs. J. V. writes: Isn't it healthier to regulate the heat in the apartment to 72 rather than let it reach 85? My husband wants a real warm temperature so that when he is home I go around in a sweat.

REPLY

Eighty-five is too high as it may indicate lack of thyroid or anemia. Most of us enjoy a temperature of between 72 and 75 but exceptions occur. Increase the indoor humidity and your husband may feel more comfortable at a lower temperature. Knit him a nice heavy sweater and have it ready at the door when he comes home.

TRAVEL AFTER D & C

G. B. writes: Please explain what a D & C operation is and does it require an anesthetic? Assuming it is done in a hospital, how many days must one be there and could the person take an auto trip of 600 miles directly upon release?

REPLY

D & C refers to dilatation and curettage of the uterus. An anesthetic is given and the woman usually is released from the hospital after 24 hours. Whether or not a 600-mile trip is advisable depends upon why the D & C was performed and the results of the procedure.

DECREPIT VOICE

D. E. V. writes: For two months my vocal cords have been weak. Is there any way they can be strengthened?

REPLY

Yes. Try listening instead of speaking. The symptoms may stem from talking too much or from infection or tumor. May I suggest that you have the throat and larynx examined?

Voters In Oakland Return Incumbents

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Incumbent city councilmen staved off an election challenge Tuesday from a racially-mixed coalition which had hoped to repeat the victory won by radical challengers in neighboring Berkeley.

Four of five officeholders won re-election and the fifth led an at-large field of eight, but faces a runoff May 18 against the only survivor from the "Oakland Coalition."

The vigorous campaign by the coalition of minority and civic group candidates produced the biggest turnout for an Oakland municipal election in two decades.

Their candidates — three blacks, a Chinese, a Hawaiian and a Caucasian—insisted they weren't radicals. They advocated changes in the city's "status quo" and charged the incumbents with being unresponsive to the black community, which makes up 40 per cent of the population.

The winners campaigned on their records of "orderly gains" in housing, redevelopment and employment in this industrial and port city of 386,000 across the bay from San Francisco.

Councilman Fred Maggiora, a 21-year veteran, led the victors with a 2-1 margin over his coalition opponent. Incumbents Frank Ogawa and Raymond L. Eng also won easily, while Felix F. Chialvo edged Mrs. Betty Ann Bruno of the coalition by 7,200 votes out of 88,000 cast.

In the at-large race, incumbent Harvey Binns ran up a 2-1 margin over John Sutter, a conservationist and the only white member of the coalition. Sutter edged out Stephen Brooks, the candidate of the more radical April Caucus, for the right to challenge Binns in the runoff.

The coalition, which won the endorsement of Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes, campaigned against Oakland's unemployment, crime, housing and tax problems.

PG&E Seeking Rate Hikes Of $37 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Gas and Electric Co. asked the State Public Utilities Commission on Tuesday for rate increases totaling $37 million a year. The utility said the total would compensate for increased wholesale gas rates it must pay. About $10 million of it would apply to electricity customers to pay for boosted generating costs resulting from the fuel cost increases, it added.

PG&E estimated the additional cost to domestic customers for gas and electricity at about 50 cents a month and said such an increase would not increse company earnings.

In January, the company was granted a 7.5 per cent increase in its electricity rates, estimated to produce $51.6 million. Last month the firm was granted a $9 million increase in its gas rates.

Consultant On Housing Is Hired

A consultant to prepare a five-year housing program for the county was hired last night by the Marin County Housing Authority board.

Assistant executive director Keith Kelly reported the board ageed to hire the San Francisco firm of E. M. Schaffran and Co. to conduct the study, at a cost of about $5,000. Executive director Wallace K. Shepherd has said the study is needed so the authority "will know what kind of housing is needed and what type of programs we must have to provide that housing."

The board directed its administrative staff to arrange a meeting with the consultant to give board members a chance to discuss their ideas and concerns before the firm begins formulating the plan.

The Marin County Housing Authority board also:

INSPECTION — Approved hiring Crawford and Banning, San Rafael architectural firm, to inspect plans and construction work for a 56-unit senior citizen housing project in Tiburon. The architects will be paid on an hourly rate, Kelly said, with the total cost not to exceed $7,000.

REMODELING — After considerable discussion, called for a number of public hearings (at dates to be announced) on a plan presented by Shepherd to expand administrative offices into a maintenance building adjacent to the housing authority office. The proposal would mean changes in the organization of the administrative staff.

NEW DUTY — Authorized the assistant director to act in Shepherd's place when he is away.

CONFERENCE — Granted the executive director permission to attend the National Association of Redevelopment and Housing officials's annual conference in Los Angeles May 16-18.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO HOLD PUBLIC HEARING ON URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION ADMINISTRATION CAPITAL GRANT PROJECT OF GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE, HIGHWAY AND TRANSPORTATION DISTRICT

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Directors of Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District intends to hold a public hearing on its UBAN Mass Transportation Administration Capital Grant Project, adopted April 9, 1971, at 10:00 AM on the 30th day of April, 1971 in the Board Room, Administration Building, Golden Gate Bridge Toll Plaza, San Francisco, California.

The intent to hold said public hearing is given and this notice is published pursuant to the requirements of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration of the United States. The purpose of a public hearing would be to consider the District's Urban Mass Transportation Administration Capital Grant Project adopted by the District on April 9, 1971, proposing to purchase between 112 and 152 transit and suburban type motor coaches, equipped with Environmental Improvement Package, radio, air conditioning, and fare collection boxes, approximately ten (10) acres of land for a central bus storage and service area and administrative offices, land improvements, buildings, and equipment necessary for bus servicing and maintenance and administrative offices, six (6) automobiles and three (3) trucks, including a recovery vehicle, all equipped with radios, a radio base station, and one bus washing unit. In addition, the District proposes to purchase and develop two parcels approximately two acres each, as satellite bus stations in the Novato and Santa Rosa areas.

The estimated cost is $9,464,000, which will be financed by a 66⅔% Federal Capital Grant of $6,309,000 under Section 3 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended in 1970, and the remaining 33⅓%, in the amount of $3,155,000 by the District from monies reserved from Bridge revenues in accordance with State Assembly Bill 584.

It is intended by the District and Greyhound Lines-West, present operator in the counties, that the Golden Gate Transit system will replace the present Greyhound operation between the counties of Sonoma, Marin and San Francisco, and within the counties of Marin and Sonoma. It is also the intent of both organizations that present Greyhound employees whose work will in effect be transferred to the District will be given the option and first choice of working for the District.

The project conforms to the proposed comprehensive land use and transportation planning program of the urban area and has been approved by the Association of Bay Area Governments. The project is to replace the existing transit system with an all-new system, with a service designed explicitly to meet the present needs of the residents and workers of the three counties. The resulting improved service will have positive effects on economic, social and environmental conditions.

The District will make available to the public in the office of the District Secretary, Administration Building, Golden Gate Bridge Toll Plaza, San Francisco, on a reasonable basis its preliminary application, draft environmental statement, and its transit development program to the extent developed at this time, and of which this project is a part.

All Federal, State or local agencies with jurisdiction by law, or special expertise, and authorized to develop and enforce environmental standards, have been notified of the application, will be provided a copy of the draft environmental statement upon request, and are invited to participate in, or supply, statements for the public hearing. A list of such Federal agencies and their areas of environmental concern was obtained from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration.

All persons and official bodies, and other organizations interested in appearing at a hearing will be heard at such time.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Ex-Hollywood Writer 'Loved Every Cliche'

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The season's best television drama, "Poet Game," recently shown on the non-commercial network, was written by Anthony Terpiloff, a former Hollywood writer now living in Wales. The play concerned a hard-drinking, middleaged Irish poet trying to straighten out his personal life while on an American lecture tour.

Through the "Hollywood Television Theatre," which produced his play, I asked Terpiloff if he would care to send along some recollections of his time in Hollywood. Following is part of the reply he cabled:

"I was old enough to know what I was doing when I came to Hollywood. I had command of the cliche about disillusionment and cynicism. My idea was to make the most of it and be only as cynical and disillusioned as I had to be. Like a soldier going into battle convinced that everyone else can be killed but himself, writers go to Hollywood saying 'I'll take the money and run — God is on my side and also my talent.'

"I went because I was sent for, paid for and loved every cliche of it. You can't cry rape when you know what's going to happen. My greatest complaint was that it didn't happen often enough. Some good fairy kept me from it. Hollywood's not a harem. Nobody forces you to stay. In fact, it's hard to stay there and make money. A good half of professional writers earn nothing in given years. Another great percentage get by on handouts for story ideas which are given to other writers or abandoned.

"I jumped into Hollywood enthusiastically and got unexpected benefits and unexpected damages: You know, brain, liver, stomach, morale. I found love, if not fame and fortune. I wanted to be used. I told my agent to find somebody to use me unmercifully. They said, you're too good to be used. I tried hard to prove them wrong and failed utterly but, inexplicably, I wrote many American television entertainments and got on producers' short lists and was invited to previews.

"Agents always exhort you to go in with four great stories in the morning. I was given a useful tip by a fellow writer: to tell the story in three words. I learned. And it worked, but the laugh's on me because I was then required to create a story from those three stupid words. Producers were looking at me expectantly, waiting for pages, wondering why they weren't getting pages on time. Is there no thinking allowed? So, you're a part-time fraud for a start, but you get paid for it.

"You're there to sell your services, as it says in the contract. You have to come up with current, acceptable, salable ideas that sound great in story conferences. In my clever later years I brought a tape recorder to conferences that lasted for hours, then got my wife to type a transcript. I couldn't stand to read it so I'd ask: 'Could you boil this down to a paragraph—or, better yet, one sentence, and then would you read it to me?' ...

"In Britain the audience is not deprived. Television companies take a play and, for the most part, produce it as written. Lewis Freedman (producer of the 'Hollywood Television Theatre') ... is a creative producer who takes the script, enhances it, refines it but doesn't change its intent. He trusts writers, a unique experience in Hollywood.

"Seven years ago I was asked to come to Hollywood. Last June I was asked to leave but not ridden out on the rail. Given a ticket to London by Freedman, I had the good sense to stay where I began my commerical career 10 years earlier. Hollywood is no trap. Somehow I knew when I could stand it no longer I'd make my way out just as I'd made my way there in the first place. Presumably if you're a genuine playwright, you playwrite wherever you are. Any damage done to talent is not Hollywood but oneself. Done by neglect, willful, calculated neglect."

Woman's Body Found Sprawled In Flower Bed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The body of a young woman was found Tuesday sprawled in a bed of wildflowers at the base of a hill in the Mission District. She died from a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Coroner Henry Turkel said the unidentified victim was about 19 or 20, around 135 pounds, and five foot six. He could not determine immediately whether it was murder or suicide.

Neighbors reported hearing two shots in the early morning hours, but told police they had not seen anyone outside.

Art Exhibition Is Scheduled Sunday

The Petaluma Art Association will hold an art exhibition Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the picnic area of the Marin French Cheese Co., 7500 Red Hill Road, Petaluma.

All types of arts and crafts will be on display and some artists will be working during the day.

Jailed In Pigsty For Calling Officer A 'Pig'

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI)—A municipal judge sentenced a 19-year-old youth to sit three hours in a pigpen for calling a policeman a pig.

Robert L. Vitek Jr., a resident of this Cleveland suburb, Tuesday pleaded no contest to a charge of abusing a police officer. He was accused of shouting "Pig" at Sgt. Jay L. McKenna, while the policeman was arresting someone else for speeding April 11.

Judge Manuel M. Rocker fined him $300 and sentenced him to 30 days in the nearby Warrensville workhouse.

Then Rocker suspended the workhouse sentence and most of the fine on the condition that Vitek sit in a pigsty for three hours.

Brown was arrested later on Corte Madera Avenue. In his vehicle, police said, was a satchel which had been stolen from another residence earlier that day.

School Tax Measure Wins

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A tax override measure designed to rescue the Sacramento City Unified School District from a financial bind was easily passed Tuesday by voters.

With all but two of the district's 104 precincts counted, there were 32,354 votes in favor of the proposal and 20,541 against it.

The measure will raise the district tax by 13.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation to offset the loss of $3.2 million due to a budget miscalculation.

Teachers In Novato To Give Ideas

Novato Unified School District teachers will have a chance to put down in writing how they feel about the district, its good and bad points.

District trustees Monday night approved a request by the Novato Teachers Association for a survey of teacher opinion.

Teachers also will list things they like most and least about the district on survey sheets, identified only by grade level.

The association felt the results of the survey could result in steps to improve teacher morale.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

NEGOTIATOR — Rejected a request by the classroom teachers organization to designate Supt. James G. Bunker as board representative in negotiations with teachers, to succeed Deputy Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello, present negotiator, who is leaving to be superintendent of the Reed School District.

DISASTER TRAINING — Authorized sending a teacher from each school to attend state Department of Education workshops on disaster preparedness and civil defense.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Janet Coxon, teacher at Rancho School, and Mary Wallen, a counselor, and Ruth Dauernheim, a secretary.

REASSIGNMENT — Approved a request by Ralph O'Neill, principal and teacher at North Marin High School, a continuation school, for reassignment.

MOBILITY — Approved district participation in a program to increase mobility of partially-sighted or blind students.

N.Y. Senate In Historic Return

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—The State Senate, which hasn't met outside Albany since the 18th century, went back Tuesday to Kingston, N.Y., the Hudson River city it was chased out of by the British in 1777.

A one-hour working session was held in the historic Senate House near where New York's first legislative body met 194 years ago. In the short session Tuesday, the 1971 Senate passed 18 non-controversial bills —nearly half the entire number passed by the 1777 Senate during the entire year.

Paris A Latecomer To Pornography

Paris belatedly is catching up with the wave of pornography and open sexuality that has swept late 20th Century society in other nations. But France's "sex revolution" is quiet and small compared to those of other countries.

"Sex shops" began to sell books and erotic objects a year ago but police raids have whittled the number of establishments to 30, and these are carefully regulated by guardians from the Ministry of Interior.

A popular dress shop that tried to give away match books showing the American girl owners unclothed ran into an argument with the law for six months before the matches were approved. Erotic store window mannequins have been forbidden, magazines banned, books censored and both French and foreign erotic films banned or cut by the censors of the Interior Ministry.

The largest "sex shop" in Paris is only a subdued, living room-sized place in a high-rent area behind the Madeleine Church. The shop is miniscule compared to the "sex supermarkets" of Germany, the Netherlands, the Scandinavian countries and Britain.

"There are only two more conservative European countries than France —Spain and the Soviet Union," observed the cashier, Brigitte Tourmetz, who with her husband runs the "sexashop" plus another in Paris and two in Nice and Marseille.

With the "sex revolution" influencing culture, Ministry of Interior censors have banned so many books and films that novelist Romain Gary launched a movement to end censorship in France. In 1957, of 318 submitted films, four were totally rejected, 19 labeled for adults only and 13 cut. In 1969, of 347 films, 10 were rejected, 118 forbidden to minors and 56 cut (of which 30 were foreign films).

Britons To Pay More To Keep Healthy

By DENNIS EISENBERG
Toronto Telegram News Service

LONDON — The Tory Government of Britain is absolutely determined to press ahead with its prime minister's bracing command that citizens in these isles must learn to stand on their own two feet.

Now ever the sick, the lame, and the short-sighted are also to be taught the lesson that Ted Heath means precisely what he says — and that they can no longer rely on the comforting embrace of the welfare state to help them out in their hour of need.

For the so-called "free" National Health Service (NHS) in Britain is to be drastically overhauled by the government. People needing medicine will no longer get their doctor's prescriptions supplied at the present rate — no matter what their true costs — of about 30 cents for each item. Instead, the price will rise to almost double that figure. New scales now being discussed will mean that the cost of spectacles from NHS opticians will soar by more than 200 per cent.

There is also the likelihood that people might be asked to pay part of their keep in hospitals — now entirely free.

Naturally, there has been a strong outcry from Labor Parliament members at these proposed new charges which strike at the whole concept of the all-embracing National Health Service introduced into Britain by Aneurin Bevan in the days of the Attlee Labor government shortly after the last war.

Certainly the National Health Service in the past two decades has resulted in a healthier Britain. For it meant that the poorest in the land could usually get the very best medical treatment completely free.

However, the whole NHS concept has run into serious difficulties in recent years. As medical science advances, so the cost of looking after the health of the nation has soared astronomically. Because of heavy handed bureaucracy resulting from the centralization of the country's medical services and hospitals as well as inefficiency by an ever-swelling administration, the NHS is meeting with increased difficulties.

There are long gueues of people waiting for operations — sometimes stretching years ahead. A very high proportion of the doctors produced by British medical schools annually emigrate to seek better opportunities in North America and Australia. This is because of the comparatively low wages and rigid structure which suppresses the initiative of young, ambitious doctors.

Indeed if it were not for the vast numbers of immigrant doctors and nurses from India, Pakistan and other Commonwealth countries, many British hospitals would simply have to close their doors.

Something like two million Britons now belong to private health schemes where they pay to get prompt treatment when they fall ill. They still have to pay their normal taxes, but they join the private schemes as the National Health Service meets with increasing problems.

And although many people believe that the NHS is "free", it is not free at all — for they have to pay for it through their taxes and compulsory weekly social security contributions.

To try and cope with the runaway costs of the NHS and to prevent it from disintegrating, even the Labor Party had to introduce some charges on prescriptiongs. Now the Tory Government is determined to follow this policy to its logical conclusion.

Instead of raising overall taxes to pay for the ever increasing demands of the NHS, each individual who needs medical treatment will be asked to pay a higher porportion of its true costs.

Thus the subsidy the healthy in society pay to help the sick is to be limited.

Naturally, this idea of heavier charges strikes at the very roots of the concept of the welfare state. And a fearful clash will take place when the increased charges are to introduced. Labor supporters complain bitterly that the Tories are rubbing the noses of the poor into the dirt in order to lighten the tax burdens on the better-offs.

The Tories retort that people must be taught to look after themselves more and not rely so heavily on the welfare state that dampens down enterprise and the natural initiative of man. They also point out that small children, the elderly, and those in real need, will not have to pay the higher charges but will get increased financial assistance when necessary.

Prices Are Too Steep For Women

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The Grant Grill, an exclusive restaurant at the U.S. Grant Hotel, but for men only until 3 p.m., has withstood the Women's Lib movement with little trouble.

On several occasions small groups of Lib members have attempted to enter for lunch. They were admitted.

Most didn't return. Apparently the majority of women having lunch in downtown San Diego don't think too highly of paying $2.20 for a hamburger or 50 cents for a cup of coffee.

Xenon Gas Used For Jet Safety Lights

NEW YORK (UPI)—Xenon, the relatively rare gaseous element whose name means "strange" in Greek, is being used for the not-so-strange job of illuminating commercial aircraft for maximum safety in flight.

"The radiated light of xenon is twice that of previous high-intensity lighting systems," says Honeywell engineer Donald Lisell. He said a recognition light on a jet plane could be seen as far as 75 miles away at night.

A Goof Up In Big Shipment

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)— An entire containerload of Japanese snowmobiles disappeared from a dockside before they could be delivered to a Vancouver dealer.

Police found the machines were loaded right back onto the ship and were well on their way back to Japan. Another container addressed to the snowmobile dealer proved to contain hundreds of cans of tunafish, canned right here in Vancouver.

More suicides occur in France than in the U.S., according to the UN.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Fatter Checks Will Mean Shelling Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Social Security benefits —and the payroll taxes which finance them —will continue to rise in the years ahead.

That's not a prediction. It's a statement of what will happen as a result of legislation already enacted by Congress.

The Social Security checks which 26.2 million beneficiaries will find in their mailboxes June 3 will be exactly 10 per cent fatter than the checks the same people got in May.

Later in June, all recipients will get an extra check, covering the amount due them as a result of applying the 10 per cent boost retroactively to payments they've already received since Jan. 1, 1971.

President Nixon, who signed the legislation authorizing the increase on March 17, had urged Congress to pay for it by increasing the Social Security "wage base" from $7,800 a year to $9,000 a year, also making that retroactive to last Jan. 1. But Congress voted to postpone the tax base increase until the start of 1972.

The tax base is important both in terms of how much payroll tax you and your employer pay and the size of the benefits you'll collect when you retire or are disabled or otherwise become eligible for Social Security checks.

This is how it works:

The government now levies a tax of 10.4 per cent —half of which is paid by the employer and half by the employe —on the first $7,800 of each covered worker's total annual wages. Income beyond the $7,800 limit is exempt from payroll tax — and also is ignored in computing the amount of benefits a worker eventually will receive.

This means the maximum bite on any individual this year will be $405.60.

Next Jan. 1, the wage base will rise to $9,000. The rate will remain at its current level of 5.2 per cent each on employer and employe. Because this rate will be levied against a larger sum, the maximum payroll deduction will rise to $468 in 1972.

This means anyone earning $9,000 or over will pay $63.40 more in Social Security taxes next year.

Under the recently-enacted law, the wage base is scheduled to remain at $9,000 indefinitely. But the tax rate is scheduled to rise to 5.65 per cent in 1973 and to 5.85 per cent in 1976.

Before those raises take effect, however, Congress is likely to adopt President Nixon's recommendation to peg both taxes and benefits to an automatic escalator system. Under this system, benefits would go up when the cost of living rises, and taxes would go up when the average wage rises. The adjustments would be made simultaneously every two years.

Thus retirement benefits would keep pace with inflation, and the elderly would not suffer as much as they do now when sharp price rises take place months before Congress gets around to adjusting Social Security benefits.

The pension payable to any person upon retirement is related to the amount of "covered" wages he received during his working career. And the amount that can be counted as covered wages is the same as the wage base in effect at that time. Thus persons retiring in future years will be able to count up to $9,000 of annual income as covered wages for all years beginning with 1972.

The maximum benefit payable to a worker retiring this year at age 65 will be $213.10 after counting in the newly-authorized 10 per cent increase.

But, thanks to the increase in the wage base, the maximum payable to a worker retiring at age 65 in 1975 will be $228.80, even if Congress authorizes no further increases in benefits.

An increase in the social Security wage base therefore means two things for all whose wages are above the previous base: (1) An immediate boost in payroll taxes and (2) higher pensions upon retirement. You'll pay more —and eventually get more for it.

Great Britain subsidizes Shakespearean plays to the extent of $600,000 a year.

Truck Hijackers Reap A Huge Harvest In New York

By EDWARD V. MC CARTHY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The driver of a big trailer truck wheeled his rig through the almost impossibly congested streets of New York City recently —one of some 250,000 similar trucks that move precious cargo in, out and around the city every day.

He stopped for a traffic light and silently cursed the heavy traffic, paying NO mind to the auto carrying three men, that drew alongside.

While one man remained at the car's steering wheel, the other two men jumped out. One went to the passenger side of the truck cab, the other climbed to the driver's side and poked a revolver in his face.

No words were spoken. They didn't need to be. The truck driver —call him Tom Smith for the purposes of his account —has been around for a while and he knew the classic picture. He quickly got out of the cab and into the back of the car, lying on the floor. The man with the gun climbed in beside him and the car drove off. The third man drove the truck away.

After several hours of aimlessly driving the car around, the gunman took Tom's driver's license and let him out on a quiet residential street, unharmed.

The gunman and his pal then sped to a pre-determined "drop" where they knew the trailer would be parked. Their partner was there. The truck was there —and the air was blue with curses.

What, the other two wanted to know, was the problem? their partner led them around to the truck's rear and gave them a look at the cargo.

It was thousands of brassieres —but specially designed for women who had undergone surgical removal of one breast —a cargo totally without value to hijackers. They had made a classic goof.

This is one of the few hijack stories New York City Police Capt. Thomas P. Kissane can tell with any degree of amusement.

As boss of the detective division's safe, loft and burglary squad —with a squad of men so small the department keeps the exact number secret to avoid giving "aid and comfort to the enemy" —it is his job not only to track down truck hijackers, but round up safecrackers and burglary rings, which abound in the richest city in the nation.

Most jobs, Kissane said in an interview, are not so amateurism but are pulled by professionals associated directly with the organized underworld —and they almost always know beforehand just what truck and what cargo they are looking for. They work on contract.

"Let's say," Capt. Kissane said, "that the head of a certain organization needs a large supply of cigarettes for his various outlets around the city —they are running low.

"A man planted 'inside' —for a fee of about $1,000 —tips them off when a fully loaded rig is going out with a cargo worth $200,000 on the retail market.

"Three professional heisters —for a fee ranging from $5,000 to $10,000, but averaging about $7,000 per job —are contacted and told when the truck is leaving, its route and where it is headed.

"They decide where best to hit it and the hijack is made — just as in the case of the hijacked brassieres.

"The wheelman who takes the truck gets a fee of about $2,500. He drives to a warehouse either owned or leased by the organized crime types.

"There, three to four men — hired at fees from $50 to $100 each —unload the truck. These are guys with records who don't have a regular occupation and are picking up a quick, tax-free buck.

"The wheelman then drives the truck to a point miles from the warehouse and abandons it, where it will finally be spotted by a radio patrol car and the word is passed on to us.

"By then, of course," Kissane sighed, "it is too late. The cargo has long since been disposed of. It is almost all pure profit. There is virtually no overhead."

"How do they get rid of the loot? Easily," Capt. Kissane said. "Through many contacts. Cigarettes and liquor are the biggest hijack items for this reason.

"They go to legitimate dealers —or buyers for dealers. They sell them the cigarettes at about 70 per cent of wholesale cost, liquor at about 60 per cent of true wholesale cost. Many catering houses and hotels which do a big business in professional and wedding dinners get their supplies this way.

"The stolen stuff is mixed in with legitimately purchased stuff. This way, it is virtually untraceable. And, if anybody is checking up, they have honest bills of lading for honestly bought goods.

"They make a hell of a profit, though, on the stuff they buy under the counter. Everybody makes out but the manufacturer —and the public.

"The public pays in the long run, because the manufacturer, in order to make up for his huge losses, marks up his product price to allow for these losses.

"Just about everything you buy would be cheaper if it weren't for the hijackers."

"They used to be big on stereo systems and big color television consoles," Sgt. Connally chimed in, "but they've all but given that up to concentrate on cigarettes, liquor and perfume. It's because they're lazy. The other stuff is too heavy to transport around and load and unload off trucks for the profit involved. They'd rather handle the lighter stuff."

"That's true," agreed Capt. Kissane. "Most of the other stuff stolen, such as TV, radios, stereos, electric shavers —you name it —is taken by the free lancers."

Why, the reporter asked, can't the drivers of the hijacked trucks pick out their assailants from "mug shots" in the extensive police rogue's gallery, since most of the hijackers have criminal records, and since the hijacked truckers get a good look at them?

"Because the drivers don't want to be hurt or put their families in danger," Kissane said.

"That is why, before they free the driver, the hijackers take away his license. It tells them exactly where he lives. They warn him before they let him go that if he talks, they'll get his family.

"A few days after the hijacking, the license arrives at his home in the mail. If he had been building up any courage before that, the ticket in the mail does the job. He goes to jelly. It proves to him they really know where to find him and his family.

"When we question the driver, he says the men were black if they were white. He says they were tall if they were short. He says anything but the right thing. He can go through thousands of pictures, but he'll never —or hardly ever —pick out the real hijackers. He'll either say he didn't get a good look, or he can't remember."

In 1969 there were 174 trucks hijacked on New York City roadways. Last year there were 318. Figures aren't available yet for this year —but the men in the business say they are continuing to skyrocket.

The reason is spelled out in the value of the goods stolen. Last year the total amounted to $17,396,849 in New York City alone —with an almost 100 per cent, tax-free profit to the crooks.

The solution to the hijack problem is not a simple one.

The companies are against having a man "ride shotgun" in the trucks for several reasons, Capt. Kissane said. One is the cost involved. Another is the danger to their own drivers in case of shoot-outs.

The police can't "tail" every cargo-carrying truck —there are too many of them. They do advise the truckers to use certain "truck routes" which are kept secret but are carefully watched not only by detectives but given "special attention" by uniformed men in regular patrol cars.

But the anti-hijack cops admit candidly, that even this doesn't work too well. Trucks are daily being hijacked at high noon at some of the busiest intersections in the busiest city in the United States.

The police do manage to "infiltrate" the mobs through the use of paid informers and this often leads them to warehouses where they recover hundreds of thousands of dollars in stolen merchandise. Last year alone, for instance, they recovered $7.5 million in stolen goods.

The police would like to infiltrate themselves into the mobs, but it is too difficult and dangerous. As it is, they frequent spots where known hijackers, burglars, safecrackers and other criminals do their drinking and plotting.

"Somehow those B——s got by a big dog he has in the yard to protect his family and hang that disgusting thing there as a warning to him," Kissane said.

"It didn't work. He's still with us, still doing his job."

EUROPE'S FIRST DOUBLE-DECKER TUNNEL

Traffic is now rolling through Europe's first double-decker auto tunnel, a 3,421-foot passage at Wuppertal in West Germany's Rhine-Ruhr District. The tunnel shortens the drive from Wuppertal to Dusseldorf, hub city of the Ruhr, from 45 to 15 minutes. It was built over a six-year period at a cost of $12.3 million. With special detectors in the tunnel, the speeding motorist can be caught upon completion of his trip.

Synthetics No Worry To Rubber Producers

SINGAPORE (UPI) — It would not be illogical for the layman to think that the producers of natural rubber and the makers of synthetic rubber must be engaged constantly in an epic battle for the world rubber market.

But here in the world's largest natural rubber market the men involved say it's not so. And one reason is that producers of natural rubber simply cannot provide enough of their product to meet the full demand.

Ever since man began riding around on pneumatic tires in the late 19th Century, rubber trees have been unable to yield enough to meet the need. And that is exactly the way the rubber people want the situation to remain because no matter how much they produce, they sell it all.

The planters of Malaysia, far and away the world's largest natural rubber producing country, and the brokers and dealers and shippers of Singapore have their problems, but they are not the problems usually associated with the industry —for instance, the challenge of the synthetics.

"There are some very hard facts that bear me out when I say we are not at all threatened by the synthetics," said one Singapore Malaysia rubber kings, Tan Eng Joo.

Tan, chairman of the influential Rubber Association of Singapore, said, "Every ounce of natural rubber that is produced is bought and consumed. That is not true of synthetic rubber. Synthetic makers are left with considerable surpluses and they are not producing at the top of their potential. We are."

Tan says the reason for the continuing heavy demand is that natural rubber remains the "best of the elastomers." (An elastomer is anything that is elastic). He cited as one for instance that aviation relies almost wholly on natural rubber for airplane tires.

Of more concern to the natural rubber men than synthetics are black stripe, brown bast, cuplump, tree lace and cockchafers —tree ailments and insects. In this regard, too, however, the natural rubber industry has had success in fighting back.

The Rubber Research Institute of Malaya (RRI) is one of the most sophisticated agricultural laboratories in Asia. Headquartered in Kuala Lumpur and running an experimental station 16 miles outside the capital, the RRI spends nearly $5 million annually looking for ways for Malaysia to produce more rubber.

It has had some great successes. RRI research has increased the yield of the average Malaysian rubber tree since World War II no less than six fold. An acre of rubber trees producing 500 pounds of latex a year in 1948 today produces 3,000 pounds.

RRI is financed from a special tax levied by the Malaysian government on rubber exported from the country.

The government pours money willingly, even desparately, into rubber research because the government is so dependent on rubber. The strength of Malaysia's rubber is that it provides about half the nearly 3 million long tons the world uses annually. The weakness is Malaysia's overdependence on it.

By far Malaysia's chief source of government revenue is its tax on exports, amounting last year to an estimated $96.3 million. Nearly half of that — $42.6 million —represented the tax on rubber.

SO SAYS EXPERT

Partners Important In Saving Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An urban expert says President Nixon's plans to decentralize government power through revenue-sharing won't do much good unless it makes the nation's cities partners instead of "creatures" of the states.

The proposal for "city equality" in the federal systems comes from John Feild, director of the Center of Policy Analysis of the National League of Cities and U.S. Conference of Mayors. It is sure to encounter objections from some federal and state officials.

At present, Feild contends, "Local governments are not accorded a full-fledged role" in the allocation of $30 billion a year in federal aid funds.

"Unless and until they are, both policy and administrative conflict will continue to bog the system down," Feild says.

He made the case for "city equality" in the Urban Coalition Magazine "City."

He charged that the Nixon administration's expressed concern for the states' role in the intergovernmental system is "more an exercise in high school civics than it is effective governmental action."

"It is a form of self-deception born of the agricultural age," he said. "The simple truth is that local bureauacracies and local resources are larger, more effective and more relevant to the average American citizen today than those of state government."

Field said the states do have a "vital" role in education, natural resource management, criminal justice and regulation of utilities and commerce. But they are not "capable of doing the same kind of administrative job being done by local government to service the needs of their citizens and involve them in deciding on priorities and goals."

The main problem, according to Feild, is that states in the past have engaged in policies that have widened racial and class lines in the distribution of federal and state funds.

In a lengthy review of federal policies affecting cities, Feild said automatic allocation of funds to states based on their population or some other formula has failed, in the case of school aid, to equalize inequalities between cities and suburbs. In fact, he said, it actually has tended to widen the gaps.

He said the same is now proving true in the distribution of crime-fighting funds under the "safe streets" law.

"Although the ostensible intent of federal effort is to improve the urban environment by improved law enforcement in areas with high concentrations of crime, the dollars are not being matched to these areas."

"Unless and until equitable means are devised to reduce the disparities in income, health, quality of education and opportunities for better housing between the residents of central city and suburban jurisdictions, this country is headed for continuing conflict."

The cities, Feild concluded, "have in a very real sense become for better or worse, de facto partners in the federal system along with the states and must be dealt with as such if the intergovernmental system is to work."

"They are no longer simply 'creatures' of the state whose charters can be theoretically revoked or arbitrarily changed. They are as permanent a component in the federal system as the states and are essential to it."

New Fathers Getting A New Break In The Delivery Room

I-J Special Report

SAN DIEGO — Father, that forgotten figure in the mystique surrounding the arrival of a new baby, has been given his rightful place in the family unit at University Hospital.

Because the Lamaze Method of childbirth is recognized at the hospital, father is welcome in the delivery room to share in the bringing forth of a life mutually begun nine months earlier.

As long as he "scrubs up" and dons a hospital gown, he's then able to enter the nursery with its rows of cribs, and hold his own child — with no cold glass wall intervening.

Then, as a romantic capping to the occasion, it's a candle-light dinner for mother and father — courtesy of University Hospital — the night after the baby's arrival.

Currently underway is a series of prenatal clinics held weekly at the hospital; planned for the near future are monthly teas for mothers-tobe, during which they will have refreshments, see a movie, and be given a tour of the hospital and the maternity floor.

The changes came about after hospital authorities began delving into the "whys" of traditions hundreds of years old . . . and found there really wasn't any need in a modern hospital for most of them. Apparently it's the first hospital in the country with this kind of "open door" policy, but as a spokesman noted: "This is what a University facility is all about . . . as an innovator and pace-setter."

And as one father said, "after having four other children and feeling like a fifth wheel in the early days following their arrival, for the first time I feel natural, and not at all nervous, about our new baby."

The blackbird is one of the very few species that appears to be increasing in numbers.

SLEEK, MODERN

Reaction Mixed To New Theater

DUESSELDORF, (GF) — Observe the sleek lines and the modern, aluminum skyscraper rising in the background.

A sleek design: Duesseldorf's new city theater. And it should be, say Duesseldorfers. After all, the swinging, reinforced concrete structure cost nearly 10 million — much too much, many local residents feel.

Other citizens find other things wrong with the new theater — for example, that only Duesseldorf prominence was invited to attend the grand opening. Officials decided against public ticket sales for opening night, so they say, in order to prevent any disturbances for occurring.

But the closed performance resulted in disturbances anyway — out front, where police and police dogs went into action to keep demonstrating students "in line". The students were protesting the fact the public at large hadn't been given the opportunity to attend opening night at the theater their taxes had paid for.

Inside, VIP citizens got a taste of a production not exactly tame itself — Georg Buechner's drama of revolution "Danton's Death", the premiere.

The next few nights proved just as demanding on theatergoers. The roster featured another Buechner drama "The Bachantians", contemporary German dramatist Peter Weiss' "Trotzki in Exile" and Ionesco's "Triumph of Death". The bent on modern theater was too much for many fans, who began to wonder if the theater would ever offer anything less taxing.

Hence, the new theater was starting off in the tenor of an old German saying. Namely, that "the art of doing everything everyone likes is an art that no one has yet mastered."

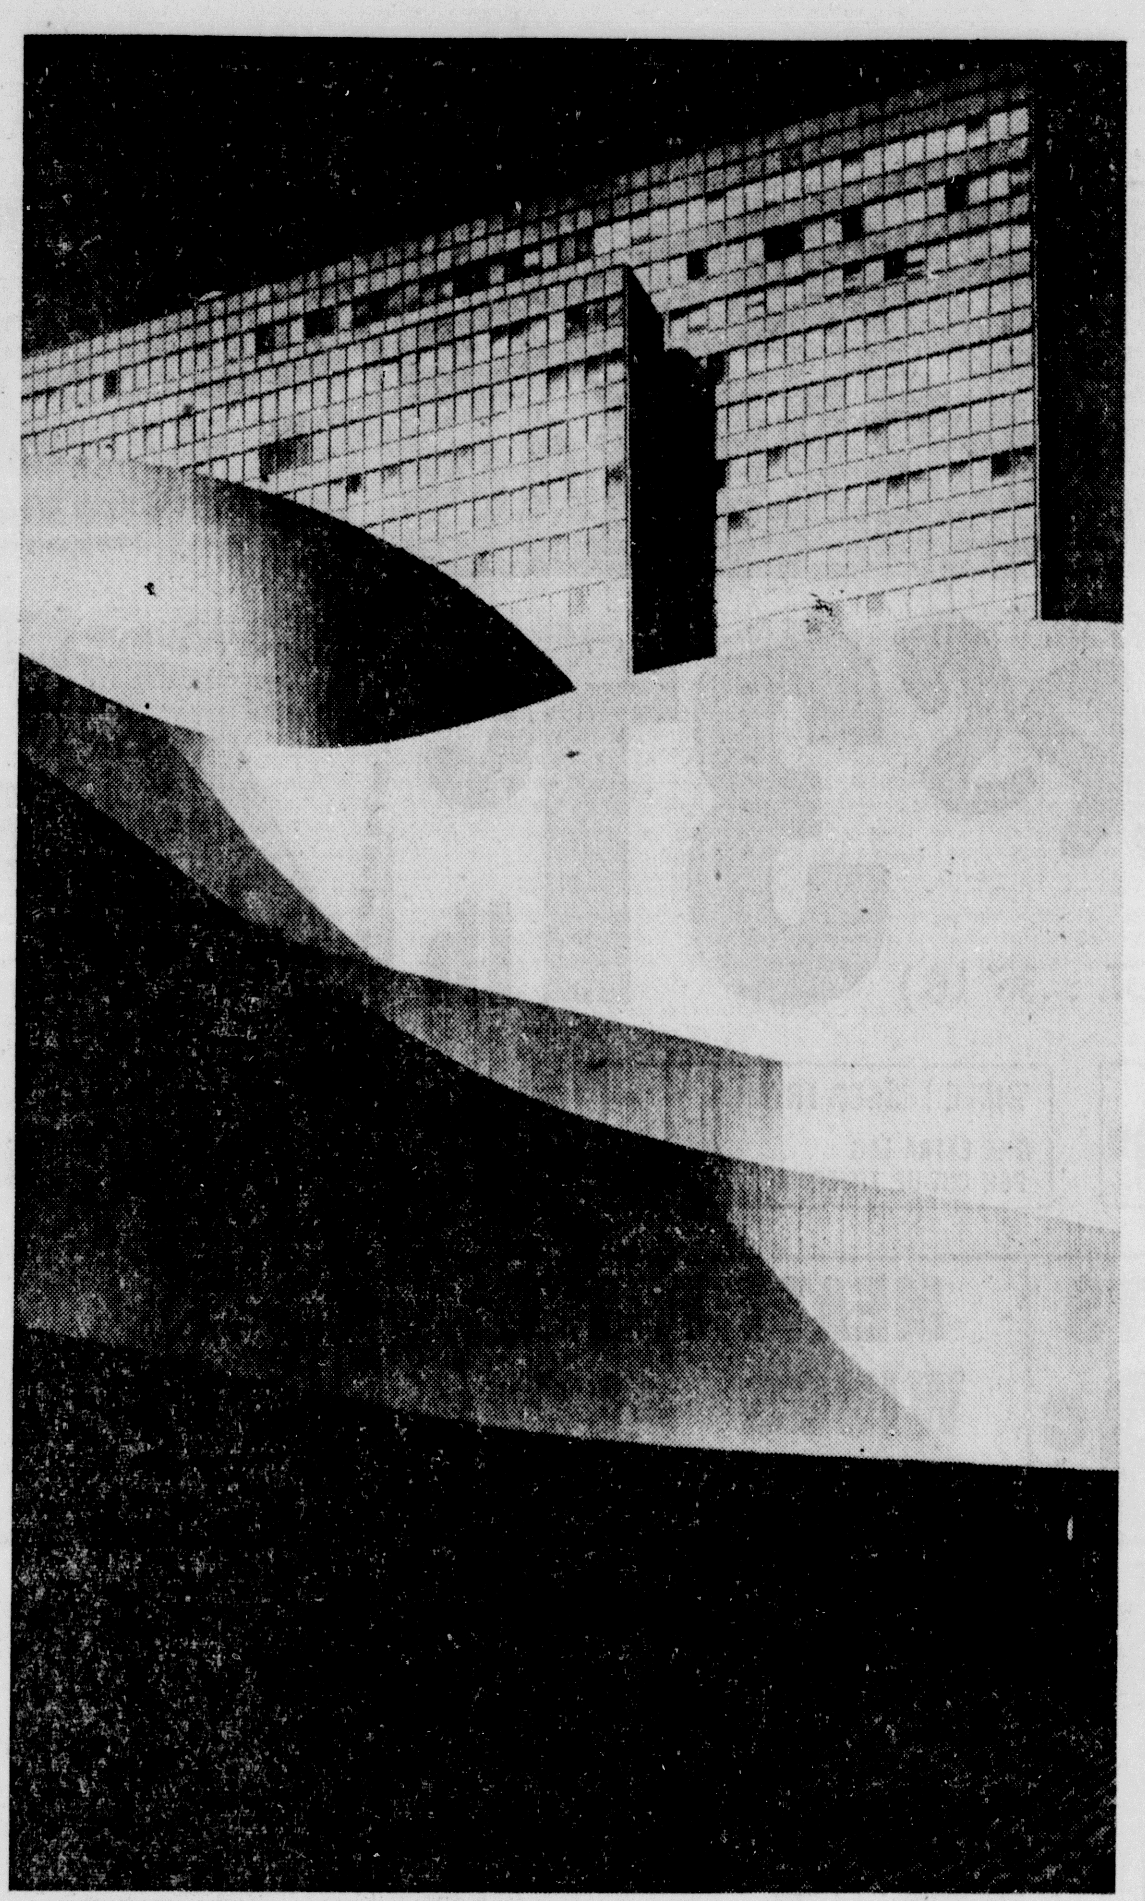
Flying Whale Chunk Flattens Car Roof

FLORENCE, Ore. (UPI)—When a dead 42-foot California gray whale washed ashore here, the Oregon Highway Division concluded the best way to get rid of it was to blast it into little pieces, so sea gulls and other scavangers could devour it.

In the blast of 20 cases of dynamite, a flying chunk of whale smashed flat the roof of a car parked a quarter-mile away. Said the owner, Walter F. Umenhofer, "My insurance company is never going to believe this."

Add Income

MANILA (UPI)—Eighty-one per cent of the 780 movie houses in the Philippines supplement their income by exhibiting advertising slides on an assortment of products and causes, and by operating refreshment concessions.



NEW THEATER — Duesseldorf's new city theater — with sleek lines and connected to a skyscraper — has raised varied opinions from too costly to just right. It cost $10 million to construct.

Hot Food Can Help To Prevent Brain Damage

I-J Special Report

IRVINE — A new electronic system to detect respiration problems in premature infants and to automatically stimulate the infant's breathing has been developed at the University of California at Irvine.

According to Dr. Margaret J. Ingman, lecturer in pediatrics, "Most premature infants have periods of rapid breathing alternating with brief periods of non-breathing. This 'periodic breathing' is considered to be a harmless phenomenon provided the infant resumes breathing on his own and does not develop cyanosis (turning blue due to lack of oxygen).

"However, if the period of non-breathing is accompanied by cyanosis or slowing of the infant's heart rate, he usually does not resume respiration automatically. If he is not stimulated to resume respiration, he may die or suffer brain damage due to lack of oxygen."

The new system developed here is activated by a heart rate monitor which responds automatically whenever the infant's heart rate falls below 90 beats per minute. (Normal heart rate is 110 to 160 beats per minute.)

In addition to sounding an audible alarm, the system immediately delivers a mild electric stimulant three times per second to the infant's foot, Dr. Ingman explained.

"The intensity of this electric prompter is calculated to cause a brisk withdrawal reaction and the infant will usually resume breathing.

"We monitored eight premature infants at the Orange County Medical Center for a period of 266 hours. During that length of time, 558 instances of bradycardia (slowing heart rate) were detected. Our new apparatus stimulated automatic resumption of breathing in 84 percent of the instances. Manual stimulation was required in 11 percent of the instances, and in four percent of the cases, nurses alerted by the alarm supplied artificial ventilation with bag and mask."

Servicemen Face 'Operation Snip'

SINGAPORE (UPI)—The Singapore armed forces frown on longhairs. They have launched "Operation Snip" to force servicemen to trim long and unkempt hair.

About 160 youths were detained by military police for "unbecoming appearance and behavior" in public buses.

Litterbug Age

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sex and age have a strong bearing on whether a person is a litterbug, says Keep America Beautiful, Inc. The national anti-litter groip says men litter twice as much as women and that people between 20 and 35 litter twire as much as those between 35 and 50.

Many Newsman Visit Moonport

"One thing that always amazes our overseas visitors is the freedom they have to examine our equipment and facilities at close range," said U. Wright Kerns, coordinator of media tours at the Kennedy Space Center.

There are 529 campgrounds operating in the National Parks, according to the Interior Department.
